

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and a little colder with possible high of 50.

The Daily Tar Heel

O Says Students May Retrieve Books, Money

The APO Book Exchange announced yesterday that students reclaim unsold books and return them to the Housing Office through Friday.

APO representative will be at the Housing Office from 12 in the morning and to 4 each afternoon.

Anyone who has not yet returned books or money has been top by the APO office.

VOL. LVII NO. 103

Complete (AP) Wire Service

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1957

Offices in Graham Memorial

Housing Petition Circulated For Married Student Needs

By EDITH MacKINNON

The final draft of a local petition to get the North Carolina General Assembly to pass legislation enabling the state to float bonds to finance married students' housing units is now in circulation.

Circulation throughout the campus will continue through Feb. 22. The petitioning group, headed by Mrs. John Crittenden and Mrs. Robert Griffin, plans to have the petition brought to the attention of the 1957 N.C. General Assembly. The petition is as follows:

In accordance with the following reasons concerning housing facilities for married students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, we feel compelled to circulate and present this petition:

1. We realize that there is a severe shortage of housing for married students.
2. Married students, many of whom have children, are forced to live in sub-standard housing which is dangerously unsafe, as has been evidenced by recent events.
3. We realize this problem must be remedied to meet the continuing and increasing enrollment of married students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

OBLIGATION
4. We feel that it is the obligation of the state of North Carolina to recognize and remedy the housing problem of married students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Therefore, we the undersigned, students at the University of North Carolina, strongly urge the General Assembly of the State of North Carolina to approve legislation enabling the University of North Carolina to obtain funds for self-liquidating housing for married students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

In drawing up the petition, Mrs. Griffin reported that many facts concerning the present situation at Victory Village had been supplied by James Wadsworth, UNC Housing Officer. These facts will be placed before the N. C. General Assembly.

Concerning the shortage of housing in Victory Village, Wadsworth noted that at present there are 356 units, with a waiting time of one year for entrance. As of Oct. 30, 1956, 334 applicants were on the waiting list. Of that number, 46 persons withdrew or did not come due to lack of housing. Thirty of these 334 students commuted from such towns as Pittsboro, Raleigh, and Durham. Sixteen students were obliged to live in

(See PETITION, Page 3)

Student Council Rules Fines Constitutional

By NEIL BASS

The Student Council ruled at a Monday night meeting that fines levied by the Interdormitory Council Court were constitutionally sound.

The Council incorporated a provision in its court by-laws last spring which allows it to fine offenders up to $10 concurrent with other penalties inflicted.

A trial case recently in which an offender of IDC regulations was fined monetarily by the IDC Court resulted in the affirmative decision by the Student Council.

The offender appealed his case to the appellate Student Council and Monday night's council action ruled that the IDC was acting within bounds of the student Constitution.

RESERVE
IDC President Sonny Hallford said of the monetary fine provision:

"Monetary fines will not, in all probability, be imposed frequently. They are merely to be held in reserve in case frequent and flagrant violations occur."

Fines are to be inflicted, according to IDC Court By-laws, at the discretion of the court chairman. The provision for monetary fines was suggested by last year's Council Rule Committee and was passed overwhelmingly by representatives of all men's dormitories.

YOUNG
President Bob Young issued this statement concerning the Student Council's ruling:

"I feel Sonny (President Hallford) is much closer to the situation, and if he and the IDC Court feel this will provide the necessary machinery for an improved dormitory life, then I wholeheartedly endorse the idea.

Elections Head Will Address IDC At 7:30

Elections Board Chairman Ralph Cummings will address the Interdormitory Council meeting tonight.

The council meeting will get underway at 7:30 on the fourth floor of New East Building.

Cummings will discuss procedures for the coming spring election.

The Council's budget for the coming academic year will also come up for approval. Revisions in the council by-laws proper and revisions in the IDC Court's by laws will be presented for approval or rejection by council membership.

Council President Sonny Hallford has urged all members be present.

ASTRONOMY CLUB

The Chapel Hill Astronomy Club will meet tonight at 8 in the faculty lounge of Morehead Planetarium. Speaker for the meeting will be Harvey Daniell, whose subject will be "The Construction, Launching and Tracking of the Artificial Satellite."

Number One Tar Heels Top State 86-57, For 21st Straight Win; Rosenbluth Hits 28 To Lead

Hold It There Bob

Carolina guard Bob Cunningham seems to be getting a little discouragement from State's Lou Pucillo (left) and Nick Pond. The Tar Heels beat State 86-57.

Norman Kantor Photo

UNC Quint Hits 50% Of Shots To Clip Pack

By LARRY CHEEK

North Carolina basketball Coach Frank McGuire relaxed for the first time in weeks last night as he watched his hardwood juggernaut roll over N. C. State for the second time this season, 86-57, on the Woollen Gym floor.

The tall and slightly terrific Tar Heels out-shot, out-rebounded, and out-played their old rivals from West Raleigh in sweeping their 21st consecutive win of the season without a loss, thus insuring their hold on the nation's number one position among college basketball teams.

