Frat Noise Cited By Two Petitioners

Three signers of the petition opposing the building of a new fraternity court in the wooded area behind Victory Village made it clear Thursday why they object to the move.

W. O. Sparrow said, "I have the same objections any family does to living in a colony of fraternities. They are just not a desirable place for family living. In any residential area where you have a congregation of young people excessive noise is bound to result."

Phillips Russell, local newspaperman, said he opposed the move on the grounds that there is plenty of other space in which to construct a fraternity court. His home, he said, would practically be hemmed in by the fraternities.

"From what I hear and see, the behavior of some fraternities leaves much to be desired," Russell said, citing the disturbance between fraternities men and the police last spring as an example. "I'd rather be without them," he added.

Russell also pointed out the residents should have been asked what their feeling would be on the matter. This should have been done before plans went as far as they have, he said.

Dr. John V. Allcott, professor of art in the University, felt he should find out more about the proposed plan before saying anything. He wants to know the plans of the University and the arrangements that have been made. "We are concerned, just as any family is, about who our next door neighbors are," he said.

Dr. Allcott said the proposed fraternity court would be right in the Chase Ave. residents' backyard, but that rational, sober judgment could be made only after hearings with the Building and Grounds Committee.

The committee last week granted a hearing, to be held probably around the first of the year, to the residents fighting the move.

Mardi Gras, Germans, Will Be Held Jointly

The Carolina Mardi Gras's proposed plans for having the Mardi Gras in conjunction with Winter Germans was officially accepted by the majority of the 13 German Club fraternities, it was announced yesterday.

The social weekend called the Carolina Mardi Gras will start Friday night, Feb. 15 at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall with a concert by the Mitchell-Ruff Duo, and festivities will continue with the Germans concert Saturday afternoon in Memorial Hall with Louis Armstrong and company.

Saturday night will climax the weekend with a formal ball decorated with the New Orleans theme in the gym.

Bids for both concert and dance for German Club members will be $4.00, tickets for the dance open to all Carolina students will be $2.00 featuring Armstrong's band. The Mitchell-Ruff Duo will be free to all.

The Carolina Mardi Gras, Feb. 15-16, 1957, will be co-sponsored by the German Club and Graham Memorial Graham Memorial celebration.

National publicity is being sought for this weekend of social festivities and it is hoped that the spirit on campus will make this one of Carolina's greatest socials, according to Mardi Gras officials.

Publicity will be out after Christmas and students will be asked to meet with GM officials to plan the ball.

Supreme Court To Consider Decision Mon.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Supreme Court will have another opportunity tomorrow to act on two requests that it reconsider its Nov. 43 decision holding city and state bus segregation laws unconstitutional.

The court took no action on the requests at its opinion day session last Monday. There was no indication whether it would do so when it meets again tomorrow to hand down decisions and orders.

If the high tribunal does not act tomorrow, the matter will be deferred until after the court returns on Jan. 14 from the Christmas-New Year's recess.

Requests for reconsideration have been filed by the city of Montgomery and the state of Alabama.

Pending action on these requests the Supreme Court's official notification of its decision will not be sent to the special three-judge U. S. District Court in Montgomery which first declared unconstitutional the state and city laws requiring bus segregation.

N.C. State College Officials To Stand Behind Coaches

Bostian Again States School Is Not Guilty

By WALLY KURALT

State College officials, after a six hour meeting yesterday, announced they would stand behind their coaches in the Jackie Moreland case "no matter what Commissioner Weaver does."

"As far as we're concerned, they (Vic Bubas and Willis Casey) are in perfectly good standing," N. C. State Chancellor Carey H. Bostian said, following yesterday's closed session.

Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Jim Weaver met with Bostian, State's Athletic Council, Consolidated University President William Friday and Vice President William Carmichael, and others concerning the $80 given 6-8 Jackie Moreland for transportation to State, and the five year scholarship also given the Minden, La., basketball sensation.

The seven year scholarship reportedly given Moreland's girl friend and other allegations made by the NCAA were not discussed at the meeting, according to Bostian. "The Athletic Council did not discuss the status of the coaches," said Bostian, "though there were widespread expressions of confidence in them."

There was speculation prior to the meeting that it might result in a showdown over the future status of Bubas and Casey and possibly others on the college's athletic staff.

