Knowland Doubtful

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican Leader, said yesterday he has not "closed any doors" on the possibility of his seeking the GOP presidential nomination in 1960.

Knowland told reporters in a recorded radio interview (MBS) Reporters Roundup) it is just too early to say what he might do in that campaign.

Asked whether he can "conscientiously say you are not going to seek the Presidential nomination," Knowland made this reply: "I don't think any person... can say in 1957 what the conditions may be in 1960. I neither ruled it in nor ruled it out."

Indonesians Negotiate

JAKARTA, INDONESIA — (AP) — Efforts were under way yesterday to solve the East Indonesian revolt by negotiation.

Franz Umbas, Deputy Economics Minister, said he had discussed the revolt with Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo. Umbas is a relative and personal advisor of Lt. Col. Herman Samudra, the rebel leader, and is a native of Celebes, largest island involved in the revolt.

Informed sources said Samudra would work through Umbas to present his case.

Decision In Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — While Israeli students rioted in Jerusalem in protest, Israel yesterday completed technical arrangements for the transfer of Sharm El Sheikh and the Gaza strip to the U.N. Emergency Force.

Mrs. Golda Meir, Israel's foreign minister, announced the agreement on arrangements to the 80-nation General Assembly.

She spoke in an atmosphere of relief among the delegates over the ebbing crisis in the Middle East. The foreign minister's declaration, marking another step in ending the invasion of Egypt by Israel, was greeted with satisfaction by Britain and other countries.

Mrs. Meir reminded the delegates of her announcement last Friday that Israel was ready to withdraw from the Sharm El Sheikh area of the Gulf of Aqaba and Gaza Strip.

"I can now state," she continued, "that on instructions from the Government, the chief of staff of the Israel defense forces, Gen. Moshe Dayan, met today with the commander of the United Nations Emergency Force, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, to discuss measures necessary to carry out the withdrawal from both areas in accordance with the statement made by me on Friday last."

Uranium, Gold, Petrified Forests Plague Geologists At University

By BOB MYERS

"L. this gold." "How old is the petrified cedar forest 10 feet below the ground in Dare County?" "Can you find out if any uranium is on my farm?"

"Where and how can I find rubies in western North Carolina?" "I am a graduate student in Austria. Send me everything you have about North Carolina?"

Those are some of the recent questions contained in letters to professors in the Dept. of Geology and Geography. Hundreds of questions come in every year. It's a big chore to answer them all.

Dr. Samuel T. Emory, chairman of the Geology and Geography Dept., tried to answer the approximately five questions a week that come in. Those he cannot answer readily, he bucks to the state geologist in Raleigh. Others that would cost quite a lot of money to answer in detail, Dr. Emory has to turn down.

For instance, a farmer may send in a rock, wrapped up in a package, with a note attached: "What is this, and is it worth anything?"

PLAIN STONE

Chances are it's a plain old rock, but it requires careful analysis sometimes to determine the composition of minerals and rocks.

Inquires come from four major kinds of people: (1) school children, (2) retired people who have become "rockhounds", (3) land owners with visions of uranium deposits, (4) investment-minded commercial concerns. These four categories of curious persons test the departmental geologic I. Q.'s at Chapel Hill.

It is not unusual that so many questions come into Chapel Hill, because North Carolina is a state containing practically every kind of mineral that can be found anywhere.

Not many of these minerals are found in abundance, but there is a little bit of everything. The late Dr. Collier Cobb, one of the nation's greatest geologists and longtime head of the Geology Department at UNC, used to say that North Carolina "is the nation's showcase" for minerals, because those found here are so many and varied.

BURIED CEDAR FOREST

A West Virginia paper company official desired to know the age of a unique forest of down cedar uncovered while digging a ditch in Dare County. A sample of the wood, surprisingly well-preserved was sent to Yale scientists who said it would be necessary to send a geologist to the scene to determine the geological setting, a $100 project, Dr. Emory explained. Atomic Radiation in the trees will have to be ascertained, was Dr. Emory's theory on the forest suggests a hurricane more destructive than the Hazel variety felled the trees thousands of years ago.

"All that glitters is not gold," was Dr. Emory's borrowed poetical advice to people who brought in nuggets of worthless pyrite, which looks like the real thing.

