The Daily Tar Heel

This week may make the difference. See editorial, page 2.

Campus Political Parties Choose Top Men For Spring; SP Names Evans, UP Elects Baum For President's Job; Bass, Crowther And Sloan In Running For Editorship

DTH Candidates Run Independent

Three students Monday night announced their candidacy for editor of The Daily Tar Heel. All three will run independently.

Both political parties—the Student Party and the University Party—decided not to endorse any candidate for the editorship.

Running for the position will be Charlie Sloan, Frank Crowther and Neil Bass. Running independently was apparently their own decision in addition to the parties' announcement.

Each went before both parties Monday night to announce their platforms and to seek "individual support."

SLOAN
Sloan, a sophomore from Arlington, Va., has been managing editor since last fall. Crowther, also a sophomore, has written columns for the paper since last spring. He is from Chevy Chase, Md. Bass, a junior from Nashville, has covered student politics for the paper for three years.

In his platform, Sloan said, if elected, he would try to eliminate "off the record" and "no comment" situations. "The Daily Tar Heel has a conscience," he said.

Other points were:

1. Better coverage.
2. Less dropping of the "flag" (the paper's nameplate) than there has been this year even though world news is necessary.
3. "The purpose of The Daily Tar Heel is to inform rather than to incite."
4. "I am for bigtime athletics."

Concerning closed meetings, Sloan said he did not want them but "We can be fair to the organization."

Mentioning specifically the Interfraternity Council, he said he thought we (The Daily Tar Heel) are better judges than they (the IFC) of what is news and what is not in relation to what happens in IFC meetings.

CROWTHER
Crowther said "I can offer the most service to the school as editor. I consider this a personal challenge and I never turn my back on a personal challenge."

He announced an eight-point platform which, if elected he will bring about:

1. Better understanding in editorials.
2. Elimination of the paper's national-international wire.
3. Better internal organization on the paper.
4. An attempt to better relations with the faculty and students.
5. Better interpretation of athletics.
6. Better feature coverage.
7. A well-rounded editorial page with more columns.
8. A poll of the students to find out what comic strips they want.

BASS
Bass said he is running on three things—experience, interest and capability.

His platform contains three principles:

1. Professional athletics—"I am for a winning team and I shall continue to be for a winning team."
2. Closed IFC meetings—"He said he was against any closed meetings on principal."
3. "Afghanistanism"—Bass said here there was overemphasis of world news. He said he thought there is a place for world news—a column.

He said unless there was a catastrophe, he would never make world news the lead story.

SP Selects Candidates For Spring

By EDITH MCKINNON

The Student Party nominated Paul Carr as its candidate for president of the Senior Class last night in a meeting at Graham Memorial.

Carr was nominated by acclamation at the nominating session in Roland Parker Lounge 1 and 2.

Frank Black was nominated by acclamation for the position of vice-president. Jennie Margaret Meador won over Ann Morgan as he candidate for the secretary's post, while John Walters was selected for the treasurer's spot by acclamation.

Ann Morgan was nominated to seek the office of social chairman over Debbie Sink.

Legislature seats were also up for grabs and the year seat for representative of Dorm Women went to Lib Straugh by acclamation.

There were no nominations for the seats due Town Men I and II, therefore Chairman Sonny Hallford stated that the two nominations would be chosen by the advisory board.

Kay Smith and Nola Hatten won the seat nominations for the vacancies of the Town Women by acclamation. The seat for Town Men IV went to Robert Spencer with no opposition.

The position of National Student Assoc. coordinator went to Whit Whitfield even though he did not ask for endorsement but asked for unofficial support of the party.

On a vote of acclamation, Frank Black won the nomination of head cheerleader.

Humanity Institute Established Here

RALEIGH—An Institute of Humanities was established Monday by the executive committee of the Board of Trustees of the University.

The institute gives an extra dimension to the organization of the university in sciences, business, medicine, and other professions in the University.

Chancellor Robert B. House, in announcing the organization of the institute, stated, "I rejoice in the formation of a new foundation type of institute which will undergird the work of arts and sciences."

The Humanities Institute is sponsored by the Division of Humanities and its purpose is "to show persons interested in the liberal arts how they can support effectively the central teaching of the University as strengthened by graduate research and by improved undergraduate instruction, and to provide the means by which their assistance can be used most advantageously."

The Institute is directly responsible to the Chancellor. All members of the several departments in the Division of Humanities are members of the Institute.

The governing board is composed of seven members: a director, yet to be chosen; the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences; and five others to be elected by the membership.