It was chiefly an amazing display of shooting skill and accuracy that turned the trick for Carolina. For the entire game they hit 33 of 66 shots from the floor for an even 50 per cent, compared to only 35 per cent for State. In the first half, the Tar Heels burned the nets for 55 per cent.

The win was Carolina's third in a row on their home court over Big Four rivals, but it was far and away the easiest one. Duke and Wake Forest both pushed the decision right down to the wire.

Earlier in the season, Carolina demolished the Wolfpack, 83-57, in Raleigh in a game that was close until the final minutes. Tonight there was never any doubt as to who had the superior team.

The Tar Heels jumped off to an early lead over the youthful, jittery Wolfpack. With 8:06 gone, the score was 14-4 with Carolina on top. State could do little to halt the floor of Tar Heel points although "canny" coach Everett Case substituted freely in an effort to improve matters.

Tommy Kearns and an apparently rejuvenated Pete Brennan

(See TAR HEELS, Page 4)

Tar Heels Found The Formula

By BILL KING

Last night, for the first time in a couple of weeks that mixture of tension and relief was missing in the Carolina locker room following a ball game; for the Tar Heels had finally found that "knock em down and hold em down" formula that was so prevalent until about two weeks ago when obvious tension suddenly gripped the club.

Coach Frank McGuire's methodical basketball machine had just rolled to an 86-57 win over the State Wolfpack. It was win number 21 for the nation's number one basketball team and coach McGuire came into the dressing room looking and obviously feeling much better than he has for some time.

Despite his complacent appearance, McGuire admitted that the tension was still there. "I've never been hunting before in my life," he smiled, "but I think I'll grab a gun and go bear hunting to get away from it all."

Although the Wolfpack went down to a humiliating defeat at the hands of the powerful Tar Heels, McGuire was not boastful over the victory. "State is coming along," he observed, "I'll bet they'll beat two teams in the ACC Tournament."

McGuire was asked if he thought the loss of John Maglio and Cliff Hafer had hurt the Pack. The answer was pretty obvious. "Certainly that hurt them tremendously. They're both veterans and fine ball players."

Over in the State dressing room, things were pretty quiet. About all that Everett Case had to say was, "how can you win when they're hitting like that?" The question is, was it speaking of his clubs' inaccuracy or of the Tar Heels accuracy?

THE BOX
N. C. STATE	G.	F.	P.	T.
Clark, f	2	3-5	4	7
Hopper, f	0	1-2	0	1
MacGillivray, f	0	2-2	2	2
Pond, f	4	0-0	3	8
Richter, c	6	2-8	3	14
Seitz, c	2	0-0	4	4
Pucillo, g	9	0-1	0	6
Waters, g	0	1-2	1	1
Bell, g	6	0-1	3	12
Kessler, g	1	0-1	0	2
Totals	24	9-22	19	37

CAROLINA
G	F	P	T
Rosenbluth, f	11	6-8	4	23
Lotz, f	0	0-0	0	0
Brennan, f	6	3-10	3	20
Searcy, f	0	0-0	1	0
Quigg, c	5	2-4	2	12
Young, c	1	1-1	1	3
Kearns, g	7	1-2	2	15
Rosemond, g	0	0-0	0	0
Cunningham, g	3	2-3	3	6
Holland, g	0	0-0	1	0
Total	33	20-28	17	86

N. C. STATE
G	F	P	T
Totals	23	34-57
North Carolina	38	48-86

Final Entrance Exams Will Be On March 23

The final of three statewide testing programs for entrance to units of the Consolidated University will be held March 23 throughout the state.

The day-long exams will be held in 10 centers stretching from Elizabeth City to Asheville, according to Dr. W. D. Perry, director of the University Testing Service.

High school students in the state who plan to take this test must register by March 16, Perry said. The examinations were established last year as requisites for entrance to UNC, State College in Raleigh and Woman's College in Greensboro.

The exams will be held in Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, Asheville, Kinston, Salisbury, Winston-Salem, Chapel Hill, Wilmington and Elizabeth.

ACKLAND MUSEUM:

There Is 'High Optimism'

By JIM PURKS

Dr. John V. Allcott, chairman of the UNC Art Department, affirmed yesterday that the art department did have some definite objections to the architecture adopted for the new Ackland building now under construction.

Allcott emphatically pointed out, however, that there is "high optimism" in the department despite these objections.

"It's not the building that could be of most service to us," Allcott pointed out.

Allcott said the art department feels the colonial style which has been adopted restricts the planning of interior corridors and walls, and gives a particular lighting which may be bad for work inside.

Allcott said one of the chief objections to the building is the fact that small windows will be employed.

"The school unit has a library and painting studios along an alley. We had hoped that these rooms could have large windows to admit good north light."

COLONIAL STYLE
"We felt that the colonial style, in calling up historical thoughts, would not seek to inspire students through expression of a spirit of our times," Allcott said.

