

New Law Student Officers

row are Treasurer Luke R. Corbett, Pinehurst, and Chief Justice Lemuel S. Blades III, Elizabeth City. These five will represent the Law School students at a national meeting this summer at New York University.

Varied Program Is Plan Of Summer Piano Clinic

By FRANK WALMSLEY
Teachers and students attending UNC's seventh annual Clinic for Piano Teachers and Students this summer will hear the remarkable Hungarian pianist Lily Keleti in a special recital.

The Clinic, to be given June 24-27, was originally started by the UNC Extension Division and Music Dept. as an in-state service, but has developed to nationwide importance.

IMPRESSIVE PROGRAM
Dr. William S. Newman, professor of music and chairman of piano instruction at UNC, announced an impressive program to be offered at the clinic. In addition to Lily Keleti, several other accomplished pianists will give recitals. There will also be lectures, guest speakers, demonstration lessons and movies, and special awards.

"The purpose of the Clinic," Dr. Newman said, "has always been to provide the rich experience of a balanced refresher course for teacher and students at all levels who are eager to keep up-to-date in the piano world."

PROBLEM SURVEY
The Clinic endeavors to aid teachers and students through a survey of the basic problems of the piano. Technical drills and touches, questions of interpretation and historical styles, performance in public, and the related skills of sight reading, playing by ear and keyboard harmony are some of the topics to be discussed, Dr. Newman said.

Promising young high school students of several North Carolina teachers will give a joint recital on the Clinic's opening night. Another recital will be given by Mrs. Ruth S. Phillips, teacher at Council Bluffs, Iowa, later in the Clinic.

Two well-known authors and specialists in their fields will be guest lecturers. Mrs. Madeleine Carabo-Cone, co-author of "How to Help Children Learn Music," and Mrs. Ruth Halle Rowen, author of "Early Chamber Music," both from New York, are the guest speakers.

GOLDES TO ATTEND
According to Dr. Newman, Lillian and Walter Golde, two of North Carolina's most beloved teachers, will attend the Clinic and share their broad experiences with the teacher and students.

Dr. Newman will conduct afternoon and morning sessions in the well-equipped, summer-cooled choral room of Hill Music Hall. However, participants will have ample time to attend individual conferences and music exhibits and for recreation.

As at past Clinics, the UNC Extension Division will award Certificates of Achievement on the final day of the Clinic.

The Clinic for Piano Teachers and Students operates on a non-profit basis and cost of attending is consequently low. Complete facilities of the University are available to Clinic attendees.

Council Officers Elected Before Spring Holidays

Last Tuesday when most of the campus was preparing for the upcoming holidays Student Council met and elected Mac Patton, chairman, and Jay Walker, clerk, of Student Council for the coming year.

Patton, a member of Zeta Psi social fraternity, comes to the campus from Durham. Walker, a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity, hails from Roanoke, Va.

The Student Council, which acts as the Supreme Court on campus, was revised last year and now serves not only as a court of appeals but tries cases involving the campus code and reviews constitutions of student clubs.

Soccer Practice
All persons interested in playing soccer this year are asked to be on the intramural field today at 3 p.m. for practice.

Three-Day Southern Short Course Scheduled To Get Underway Today

Press photography—from technical processes of color film to "sensible procedures" for civil violence coverage will be analyzed at the eighth annual Southern Short Course in Press Photography set for today through Saturday here.

Some 200 cameramen and editors from nine Southeastern states are expected to attend the sessions.

The three-day short course will get under way this morning, with famous photographer Frank Scherschel telling of his photo assignments in Europe. During the past three years he has covered Big Four meetings, the Coronation, Grace Kelly's wedding and the Winter Olympics.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Climaxing the first day's session will be judging of the annual photo contest and selection of the "Southern Photographer of the Year." Announcement of winners will be made at a Saturday night banquet, concluding the 1957 short course.

