Classes Were Called Off For Christening In 1936

By SUE ATCHISON

"Eleven o'clock classes will not meet this morning." At least that's what you might have read had you been reading the January 29, 1932 edition of the Tar Heel.

Eleven o'clock classes were called off that morning because at 10:30 a.m. the school band struck up a familiar tune and the ceremonies dedicating Graham Memorial to Edward Kidder Graham, president of the University from 1914-18, began. Dr. Louis Round Wilson, the executive secretary of the building committee, presented the building to Mayne Albright, president of the student union, while pleased alumni proudly viewed the memorial to a man who left the university so much spirit.

Work began in 1922 on GM which was built to provide "a Chapel Hill home, to non-fraternity men." The original plans for the building called for a center section with a wing on either end. Due to a lack of funds only the center section of the building was ever built.

MEANING OF GMAB:

GMAB Is Organization For Providing Interest

By WALTER SCHRUNTEK

"Presented by GMAB" is almost a catchword on the campus of UNC. But what exactly does it mean? What is GMAB? And how does it affect the Carolina student?

Defined, GMAB is the Graham Memorial Activities Board. It is that organization whose task it is to provide a student recreational and activity program at UNC. It is a student organization; a composite of dance, movie, recreation, reception and outing committees which determine the programs and activities available to the students and student body of UNC.

In carrying forth with its program to promote student interest and provide recreation and entertainment, GMAB extends its functions to areas as varied and diverse as the interests of a university of 7,500 students.

The effects of GM activities on the student is manifested daily through its promotion of such campus "traditions" as the Film Series, Free Flicks, Free Bridge Lessons, dances, etc.

Its effect on the student body is best illustrated by its sponsorship of dances and combos in the Rendezvous Room of GM; and more spectacularly in such presentations as the recent Mardi Gras and the upcoming "Sound and Fury" production, which is organized and paid for through GMAB facilities.

GMAB, designed to benefit the student body as well as the individual, is financed by a portion of student fees—roughly $3 per student per semester. It is fully a student organization.

Besides carrying out its various programs, GMAB also extends administrative and financial assistance to other organizations and groups which invite speakers to the campus throughout the year.

By promoting its purpose to further student interest in activities and campus organizations, the activities board helps the student by adding to the meaning of extra-whether the students would vote in favor of the issue. The election results were: 806 for the proposal and 74 against it. Graham Memorial was in business to stay.

Facts from the dedication program seem to uphold the faith the organizers had in their plan. During the first three months over 19,000 persons used the game room and everything from exhibits, meetings dances and teas, to a faculty pool tournament were held in the building.

That first year in operation GM had as visitors such personalities as; Norman Thomas, Socialist party leader; Dr. Warren K. Moorehead, noted archaeologist; the Raleigh Male Chorus; South African Quartet and Helen McGraw, concert pianist.

Through the years slight changes have been made in GM, but today it has the same spirit as the day it was dedicated. Today more than ever it fulfills one of its original purposes—that of providing a meeting place for students, faculty and alumni.

curricular experiences in providing an opportunity for group contact and the subsequent exchange of ideas.

As a function of the Student Union, GMAB today finds itself in a unique and perhaps enviable position among other similar organizations throughout the country. According to Tom Lambeth, president of GMAB, the Carolina organization is "perhaps the strongest in the region, and one of the strongest in the nation. It practices a very high degree of student control over its programs as contrasted to others."

He accentuated his remarks by pointing out that the only professional assistance available to the student union here is its director (a post unfilled at present) whereas other schools usually have two or more professional advisers to its programs.

Looking forward to the day when a new union building will be constructed to house the expanding functions of GMAB and

Birthday Fete Honoring GM To Be Monday

GM will hold its 25th Anniversary Party Monday night from 8-10 p.m. in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial, according to Miss Linda Mann, GM director.

All administration, faculty, and students have been invited to the open house.

Birthday cake and punch will be served, and piano music will be played throughout the party by Cecil Hartsoe.

Mrs. William Friday and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell will serve from 8-9 and 9-10 p.m. respectively.

"I hope that everyone will come, even if it is just for a minute," Miss Mann said.

Students and faculty will have the opportunity to meet and talk together at the party.

ADVICE ON ADVISORS

Recently I made an extensive tour of American campuses, interviewing students and selling mechanical dogs, and one of the most frequent complaints I heard from undergraduates was, "My faculty advisor doesn't really care about me."

