ONDON A Sir Anthony Eden, choking back tears, resigned Inesday as Prime Minister-with the explanation his health preted his continuing.

Richard Austen Butler, Conservative Party leader in the House of Commons, seemed to most politicians to be Eden's likely suc-

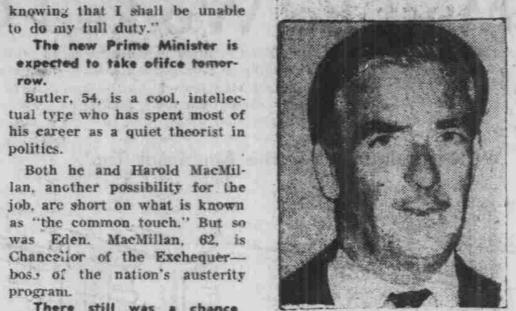

The leader of the opposition Labor Party, Hugh Gaitskell, called for a general election "because the whole cabinet has publicly identified themselves completely with the foreign policy pursued ... in the last three months"

But there was no indication the Laborites would get their wish immediately.

The Conservatives won their last election in May, 1955, and have three years to go before another is necessary. But as the majority party they could call one at any time they desired, or political developments could force them into one.

Eden, 59, stepped down while the repercussions still were sounding from the ill-starred invasion of Egypt he authorized in October. He resigned with "utmost regret," saying:

"I do not feel that it is right for me to continue in office . . .

SIR ANTHONY EDEN . . . with utmost regret among those mentioned in this category was Duncan Sandys, Sir Winston Churchill's son-in-law.

Eden succeeded Churchill in April, 1955. The dominant party in the House of Commons forms Britain's government. It normally designates the Prime Minister, subject to the approval of the sovereign, in this case Queen Elizabeth II, to whom Eden submitted his resignation.

Eden, to the end, stuck by his determination "never to apologize" for the invasion of Egypt-a venture that split Britain and imperiled this country's relations with the United States.

In a farewell statement, he said only:

"When I returned to this country a month ago (from a three weeks rest in Jamaica) I hoped that my health had been sufficiently restored to enable me to carry out my duties effectively for some considerable time. That hope has not been realized.

"I do not feel that it is right for me to continue in office as the Queen's first minister knowing that I shall be unable to do my full duty by my sovereign and the country.

"I have therefore decided with the utmost regret that I must tender my resignation to the Queen which her majesty has been graciously pleased to accept."

Four doctors-one the Queen's own physician-released a statement saying Eden's health "gives cause for anxiety."

Reaction to Eden's resignation from other nations:

MOLINE, III. &-Clement Attlee, former British Prime Minister, said Wednesday he is "very sorry" to hear that Prime Minister Anthony Eden's health "has broken down." He declined further com-

WASHINGTON & President Eisenhower - Wednesday voiced hope that his "old and good friend" Sir Anthony Eden soon will recover and enjoy "many useful years of happiness."

MOSCOW (A-The Soviet news agency Tass (Wednesday) attributed Prime Minister Eden's resignation to failure of his policies rather than to his poor health.

In Cairo, unofficial Egyptian reaction to Prime Minister Eden's resignation was jubilant.

Eden's troubles started almost at the moment that Sir Winston Churchill, the man who had guided him to the top, turned over the Prime Minister's seat to his care.

A national newspaper strike was in progress when Eden attained the highest political office in the land on April 6, 1953. He called a national election the following month and his Conservative Party was returned to office with increased strength in the House of Commons. But even this triumph was marred. Three days before the election thousands of dock workers went an strike. Before the new Parliament had time to meet, labor troubles on the nationalized railways

UP Backing Additional Parking Lots

"We're back of building additional parking lots on campus 100 percent," Chairman Mike Weinman said at a University Party meeting Tuesday night

Weinman mentioned the possibility of constructing such lots 'west of the Forest Theater."

Weinman criticized the Student Party for "refusing to pass a bill setting up a committee to study the parking situation because President Bob Young already had established such a committee."

The committee, Weinman said, has accomplished little or nothing. Student Party Chairman Jim Holmes said yesterday the Youngappointed Traffic Advisory Committee was set up to look into the whole situation, including the possibility of having more parking

Young made the following statement upon hearing of Weinman's accusations:

"I will not attempt to justify the action or lack of action of the Traffic Advisory Commission, but will express my complete feelings about the overall situation in a statement on Thursday (today)."

Chairman Weinman said he had talked with Director of Student Activities Sam Magill and confirmed there were "several thousand dollars lying around' which were to be used for providing additional parking facili-
