was the very fine Lenoir High School marching band. When the Carolina majorettes marched across the field to confront the all-male Virginia student section, there was a brief moment of bedlam in the stands. From then on, the Cavalier students cheered with every movement of the Tar Heel lovelies. The band also got a well-deserved ovation from the Virginians, probably the most appreciative audience the band has had all season.

As the Tar Heels moved toward the Virginia goal in the first quarter, a group of Carolina students moved from their seats high up in the stands down to the rail of the stands to implore their Tar Heels to "Move that ball."

In the third quarter, the Virginia quarterback threw a pass toward the Cavalier bench. Virginia Coach Ben Martin calmly leaped up and made a fine catch of the pass, then turned and doffed his hat to the crowd. The Virginia student section promptly struck up the yell: "We want Martin."

Carolina was outplayed in the first half but it was a different team that trotted onto Scott Field in he second period. The Tar Heels looked like he club that beat Maryland two weeks ago when they started their touchdown march at the beginning of the second half. From there on it was all Carolina.

"Saturday should be called "Ed Sutton Day" because the Cullowee senior certainly had himself a great day, scoring three times for the Tar Heels.

When Sutton broke loose for his beautiful touchdown jaunt in the third quarter, two Virginia tacklers gave desperate pursuit, but the ex-Carolina dash man wasn't having any of that; he quickly moved away from his pursuers and went for paydirt.

Prior to yesterday's game, Carolina kicker Wally Vale had a 44.1 punting average, second best in the country, but Vale's first two kicks against U. Va. hurt him; the first went 15 yards, the second, 11.