Outside persons who are interested in the Institute will be members of an advisory council, among these "influential friends of the liberal arts."

No funds are available to the present time; however, it is expected that financial support will be forthcoming similar to the support given other foundations (See HUMANITIES, Page 3)

Israelis Are To Appear Here Today

Four Israeli students will be on campus today and tomorrow, sponsored by the Graham Memorial Activities Board, Hillel Foundation, the Y.M.C.A. and student government.

The students, Rafael Even, Hanoeh Greenfeld, Hava Kohav, and Eliezer Plotnik, will appear in general cultural programs at 8 p.m. in the lounge of Graham Memorial each night they are here. The program will consist of music, dance, and drama.

In addition to a show scheduled for this morning over WCHL, the activities of the group are to include class appearances and a luncheon sponsored by the Cosmopolitan Club, the Y.M.C.A., and the Y.W.C.A.

Today at 6 p.m. at the Pines restaurant, a banquet for the visiting students, and community and student government leaders is planned.

Heading the group is Rafael Even, who was born in Poland in 1925 and came to Israel in 1933. At present he is studying toward his Ph.D. in Social Psychology at the New School for Social Research. He is an adviser on public opinion and publicity for the state of Israel Bonds, as well as the assistant director of the economic research of the State of Israel Bonds Organization. In 1953 Even came to this country for further study.

Candidates Meet In April 2 Polls

Bill Baum, University Party, and Sonny Evans, Student Party, last night were nominated to run for the presidency of the student body in spring elections.

The two candidates, along with others nominated for student government positions last night, will tangle April 2 in the most significant election of Carolina's academic year.

Other Student Party candidates are Don Furtado, vice president, by acclamation; Betty Huffman, secretary, elected over Jane Brock and Edith MacKinnon, and Bob Carter, treasurer, over John Brooks.

Evans, a junior from Durham, told the Student Party it is "the hope for the future." He promised to prepare a prospectus of a new student union building and present Commission next summer. He promised "close cooperation" with the new University administration —President William Friday and newly-elected Chancellor William Aycock.

Evans hailed the present administration of Bob Young, who was elected to the presidency of the student body last year on the Student Party ticket.

The University Party nominated, in addition to Baum, Benny Thomas, vice president, by acclamation, and Jerry Jones, treasurer, over Jim Alford.

Baum is a junior from Elizabeth City. He said he would release his platform today.

The University Party released a four-point platform at its meeting last night. Included in the platform was a promise to form a recommendatory "Student Senate" to advise the student body president on all matters.

Adm. Byrd Dies

BOSTON (AP)—Retired Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, USN, the first man to fly over both the North and South Poles, died Monday. He was 88. The pioneering air explorer, who had been named overall head of the Navy's huge Operation Deepfreeze in Antarctica, had been ailing with a heart condition several months.

Telegram

Students will have a chance to send their best wishes to the Carolina basketball team today.

According to plans formed late last night, a lengthy telegram will be sent to the team in Philadelphia today.

Students can sign the telegram at various places on the campus and downtown.

Deadline

The Daily Tar Heel today starts a system of deadlines for political statements.

Student campaigners in the spring election will have until 4 p.m. each afternoon to submit political statements for the next day's newspaper. Those statements must be typewritten and signed.

Gov. Hodges Heads Speaker List For Business Fair Here March, 22

By BOB HIGH

The fifth "Business Fair," sponsored as a service-to-school project by Alpha Tau Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, will feature Gov. Luther H. Hodges as the main speaker March 22 in Carroll Hall.

The topic of the conference, on the contributions of the State agencies toward the industrialization of North Carolina will be "What North Carolina Can Do For You, Mr. Industry."

Bob Ratledge, president of the local fraternity, stated, "Through this Fair we hope to present the ways in which North Carolina is striving to encourage both the internal and external industrial growth of the state. We believe that we have set up a worth while program and one which should make businessmen aware of the potentialities of our state."

SEMINARS

Three seminars on this main topic will be held. The first study group will convene at 1 p.m. Friday on "Development of Small Industries in North Carolina." G. F. Albright, head of the Small Industries Section, Dept. of Conservation and Development, Raleigh, will head the speaker list for this seminar.

Albright is to speak on how small industries have prospered in this state and the outlook for the future. Ben Smith of the Black Panther Co., Sanford, and Jack Worsham, of Southern Plastics Enginearing, Greensboro, will reply on how the small industries in North Carolina helps them.