Everywhere I went I heard this same cry. (Indeed, at one university I found 15,000 students jammed in the field house chanting it a cappella.) But I am bound to say, dear friends, that you are wrong. Your faculty advisor does care about you. The trouble is, he doesn't know you. And no wonder! How do you expect him to know you when you see him once or so a semester?

Get to be friends with your faculty advisor—like, for example, Alpine R. Sigafoos, a sophomore in timothy and sage at Texas A. & M.

Alpine R. Sigafoos appeared one night in the living quarters of his faculty advisor (whose name, by a curious coincidence, was also Alpine R. Sigafoos).

"Good evening, sir," said Student Sigafoos. "I am come so that you may get to know me better and thus help me solve the vexing problems that trouble me."

"What are those three packages?"

"And what are those three packages you are carrying?" asked Advisor Sigafoos.

"This," said Student Sigafoos, holding up the first of the three packages, "is a carton of Philip Morris Cigarettes, which come in long size or regular, and without which I never stir. It is, sir, a smoke beyond compare—full of fresh, natural, unfiltered flavor that delights the taste, saves the soul, and turns the whole world into one long vista of peace and greenery. Try one, sir."

"Thank you," said Advisor Sigafoos, lighting a Philip Morris Cigarette. He puffed appreciatively for an hour or two and then said, "And what is in the other packages you are carrying?"

"I am rather a complex fellow," said Student Sigafoos, "and I don't expect that you will get to know me in a hurry. So," he said, holding up his second package, "I have brought my bed-roll."

"I see," said Advisor Sigafoos, not entirely pleased. "And what is this third package?"

"Well sir, I know that occasionally you will be busy with other matters and will therefore be unable to spend time with me. So I have brought along my gin rummy partner, Walter M. Handzlik."

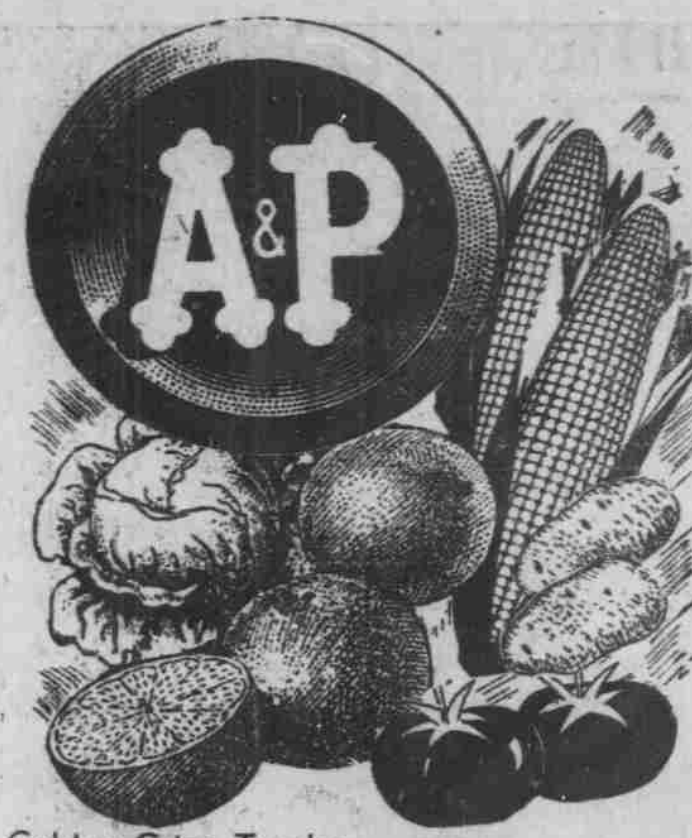

In the next two years Advisor Sigafoos, living cheek-by-jowl with Student Sigafoos, got to know all of the lad's personality traits, his hopes, his fears, his drives, his quirks, his aspirations. At the end of that time, armed with true understanding, Advisor Sigafoos concluded that Student Sigafoos's basic trouble was that he was not really college material.

So Advisor Sigafoos got Student Sigafoos a job with the North Star Hockey Puck Corporation where today he is head of the puck-packing department and a happy man.

Advisor Sigafoos is happy too. He has time again to pursue his studies of Tricheobatrachus robustus, the hairy frog. At night he plays gin rummy with Walter M. Handzlik.
