McGuire And Tatum Deny Split Reports

Football Coach Jim Tatum and Basketball Coach Frank McGuire have denied there is a conflict going on within the athletic dept. between their respective sports.

In saying the reports are incorrect, McGuire noted. "In the five years I have been at Chapel Hill, the authorities have wholeheartedly and enthusiastically cooperated with me in our efforts to produce the type of basketball team the University and alumni can be proud Tatum's statement said, "I haven't seen our basketball team play, or even practice, but I understand it is one of the top teams in the country. We are telling the young men we are talking to about attending Carolina that it is our hope that we can build a football team to be just as proud of as the fine basketball program Coach McGuire has accomplished." SPECULATION

The statements came following speculation in several newspapers, including The Daily Tar Heel, that Tatum was responsible for the changes made recently in the organization of the athletic dept.

McGuire explained he "was recently turned down on some re quests in connection with the basketball team, but it was explain ed ... the administration did not think they were financially feasible. After talking it over with the athletic director. I can understand nis position," he said.

"Football had nothing to do with that. There is absolutely no conflict between the two sports. We use different facilities and different personnel, and play in different seasons. We operate entirely separately."

Tatum was out of town when the papers picked up the story, and on his return he said he was "amazed."

TWO DIFFERENT SPORTS

He added he regrets "that Coach McGuire's statements have been turned around in such a way that there could be a conflict between. basketball and football. There is no chance of these two sports ever conflicting. They are two different sports and come at different sea-

McGuire said, concerning reports that he is dissatisfied with the situation. "If I have said anything to imply such, I regret it."