"The University has adopted the colonial style for recent buildings in the belief that adherence to this style secures harmony. We see in architectural history that beauty is not so tyrannical," he said.

"In spite of such feelings as I have noted, I want to state our optimism about the building. We intend to make the building work."

"It brings us together under one roof after years of operation in widely scattered buildings—at present we are in five buildings," Allcott said.

"The building literally opens up a new day for art on our campus," Allcott added.

Dr. Allcott made these statements yesterday when asked to comment on an article in the Monday Raleigh News and Observer in which Dr. Joseph L. Cain, of the University of Rhode Island, criticized the new Ackland building and said Allcott had "resigned in protest" because of the architecture of the art building.

NOT WORKABLE
Cain, currently visiting the art departments of all the major universities in the United States, said the new building was "not a workable type of structure" and was "all wrong from the esthetic point of view."

Cain also made other fiery statements concerning the new building. He particularly criticized the fact that the museum was going to be located in front of the classroom building, stating it was a "terrible arrangement for an art school."

Allcott did not totally disagree with Cain's criticism, but said the arrangement was favorable from the public point of view. "The public won't have to look for the museum. It's in a good place as far as the public is concerned," Allcott said.

Allcott also pointed out that Cain made these statements shortly after he had a short talk with Cain. "Cain said that the art work here was better than he had seen so far on his tour," Allcott said. Allcott explained that evidently Cain got the impression a great injustice was being done to the UNC Art Department over the new art building and was distressed that its good work would be wasted.

Horn Says Triangle Is 'Lopsided' For Library

Gov. Hodges' "Research Triangle" is becoming lopsided as far as libraries are concerned, the University of North Carolina's retiring head librarian said yesterday.

"Libraries do not remain great unless they are nourished," wrote Andrew H. Horn, who will finish his job here in June. He recently resigned for "personal reasons," including reasons of health.

Horn attacked the state's Advisory Budget Commission last week for cutting UNC requests for library books and journals.

Yesterday, in this week's edition of "Library Notes," published by the UNC Library, Horn warned the state is not putting enough money into the library here. He referred to the "Research Triangle" plan pushed by Gov. Hodges for coordinating research on the campuses of the University, Duke University and N. C. State College in Raleigh.

He said: "Many of us have read with pride the material which has been published on Gov. Hodges' 'Research Triangle.' We librarians had special satisfaction in noting that the combined research libraries of Duke, UNC and State College were credited as being one of the major assets of the Research Triangle."

"Libraries do not remain great unless they are nourished. A 1953 book budget will not, in 1957-59, contribute much toward supporting the governor's progressive program.

"The Duke library, fortunately, has steadily increased its book budget and thus helped offset the irregular and reluctant support given by the state to its University Library.

"The events of last week reminded us a little of those last summer—when the governor spoke of encouraging industry in North Carolina while the Division of purchase and Contract awarded the library binding contract to a firm in Indiana rather than to the one in Greensboro which had the contract the year before."

The statement was titled "Forging Ahead With the Governor?"

Misses Jackie Aldridge, Dorothy Pressly Named Exchange Students

Miss Jackie Aldridge and Miss Dorothy Pressly have been named as the UNC delegates to the student exchange program arranged with Sarah Lawrence College of Bronxville, N. Y.

The committee to select delegates to the Sarah Lawrence program met on Feb. 15 to interview candidates. Composed of Student Body President Bob Young, Miss Peggy Funk, chairman of Women's Residence Council, Sonny Hallford, President of Men's Interdormitory Council, and Dave Ward, representing Interfraternity Council, the committee chose Miss Pressly and Miss Aldridge from a group of eight possible persons.

The original intent was to select one male and one female student. However, after discussing the situation, the committee decided that it would be best to send two female students as representatives.

In announcing the selection of Miss Aldridge and Miss Pressly, the committee reported:

"The calibre of students who appeared before the committee was extremely high and the committee felt that most anyone from the group would have been a good representative. However, because of active student activity participation and interest in the program on the part of Miss Aldridge and Miss Pressly, the committee felt that the University would be extremely well represented by these two outstanding students.

"The two students who were chosen were well aware of the responsibilities and significance of this project. Since this is the first time Carolina has participated and since Carolina is the only Southern school, the importance of proper representation is of extreme significance. The committee feels most confident in announcing that these two students will be our representatives."

The UNC delegates will attend the Sarah Lawrence meeting March 1-3. The purposes of the program are to better relations between colleges, to broaden and evaluate educational goals and to provide an opportunity for comparing and discussing student activities and organizations, according to Miss Faith Learned, chairman of the student exchange committee at Sarah Lawrence.

DOROTHY PRESSLY AND JACKIE ALDRIDGE
...they go to Sarah Lawrence

GM'S SLATE

The activities schedule for Graham Memorial today is: Bridge lessons; Rendezvous Room; 4:30-6:00 p.m.