Racism Hindering Propaganda Fight

Making progress against Soviet propaganda is rendered all the more difficult for the free world because of the presence of racism, it was declared here Friday night by Professor George Catlin of McGill University in Montreal, Canada.

Catlin made the statement in delivering the second 1957 Weil Lectures at 8:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall. His topic was "Can We Co-Exist with Colonialism, Imperialism, Racism and Sovietism?"

Segregation has been called by Bishop Jernard of Louisiana as a "un-American, unCatholic and un-Christian" and Catlin declared he believes that position is the correct one.

Comparing the struggle for independence in South Africa with struggles for freedom and democracy in other nations, Catlin said it is true imperialism called the tune in many places in Africa.

But he added "racism was no less a test for our civilization."

The west and the free world must be self-critical because in the "war of ideas" the position of the west must be set forth with clarity and without ambiguity, Catlin said.

"No headway can be made against Soviet propaganda in South Africa unless all species of the Nazi race theory which disfigures South Africa can be discarded and all people are made to feel that their contributions are a part of a common enterprise of freedom."

Catlin will speak tonight on "The Commonwealth of Free Nations and Its Leaders." The final lecture will be given at 8:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

An honor graduate of Oxford, Catlin won a fellowship to Cornell University in 1923-24 and remained there on the faculty until 1935.

He has written a number of books, the most prominent of which is "The Science and Methods of Politics."

William Lee Ballenger (right) the big experiment

Theory Said Disproved

The Physics Dept. here concluded an experiment yesterday designed to prove or disprove a theory held by self-styled physicist Lee Ballenger, recent visitor to the UNC campus.

Dr. E. D. Palmatier, chairman of the Physics Dept., indicated in an interview yesterday that the Dept. had conclusively disproved Ballenger's theory.

"He (Ballenger) violated two major laws of physics," Dr. Palmatier pointed out. "There were (1) the Conservation of Energy and (2) the Conservation of Angular Momentum."

"Mr. Ballenger claimed as a prediction of his theory that two spherical magnets, constructed so that the center of each was a south pole and the surface of each a north pole, would rotate around one another if brought into close contact.

Editorship Of Quarterly Open For Applications

Qualified students, either graduate or undergraduate, who are interested in applying for the editorship of the Carolina Quarterly, UNC literary magazine, for the coming year have been asked to see Miss Jessie Rehder of the English Dept. in 109 Bingham Hall.

Those not being able to personally see Miss Rehder have been asked to send a letter of application to the Quarterly Advisory Board, in care of Miss Rehder, before April 28.

The new editor is not required to come from the present staff, according to an announcement, but should be somewhat familiar with publishing procedure and should be prepared to work on the last stages of the Spring issue for this year.

Liberal Arts Courses Criticized; Lee Says Program Must Change To Meet Needs Of BA Students

Fleece Tapping To Be Staged Monday At 7

Carolina's highest honorary organizations will stage their annual colorful performance next Monday.

The Order of the Golden Fleece, highest men's honorary, will tap new members in Memorial Hall at 7 p.m. The Valkyries, coed honorary, will hold its annual sing immediately afterward.

Fleece tappings are held in near darkness, with only the light from two spotlights sweeping the audience. Two hooded and robed monsters roam the aisles and seats, snatching up the new initiates.

The Valkyrie Sing is sponsored by the coed organization for all organizations on the campus. Groups enter original songs and skits in the contest. Winners will receive trophies.

Both organizations will hold their performances on the stage of Memorial Hall. Doors will be locked at 7 p.m. for the Fleece tapping, instead of 7:30 p.m. as announced elsewhere, according to a spokesman for the Fleece. The ceremony is scheduled to start shortly afterwards, said the spokesman.

The Fleece taps men from any and all phases of University life, regardless of field or year. Alumni have been tapped, as well as faculty and administrative personnel and students.

Special Session Of Legislature To Be Tuesday

The Student Legislature will meet in a special session Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Phi Hall to discuss the $100,000 budget for next year.

The legislature will also discuss student government for 1957-58, according to Miss Jennie Margaret Meador, secretary. She urged all members to be present.

The Finance Committee of the student legislature will meet Monday from 2-5 p.m. and Tuesday from 2-4 p.m. in the Woodhouse Conference Room to consider the proposed student government budget for 1957-58.

Jerry Oppenheimer, committee chairman, urged all people interested in the budget to either attend or send representatives to the meetings.

news in brief

Poland Gets Offer

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States was reported Friday night to have offered Communist Poland economic aid amounting to about 75 million dollars. The purpose has been defined by President Eisenhower as being to encourage a "trend" to independence in eastern Europe.

The Chief of the Polish Economic Mission here, Henryk Kotlicki, said that an American offer had been made and that "we shall continue negotiations so we can come to an agreement." Kotlicki would not disclose the size of proposed aid program, which would consist of credits for farm and mine machinery and provision for surplus farm commodities.

Suez Crisis

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Israel was reported Friday to have told the United States that Middle East fighting may flare up again if any Suez settlement fails to life the ban on Israeli shipping through the canal.

Diplomatic sources disclosed this as bad weather foiled an attempt by Secretary of State Dulles to fly to New York for a Middle East consultation with Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld of the United Nations.

