Tanganyikan Visitor Finds The Hill As Hot As Africa

By MARY MOORE MASON

Bertha Akim smiled broadly and said in perfect English, "Yes, I am the only woman from Tanganyika, East Africa, to ever visit the United States. And," she continued, wiping her brow, "I think that it feels hotter here than it does there."

Miss Akim, a member of the Wanyakysa tribe, was a visitor of the Y on the Carolina campus Monday and Tuesday.

She arrived in America last July on the Bernard Van Leer and Atlanta Foundation scholarships to attend Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts.

"The first time that I saw the snow fall, I thought that when it fell on me it would turn me to ice," she laughingly reminisced.

Bertha went through the first six grades in Tanganyika, a U.N. trust territory of Great Britain, after which she went to Uganda for high school and then to Makereie College, affiliated with London University, for her higher education.

She summed up the problem in her country by saying "When the British came in they condemned everything they found there, but they didn't provide people with anything to take its place."

Comparing Westerners, she said, "English people are more reserved than are the Americans; it is difficult to see what the Briton's point of view is."

Miss Akim expects to return to Tanganyika in a few weeks. There she will teach in the training school where she was teaching before she visited the U. S.

According to her, a very small percentage of her people can read. Consequently, the people are not able to read the British published papers which publicized American race problems.

"The Mau Maus," she said as she got ready to leave, "in Kenya, which is near us, were rebelling against the Westerners who weren't playing the role of Christian that they set for themselves. However, the missionaries have done much good in my country, and have given the people an idea of the good side of Western civilization."

Deadline Set For Entrants In Contest

Attention dorms, sororities and fraternities. The deadline for entering sponsors for the Watermelon Festival Queen contest is noon, Monday, June 24. No late entries will be accepted.

Contest chairman Judy Davis asks that the entries be turned in, with a charge of $3 for each entrant, to the Office of Student Affairs on the second floor of South building. A dorm may sponsor more than one girl.

The sponsors' pictures will be posted in Y-Court from June 28 through July 2. Votes will be a penny each.

The three highest will be selected, from which the students and faculty will choose a queen by casting free votes on Wednesday, July 3, in Y-Court. The girl with the highest total will be crowned Queen at the Festival Wednesday night, with the runners-up as her court.

The Watermelon King will be chosen from the faculty by the Summer School Activities Council and will reign with the Queen over the festivities of the gala evening.

Bridge Winners Are Announced

Delores Abrams and Frank Scott, both graduate students, scored 157 of a possible 264 match points (59.5 per cent) to cop first place in the students' division of Monday night's master-point bridge tournament at Graham Memorial.

The next highest score in the tournament was rated by Nancy Thanington and Jerry Shields, who tallied 156 of the possible 264.

The one-point margin of victory was determined at 3 a.m. Tuesday.

In third place were Ray Norsworthy and Willis N. Pence. Fourth place was won by Margaret Rowland and Mrs. Arlene Campbell. Winning fourth place North-South were John Warlick and D. A. Ivey.

Fifty players participated in Monday's tournament. Of the 25 couples, 15 were student comprised. According to a spokesman for the group, this week's crowd outnumbered that participating last week.

3,302 Students Enrolled Here This Summer

A total of 3,302 students are enrolled at Carolina for the first term of the 1957 summer session to top last summer's registration of 3,140, according to Director of Admissions Guy B. Phillips.

This summer's first term enrollment is one of the heaviest since 1948, when 4,493 were enrolled.

According to Phillips, the 1957 figures show an increase in students at the General College and graduate levels.

Enrollment of out-of-state students has increased over last summer by 100, and of foreign students by 16. North Carolina students here first term number 2,726. Of the principal states represented, Virginia has 117 students; South Carolina, 60; Florida, 50; New York, 42; Georgia, 37; Pennsylvania, 29; West Virginia, 24; and New Jersey, 22. There are 35 foreign students enrolled.

One hundred fifty persons are currently attending the University for non-credit instruction in addition to the 3,302 regularly enrolled students.

Of this 150, 20 are enrolled in a 12-week Dental Assistant Pilot Training Program; 55 in a six-week College Chemistry Instructors Institute; and 75 in a four-week program for public health nurses in the School of Public Health.