The meeting resulted in reaffirmation of confidence in the staff by Bostian, and a second request that the ACC conduct a full investigation.

"It is our conviction that these allegations can be satisfactorily explained," said Bostian. "We request that Administration Officials of State College be permitted to appear before the Faculty Chairman to answer the charges."

The $80 given Moreland was not used by Moreland, according to Bostian. Within 48 hours the money was returned, Bostian said, and Moreland had decided to enroll at Centenary College.

Weaver said Saturday: "I have received the telegram from Chancellor Bostian of North Carolina State College which requests a hearing of the Moreland case before the faculty chairman of the Atlantic Coast Conference, and the contents of this telegram have been transmitted to Dean Eppley, president of the conference, with my recommendation that a hearing be held in Greensboro next Friday in my office."

"I am also transmitting by telegram to Chancellor Bostian the action that this office has taken on the matter. I am prohibited by conference regulations from divulging the contents of this telegram but Chancellor Bostian is at liberty to make any announcements that he wishes."

Chancellor Bostian said he had not received the wire late last night and was retiring for the night after instructing Western Union to hold up delivery of any messages until this morning.

He said he would make public the contents of Weaver's telegram "after first notifying anyone who might be concerned."

Bubas and Casey have denied the allegations against them. Basketball Coach Everett Case has emphatically backed them. As Casey said, "The rules are perfectly clear that it is legal for an alumnus or friend of the college to pay transportation costs of a prospective athlete to visit the campus."

Bubas said it was fair to assume that Moreland might qualify for a fifth year of scholarship aid but that no promise had been made that he would.

Bubas stated that athletes in several ACC schools have received an additional scholarship year to complete work on their degrees after their athletic eligibility had been exhausted.

"We stand ready and waiting to cooperate in (an ACC) investigation," said Bostian in his telegram to Weaver.

Chances Offered For Travel, Study Abroad

Summer Study Available In Great Britain

Students interested may take a European Art Tour through France and Italy next July 19 through Sept. 5, for less than $1,000, according to Dr. Clemens Sommer of the Institute of International Education.

The various courses open to Americans will be taught at Oxford, at Stratford-on-Avon and at the capital cities of London and Edinburgh.

Although limited in number, scholarships will be available to American students. Two full scholarships are reserved for graduate students. Application forms for award and admission may be secured from the Institute, 1 E. 67th St., New York or from its regional offices in Chicago, Denver, Houston, San Francisco and Washington.

WUNC-TV ASSISTS

Educational TV Rising In NC Public Schools

Only eight per cent of the public schools in North Carolina now have television sets, a recent survey indicates.

However, the survey, made by the North Carolina Committee on the Public Schools and Educational Television, shows that 14 per cent more will get sets next year.

The North Carolina Committee, headed by Dr. Donald G. Tarbet, associate professor of education at UNC, is part of the Southern States Work Conference.

According to a report released this week by Dr. Tarbet 62 of the 717 public schools which responded had TV sets and 103 more planned to obtain sets next year.

Included in the purposes of the survey were:

1. To encourage the use of TV for education.
2. To discover better techniques for the use of TV in education.
3. To determine the most effective methods and practices for the use of TV in public school education.

Most of the principals contacted in the survey, according to the report, said they are favorable to the use of TV in the classroom. The school officials who responded to the questionnaire said the most valuable courses which could be offered would include social studies, science, and other subjects such as language arts, dramatics, travel, music, and physical education.

The report concluded: "Through the combined efforts of WUNC-TV (the educational TV station at UNC) and the schools of Education of the Consolidated University, programs ranging from science to the arts are being brought to the students of North Carolina schools through the medium of television."

"These programs are planned and executed with the main objective being actual viewing in the classrooms of the state. In this way it will be possible for students to gain valuable knowledge from many specialists."

The survey has not been completed and Dr. Tarbet's report was a condensed version of a longer one.

UNC professors on the committee, in addition to Tarbet, include Dr. Richard I. Beard, associate professor of Education; and Earl Wynn, chairman of the Radio, Television and Motion Pictures Dept.

4 Named As Rhodes Winners

ATLANTA—Four Rhodes scholarship winners were selected last night from 12 finalists representing six Southeastern states.