SPONSORS
Sponsors of the trophies and ribbons and their contest categories are Durham Herald-Sun, advertising and public relations; Columbia State-Record, general news; Raleigh News and Observer-Times, spot news; Asheville Citizen-Times, portraits and personalities;

Three special awards to be given are the Tom Franklin Memorial Award for the best individual photograph; Graflex Award to the newspaper with the best picture display and Sylvania Flash Award for the best picture taken with a flash bulb or bulbs.

The "Southern Photographer of the Year" trophy goes to the winner of the most first, second and third place points in the 11 contest divisions. Duplicate trophies are awarded in the case of a tie.

COACH MCGUIRE
Two speakers are scheduled both the morning and afternoon sessions tomorrow, after which a "shooting session" will be held at 4 p.m. with Basketball Coach Frank McGuire and Lennie Rosenbluth among the camera subjects.

Tomorrow night has been designated "Manufacturer's Night," with discussion of news products and processes by representatives of firms producing photographic materials and equipment.

"Editor's Day" on Saturday will be highlighted by two discussions of very pertinent topics. Congressman John E. Moss of California will speak on "Unnecessary Secrecy in Government" and a panel will discuss "Photographic Coverage of Civil Violence."

Air And Navy Units To Hold Parade Today

The Air Force ROTC and Naval ROTC will hold a joint presentation of awards ceremony followed by a joint review and parade on Navy Field at 12 p.m. today.

Normally, during the school year the two units conduct separate drills for their respective organizations. However, as the climax to the year's drill activities, and in honor of the recipients of Unit awards, the joint review has been scheduled for this year, an announcement said.

The organization of the two units will combine to form a regiment, commanded by Midshipman Gordon B. Hall of the Naval ROTC Unit with Cadet Col. Memory H. Elmore as the Regimental Executive Officer.

Dr. James L. Godfrey, Prof. of English history and Chairman of the Faculty will represent Chancellor Robert B. House in receiving the review and in presenting awards to the Air Force ROTC Cadets and Naval ROTC midshipmen for excellence and distinctive achievement in various phases of their individual programs.

The public has been invited to attend this ceremony and parade. The event will be the only one during the year in which the Navy and Air Force ROTC Units perform jointly.

Grandstand seats will be available and there will be adequate space for parking on the south side of Navy Field.

Historical Co-Authors Will Discuss Their Book

A Reidsville native and a Virginian who now calls North Carolina his home have combined their writing talents to create a 572-page book, Rebels and Redcoats. The book has received rave notices from such periodicals as The Saturday Review, The New York Times Book Review, The Wall Street Journal, and The Chicago Tribune Magazine of Books.

Of Rebels and Redcoats, written by Hugh F. Rankin and George F. Scheer, the New York Times Review says, "Diaries, journals and letters are the substance of this book which tells the story of the American Revolution in the words of the men and women who were there. It is the personal history of the private lives of the generation which heard the birth cries of a nation."

"And it is often more revealing, lively and colorful history than the official records... The net result is a Cyclorama of a book." The two authors will discuss Rebels and Redcoats at a Bullis Head Bookshop Tea in the Assembly-Exhibition Room of the North Carolina University Library tomorrow at 3:45 p.m. The public has been invited to attend.

Rankin, currently a research associate in the Dept. of Research, Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., Williamsburg, Virginia, is a native of Reidsville. He attended Elon College, the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and did graduate work at UNC where he was a Morehead Scholar.

Scheer is a native of Richmond, Virginia where he attended the University of Richmond. He is a professional journalist, and has been a sales and advertising manager for the UNC Press.

It is rumored that in spite of their serious historical interest and ability to make history come alive, Scheer and Rankin both have a flair for humor when on the public-speaking platform.

Japanese Professor

The Comparative Literature Curriculum here will sponsor a talk tonight on "The Social Status of Women as Revealed in Modern Japanese Novels" by Prof. K. Hayashi.

The public has been invited to hear the talk at 8 p.m. in Bingham 103. Professor Hayashi is in Chapel Hill for the spring semester as visiting professor, teaching Comparative Literature 65, a survey course on literature of China, Japan, India and Arabia.

During the fall Professor Hayashi was teaching in Massachusetts. He will return to Japan at the end of the scholastic year.
