Varied Role Played By Graham Memorial

By EDITH MacKINNON

The role of a student union in the life of the university community is a multi-purposed and vital one. In addition to serving as the heart of campus life and as the center of student extracurricular activity, the student union plays an important part in the educational program of the college.

Housed in its many-roomed interior are meeting places for campus organizations, offices and recreation facilities for hours of relaxation and informal association.

But the union is not just a building; in its duties to the student body it is also an organization and a program. It creates a hub around which the wheel of university life rotates and functions. Without it the wheel would cease to function in rolling the university toward further progress.

Serving then as a college community life center, the student union must at the same time fulfill a role in the educational program of academic life. The people who participate in the operation of the union are engaged in a training program, whether they are consciously aware of this program or not.

The foundation of this program rests on the rock of preparation for future positions as citizens, leaders, and members of a world society.

In a statement of purpose, adopted by the general membership of the Assn. of College Unions at the national conference, April, 1956, the student union was described as following: "In all its processes it encourages self-directed activity, giving maximum opportunity for self-realization and for growth in individual social competency and group effectiveness. Its goal is the development of persons as well as intellects."

This then is your student union, Graham Memorial, which this week celebrates its 25th birthday. It is a union of which the Carolina student body may be justly proud, a union which is consistent in its effort to serve the university community, and a union which strives to the limit of its ability to fulfill its role as a unifying force in the life of the University of North Carolina.

Happy birthday, Graham Memorial!

other student organizations, Lambeth concluded more adequate facilities will mean expansion of the board's weekend entertainment program, an ending of GM's present decentralized program, which utilize different buildings on the campus, and a larger program with increased facilities for people interested in GMAB.

In past years, when GMAB was known under the title "Student Union Activities Board," its activities were increasingly hampered and curtailed by the restrictions imposed on it by the present 25-year-old building, Lambeth pointed out.

GMAB, in one form or another, has been in operation since Graham Memorial was erected here 25 years ago. Today is Graham Memorial's birthday. So too is GMAB's anniversary—25 years of service and accommodation to the student body.

Committee Hoping For New Building

Realizing the fast growing need for a new student union, adequate in size and central in location, student leaders and administrative officials are looking to the future in the hopes of a new building.

Continuing in a four year long drive to acquire funds for the building, the Graham Memorial Student Union committee is putting forth an all-out effort to present plans that will secure the necessary backing.

Financing the proposed new union poses the biggest problem to the committee. Hopes now rest on the committee's prospectus to be presented before administrative officials and University Vice President and Finance Officer William D. Carmichael's endorsement of the student union program.

SUPPORT

Carmichael has promised to lend his support in getting a high priority for the issue on the list of Consolidated University requests of the 1959 session of the N. C. Advisory Budget Committee.

Included in the prospectus will be pictures of other student unions, both external and internal features, statements of past leaders and administration leaders, statistics on needs for a new union, and possibly a suggested architectural plan.

until the last paragraph.

The council found the second boy guilty of plagiarism and suspended him indefinitely from school, and the other boy was acquitted.

It seems that the students are not aware of the ramifications of the word "plagiarize." Clearly, it means to copy another's work and hand it in as one's own, but it also entails the use of ideas that belong to somebody else as one's own, with no credit given to the author of the ideas. The council reminds the students again, that whenever a student use another's ideas, he should either give the author credit or rework the ideas until they have become a part of his own thinking and exhibit themselves as such.

'Dramatiques' Is New Feature

Graham Memorial has added another feature to its Sunday evening entertainment program. The new feature is the Petite Dramatiques series which will be given at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of GM.

"Caligula," a play about the insane Roman emperor who ruled the world, will be presented April 7 as the first production in the series. It will be directed by Bettina Jinet, managed by Hope Sparger, and produced by Seamon Gottlieb. The cast will be as follows: Caligula—Lloyd Skinner, Caesonia—Page Williams, Scipio—Sam Baker, Cherea—Taylor Williams, Helicon—Ken Lowry, Cassius—Bole Ketter, Meria—George Hill, Mucius—James Sebrest, Lucius—Jack Jackson, Intendant—Ted Parker, Mucius' Wife—Hope Sparger, Poet—Darwin Solomon, and Patrician's Wife—Amanda Meggs.

May 5 "Sweeney Agonistes" by T. S. Eliot will be presented. It is to be directed by Nancy Stevens.

At a date to be announced later, "An Evening of Tennessee Williams" will be presented under the direction of Page Williams and Taylor Williams.