The winners were: Antonio Marion Gotto Jr., 21, Nashville, Tenn., a senior majoring in chemistry at Vanderbilt University; Erich Gruen, 21, Arlington, Va., senior in ancient history at Columbia University; Don Alan Smith, 20, Cleveland, Tenn., senior in history at Vanderbilt; and George B. Thomas, 21, Norfolk, Va., senior in philosophy at the University of Virginia.

The four were picked from 12 finalists, two each from Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida. They will have two years at Oxford University in England commencing in October, 1957, plus an opportunity to earn a third year's scholarship.

UNC student Luther Hodges Jr., a senior majoring in economics, was one of the two finalists from North Carolina.

The Southeastern winners were among 32 to be selected from throughout the United States.

Duke Singers In Musicales Tonight At 8

Les Petites Musicales presents a program of Christmas music featuring the Duke University Madrigal Singers tonight in Graham Memorial's main lounge at 8.

Sponsored by the Duke Dept. of Aesthetics, Art and Music, the group is directed by Mrs. Eugenia Saville, assistant professor in the Music Dept.

The group consists of 21 undergraduate and graduate men and women whose mutual interest is in the study and performance of unusual music for small vocal ensemble, such as madrigals, chansons, motets, and allied types from the Renaissance to the present.

Members cooperate with the director in research, program planning, duplicating of music, publicity and staging. Numerous concerts are planned each year, both on and off the Duke campus, as well as radio and television performances.

The madrigal, in which the group specializes, is a song for three or more parts and is particularly suited for Christmas music.

The Duke singers will include on their program tonight: Christmas songs for three-part male chorus; sixteenth-century choruses in French, German and Latin by composers Guillaume Costeley, Michael Praetorius, Giovanni Maria Nanin; eighteenth-century harmonized tunes by American composers Supply Belcher and William Billings; Swedish and Spanish carols; and modern English compositions by John Ireland and Arthur Benjamin. Soloists Frances Strickland, soprano, and Don Webster, baritone, will be featured in the works of the latter composers.

An unusual set of Christmas pieces by Elizabethan composer William Byrd is included in this program, in which a section for solo or duet accompanied by stringed instruments is completed by an a cappella choral refrain.

No admission is charged for the GMAE-sponsored program.

Pi Phi Pledges Are Introduced At Gay Yule Party Friday Night

By MARY ALYS VOORHEES

Twirling skirts, long dangling earrings and music in a Yuletide mood set the tempo Friday night in the Carolina Inn Ballroom for the annual Pi Phi Pledge Dance.

Dancing in a winter wonderland of snow-covered pine, the couples whirled about the floor to the music of Bill Langley and his Star Gazers and the songs of Vocals: Barbara Prago.

In one corner of the ballroom was a huge snow-covered Christmas tree illuminated with blue lights. Elsewhere about the room were arrangements of snowy pine and silver pine cones, with large white snowflakes suspended from each of the four chandeliers.

After intermission, the 1956 Pi Phi Pledge Class was presented. To the tunes of favorite Yule carols, the pledges—all dressed in billowing white gowns—descended the stairs as their names were announced by Master of Ceremonies Ray Jefferies.

At the bottom of the steps they were met by their dates, who escorted them over to one side of the room where each pledge received a wine carnation—the sorority flower—and a Pi Phi bracelet of arrows—the symbol of the sorority.

First to be introduced was Pledge Class President Arnold Garvin with Chuck Cushman. Other officers and their dates, Vice President Kitty Carr with John Crawford, Secretary Dee Dee Fenwick with Ken McCall, Treasurer Roberta Hastings with Tony Hornthal, were presented next.

Scholarship Chairman Kit Whitehurst with Andy Wood, Social Chairman Mollie Sprull with Bill Pender, Projects Chairman Pat Wilson with Coleman Barks, Activities Chairman Cindy Sgraves with Frak Malone, Historian Nancy Llewellyn with Howard Williams, Song Chairman Bettie Kell with Sandy Sanders, Censor Sarah Jane Shaw with Harry Braxton came out next, followed by the remainder of the class.

When each pledge and her date had been presented, the pledges

Local High Schoolers View TV in Class

Pictured above are a group of Chapel Hill High School students watching television in the classroom, an educational practice which is rising in the state's public schools, according to a recent survey by the North Carolina Committee on the Public Schools and Educational Television. The committee is headed by Dr. D. G. Tarbet of the UNC School of Education.