The second of these seminars will start at 2:30 and run to 3:30, immediately following an intermission for the showing of exhibits. Walter W. Harper, development engineer, Dept. of Conservation and Development in Raleigh, will be featured on the topic "Attraction of New Industry into North Carolina."

On the program with Harper will be Carl E. Bass, production manager, Southern Assembly Plants, Talon, Inc., Dallas, Texas and Truman H. Safford, southern representative, Charles T. Main Inc., Architects & Engineers of Charlotte.

Harper will deliberate on bringing new industry to this state and Bass and Safford will speak about the industry that has already found its way into this fast-rising area of industry.

PROPOSALS

Following a second intermission and another viewing of the exhibits, James S. Currie will head a discussion on the "Proposed State Tax Revisions and its Effect on the Industrial Development in North Carolina." Currie is the director of the Dept. of Tax Research of Raleigh.

"This probably will be the best seminar," stated Ratledge.

The evening program will open with a welcome by Ratledge. Captain M. Waynich, past director of the Governor's Small Industries Plan, High Point, will then present some remarks on the Fair and make the introduction of Gov. Hodges.

Hodges will speak on "Industry in North Carolina." This is just a wide range of choices as the Governor has not yet selected a specific subject.

A reception for speakers, guests and faculty will be held in the Faculty Seminar room, 301 Carroll Hall, immediately following the evening program.

Anyone who is interested in this Fair is cordially invited to attend as this event is open to the public, stated Ratledge.

GOV. HODGES at Business Fair

IN CARROLL HALL:

Commager Speaks Tonight

Prof. Henry Steele Commager will deliver a lecture, "Nationalism in America," tonight in Carroll Hall at 8.

Sponsored by the Graduate History Club, Graham Memorial, and Phi Alpha Theta history fraternity, the public address is the third in a series of speeches by eminent American historians.

In his lecture Prof. Commager will discuss the American experience with nationalism, the avoidance of chauvinism, the dangers of nationalism today, and indicate some ways in which these dangers may be avoided.

Author of two recent best-sellers, "The American Mind" and "The Blue and the Gray," Prof. Commager was for many years a member of the Dept. of History at Columbia University. During World War II he served as consultant to the Office of War Information, and has conducted several overseas studies for the State Dept.

In addition to articles and reviews which appear in the "New York Times," "The Reporter," and "The Nation," Prof. Commager has written many books on social and intellectual history, and is particularly known for his books on American history.

In 1954-55 the historian was Harmsworth Professor of American History at Cambridge University and has been elected to membership in the National Institute of Arts and Letters. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

As a speaker, Prof. Commager is an advocate of Jeffersonian liberalism and a staunch defender of civil liberties.

Asked to name some of his personal interests, Prof. Commager answered, "Lots of books, two pianos, two record players and phonograph collection, Children's literature, Danish history and literature as a kind of sideline. Also England. My attachment for that place is great, especially for Cambridge."

Members of the History Dept. have stated that the public lecture will be over before the radio broadcast of the Carolina-Yale game begins.

IDC, Sophs To Sponsor Spring Concert, Dance

The IDC and the Sophomore Class will sponsor a concert and dance to be held on the weekend of March 22-23.

The "Spring Swing" will consist of a concert, to be given at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall March 22, and a campus-wide dance, to be held in Woollen Gym from 8 to 11 p.m. on March 23.

Don Furtado, president of the sophomore class, said, "This will be a chance for a big fling to relieve the pressure built up during mid-term exams, so get your dates and tickets early."

The music for the concert will be supplied by the Don Shirley Trio, which is currently on a tour of the major cities, is one of the leading combos in the field of modern interpretive jazz. They have performed in several of the leading night clubs in Chicago, Washington and New York. The combo is also under contract to one of the major recording companies.

The music for the dance will be by the "Duke Ambassadors." The "Ambassadors" are a local group that is well known for the excellence of their dance music. At this dance, they will have an 18 piece orchestra and vocalist.

"The concert will be open to anyone who would like to attend, but the dance will be limited to members of the Carolina student body and their dates," Furtado said. "The price of admission for the concert will be $1.00 per person except for members of the sophomore class. The admission price for Sophomores will be $1.00 per couple. There will be no admission charged for the dance," stated Furtado.

Tickets for the concert will be available at the "Y" and in the information desk of Graham Memorial. Two ticket stubs from the concert will be drawn at the dance, with the two winners each to receive a $10 gift certificate which can be used at the stores downtown who are members of the Chapel Hill Merchants Assn.

"The winners must have the other half of the ticket stub in order to receive the certificates," said Furtado.