Registration for the second term of summer school will begin July 15.

Coed Judy Dockery Reported Improving

The UNC coed who was injured in an automobile wreck recently, Judy Dockery, is reported to be "much improved."

Her mother, Mrs. J. S. Dockery, has reported that she hopes to be able to take Judith home from the hospital soon.

Miss Dockery suffered a slight concussion, severe bruises and a broken jaw bone in a wreck in Kentucky June 1 which took the life of Nancy Kiser, a rising senior at Woman's College.

From Rutherfordton, Miss Dockery "had no major breaks or cuts, but has been in much pain and is still quite uncomfortable," her mother reported.

When the accident occurred, Miss Dockery was traveling with other students to Yellowstone Park to work for the summer.

Chorus Wants More Members

Wanted—students, faculty and townspeople to sing in the Summer School Chorus.

The chorus, which began rehearsals last week, is under the direction of Thomas E. Sibley, a graduate student from Alabamale.

Sibley said, "Anyone, even if they plan to be here only one session, who would like to sing in the chorus may do so by merely coming to the rehearsals."

He also added that there are no voice tests to be taken nor any other prerequisites.

The rehearsals will be held each week on Tuesday and Thursday at 4 p.m.

Sibley, after serving two years in the army, completed his undergraduate studies at UNC, and is now a first year graduate student in the Music Dept. He plans eventually to teach in an elementary school.

Lost and Found

Having trouble finding your Summer School Weekly?

If you have been making like a big game hunter in order to find out what the scoop is on campus, your tracking days are over.

Copies of the Summer School Weekly can be found in neat little piles every Friday at Y Court, the library, South building and the lobby of Graham Memorial.

Music Clinic

Europe, both as a recitalist and as soloist with leading orchestras.

Her program includes: Bach-Liszt, "Prelude and Fugue in A Minor;" Mozart, "Sonata in D Major;" Chopin, Sonata No. 3 in B Minor;" Kodaly, "Szekely Kerserves" (Hungarian Lament); Bartok, "Rondo;" Dohnanyi, "Ruralia Hungarica;" Strauss-Dohnanyi, "Fledermaus Valse."

The four outstanding North Carolina high school pianists and their teachers are Eleanor Smith, pupil of Fletcher Moore at Elon College; Sandra Lundin, pupil of Charles Vardell of Flora MacDonald College; Linda Waldrop, pupil of Edwin Gerschefski, dean of music at Converse College; Robert Vernon Fulk Jr., who is a Morehead Scholar, pupil of Mrs. Sam Troy of Wilmington.

Eleanor Smith's program will include selections from Bach, Mozart, Haydn, Grieg, Godowsky and MacDowell. Sandra Lundin will play selections from Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, MacDowell and Chopin.

Linda Waldrop will play three Chopin etudes and his "Scherzo in B-flat Minor." Robert Vernon Fulk Jr., will complete the program with Schumann's "Allegro affettuoso," first movement from Concerto in A Minor.

The audience has been invited to attend a reception for the performers and visitors presented by the Music Department, the Extension Division, and the Summer Activities Council immediately after the program in Graham Memorial.

Hollywood Anyone?

One can never tell where Hollywood talent scouts may be lurking. Ava Gardner was dug out of an eastern Carolina sandhill and Andy Griffith was found in a hardware store in Chapel Hill.

Now the Summer School Activities Council wants to give you the chance to begin a meteoric rise to stardom. To this end, they have arranged a talent show to be held in connection with the annual Watermelon Festival.

Anyone interested in the possibility of a Beverly Hills address is urged to contact Andrea Stalvey, who lives on the third floor of Alderman.

The show must go on!

Panhel, IFC Councils Give Funds to Nursery

The Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils of UNC have recently presented checks totaling $395 to the Chapel Hill Recreation Center and to the Victory Village Day Nursery.

Sallie Price, Panhel president, and Tucker Yates, IFC president, presented the checks. The Chapel Hill Recreation Center received $150 and the nursery received $245.

The nursery keeps children of married UNC students during class hours.

The money was raised at a concert featuring Richard Maultsby and his orchestra and co-sponsored by Panhellenic and the IFC.