There are property owners with the mercenary conviction that uranium deposits infest their cow pastures. They know it's there because a Geiger counter has responded to tests. What they sometimes don't know is that a Geiger counter will detect the radiation in the human body. It's a $100 project for an expert to prove there's probably no uranium in the cow pasture.

News paper articles announcing the presence of rubies in Western North Carolina mountains touched off queries like the one from a man who had retired to "rock-hounding" after 43 years of public work.

How much Lithium is there in North Carolina, where is it and will you analyze samples is another typical request generally accompanied by a small boulder. People know lithium is being mined near Bessemer City, that it is a light, heat-resisting, sought-after metal, that it is useful in making the H bomb, and that jet planes in which it's used cost a million dollars apiece. That causes a stir.

Dr. Emory was surprised at a graduate student in Austria who was preparing a lecture and wanted "everything you have on the state." "Apparently he was not a graduate student in geology or geography," Dr. Emory said.

Covering The Campus

PHARMACY SENATE

The Pharmacy Senate will meet tonight at 7 in room 113 Howell Hall.

PHILOLOGICAL CLUB

The Philological Club will meet at 7:30 in the Faculty Lounge of Morehead Planetarium. Professor Louis O. Kattsoff of the Dept. of Philosophy will present a paper entitled "Thinking of Acting," a comparison of continental and Anglo-American philosophy. All faculty members and graduate students have been invited to attend.

WORLD RELIGION

The World's Religion supper meeting study group will meet today 6-7:30 in the upstairs dining room of Lenoir Hall. Last week's discussion on Hinduism and other Indian religions will be continued with Professor W. I. Stace leading the discussion. Other speakers will present various aspects of the Indian religion. The public has been invited to attend.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The Cosmopolitan Club will meet at Graham Memorial at 8 p.m. Wednesday for pictures to be taken for the Yak.

WAA TABLE TENNIS

All third round matches in the WAA table tennis tournament must be played by Friday at 3 p.m. According to WAA officials, both parties will forfeit if the matches are not played by Friday.

Greek Week Workers

Two social fraternity pledges at UNC are shown above cleaning an area of the UNC campus during "Greek Week" work day exercises this past week. Nearly 400 pledges spent some 1,000 man-hours of labor around the university community in the mass cleanup program which has replaced varied activities that formerly characterized "Hell Week." Above are David Loughlin of Henderson, left, and Buck Johnston of Statesville, right, both Zeta Psi pledges.

New Dramatic Series To Be Offered By GM

A new dramatic series, Petite Dramatique, is in the offing for the spring semester.

Sponsored by Graham Memorial Activities Board, the series will be produced by Seamon Gottlieb, who hopes that the productions will bring the "best in drama" to the campus.

The series will be featured on Sunday nights in the main lounge of Graham Memorial at 8 p.m. Performances have been scheduled for nights on which there are no Petites Musicales.

Selma To Honor Aycok

At Banquet March 15

The citizens of Selma, North Carolina, will honor William B. Aycok, newly appointed UNC chancellor with a banquet in his honor March 15.

Helping to honor the former resident of Selma will be Governor Hodges, Dr. Frank Graham, past president of UNC, current President William C. Friday, Dr. Dudley D. Carroll and other educational leaders.

Fred Fowlkes, editor of The Daily Tar Heel, has been asked to represent this paper at the banquet.

Rock And Roll To Be Debated By Phi Society

Rock and roll fans, your music has been condemned.

A resolution favoring the condemnation of rock and roll has been submitted for action tonight by the Philanthropic Literary Society.

The resolution is as follows: Whereas: Today, American youth is being distracted from clean and wholesome recreation by extemporaneous arrangements of notes and sounds; and

Whereas: Such sounds and discords are causing the American people to become a nation of psychoneurotics and psychopaths.

Be it resolved that: Rock and roll be condemned as an uncivilized expression of man's desires, passions and talents.

All students of the public school system of North Carolina be encouraged to spend their money and time on more worthy entertainment, recreation and diversions.

Y Planning Committee For Frosh Camp To Meet

There will be a meeting of the planning committee for Freshman Camp tonight at 6:45 in the Y lounge.