Human Torches

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Police Friday staged a massive hunt for two men who, full of hate and booze, made human torches of five men and a woman quietly enjoying themselves in a neighborhood bar.

Detectives say four men were thrown out of the bar last night for forcing their attentions on a woman patron. Two of them returned in a rage and touched off a flash fire that killed six and hospitalized three. The fire occurred at 11:40 p.m. Thursday night in the Club Mecca, a quiet neighborhood cocktail bar on Normandie Avenue in the south central district. Arrested and booked on suspicion of murder are Clyde Bates, 36, and Oscar S. Brenhaug, 44, members of a signboard wrecking crew.

Flood Of Money

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — (AP) — Money literally gushed out of a three-block-long, rain-swollen storm sewer Friday and hundreds of persons lined the streets snatching up the soggy currency.

Police Chief Murell Waddle said he could offer no explanation, and estimated upwards of $1,000 had been picked up. The most popular theory offered by townspeople was that heavy rains which had fallen since the first of the week flushed out money that had been hidden away in the sewer.

Postal Services

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee voted Friday to notify Postmaster General Summerfield he can count on at least 17 million dollars more to maintain full postal services through June 30.

Summerfield wants 47 million. He had threatened to curtail some services drastically—beginning today—unless the full amount was forthcoming from Congress.

The House committee agreed yesterday to consider next Friday the extra 30 million dollars the Post Office Department says it has to have this year.

But Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the Appropriations Committee accused Summerfield of pulling "an unadulterated bluff." "They'll deliver the mail," he told the House in a speech from the floor.

Probe Is Underway For Possible Changes

Dean Maurice W. Lee of the UNC Business Administration School Friday night challenged the liberal arts faculties to "make the liberal arts more liberal" than they are now.

He told members of the fourth graduating class of the Executive Program liberal arts courses "are neither liberal nor capable of giving an appreciation of the arts."

Dean Lee said "They are not cultural courses, they are often meaninglessly repetitive and they are often more fragmented and diluted than anything within the imagination of earlier day faculty members in business administration."

Too much "how-to-do-it" emphasis in the education of men going into business, he said, is being replaced by insistence on building a strong background in the arts and sciences as a preliminary to professional business training.

Dean Lee also disclosed a current investigation here on the possibility of changing the education system used for business students.

A proposal is now being explored with the College of Arts and Sciences to have business students

UNC May Have Hungarian Coed Next Fall

A Hungarian woman refugee student may soon come to Carolina as a coed, with the aid of the Student Legislature, the combined six women's sororities and the University Scholarship Committee.

Miss Jackie Aldridge, Hungarian Refugee Committee Chairman, said yesterday upon completion of processing plans at Camp Kilmer, N.J., for acceptance of a woman refugee at UNC, she will become a student here, probably next fall.

"The Hungarian Refugee Committee has been diligently working toward the goal of settling a Hungarian on the Carolina campus. Now the goal is almost realized," said Miss Aldridge.

From the University Scholarship Committee will come a $250 tuition scholarship for the Hungarian woman refugee, Miss Aldridge said she would live in a dormitory and her room-rent would be paid by the Student Legislature.

Her board will be provided for by the women's sororities; she will eat for six weeks at each sorority.

Miss Aldridge said "The Refugee Committee hopes that ... our Carolina students will go out of their way to help her learn English ... and to help her with little problems, such as finding her way around this huge campus."

The Campus Chest, the Chapel Hill community churches, and the YWCA will provide the Hungarian refugee with incidental expenses, clothes allowance, and summer and vacation living quarters.

The granting of the tuition scholarship completed the Refugee Committee's efforts on the project. The conditions of the scholarship are that (1) she can meet the admissions requirements for University entrance and (2) that all her expenses have been foreseen and provided for.

Students take three years of pre-professional education instead of two before starting the intensive program leading to the Master of Business Administration degree.

The proposal is still in its early stages and has not come before the College at this time, according to the Arts and Sciences dept.

Dean Lee said most schools of business administration in the country are now insisting upon an approximate 50-50 division between the two studies.

He listed three things wrong with the vocational concept of business training in collegiate schools of business:

1. College teaching would always be out of date.
2. No two business firms follow identical methods.
3. The business firms can do a much better job than the universities can in teaching how to do a particular operation as the firm wants it done.

"If the universities have nothing better to offer than this vocational training it would be well to withdraw their sources of funds for such education," he said. This can be done "more cheaply and better" by business firms.

In order to strengthen and make more meaningful the businessman's background, he must have more and not less work in the arts and sciences, Dean Lee said.

He specified six areas of a pre-professional training:

1. Social sciences, including economics, political sciences, sociology and economic geography.
2. Biological and physical sciences, meaning chemistry, geology and biological sciences.
3. Behavioral sciences or anthropology, sociology and psychology.
4. Humanities, including literature, music, philosophy and the fine arts.
5. Quantitative subjects, including mathematics, statistics, accounting.
6. Communication arts, which means learning to write and speak so they can communicate effectively their meaning to others.

Dean Lee said the number of people majoring in business administration will double in the next ten years. Graduate enrollment will be even more spectacular, he said.
