

CAROLINA CARAVAN

First Game Since 1915; Fetzer To Get Award

By JAKE WADE

When Clemson meets Carolina in Kenan Stadium here Saturday, it will be the first football game between the two schools since 1915.

The contest was played at Greenville, S. C., and the Tar Heels won by 9-7. "Doggie" Trenchard of Princeton was Carolina coach then and Dave Taylor, later to become a distinguished physician, was captain.

The two teams had met four times previously, with the first game played in 1897 with 200 in attendance. Carolina won by 23-0. In 1901 Clemson beat Carolina at Charlotte, 22-10, before 1,000. In 1903 it was a Carolina triumph at Chapel Hill. And then, in 1907, Clemson won by 13-6 before a whopping crowd of 5,000 at Columbia.

Examining the archives about these ancient games, one always finds some interesting information, dear to the hearts of those still with us who happened to be there. No records have been located here of Carolina's 24-0 victory over Vanderbilt, but recently some details came to light. Judge W. A. Devin of Oxford, a retired Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court, played for Carolina in that game and ran 95 yards from the T formation for a touchdown. Judge Devin tells intimates he was able to do it only because of "beautiful interference."

BULLETIN BOARD:—Holders of those coveted tickets to the Queen's game between Maryland and Carolina at College Park on Oct. 19 should get the kickoff time straight. This has been changed to fit into Her Majesty's (hope that's correct) schedule. The kickoff now is slated for 2:15 p.m. Maryland time, which is 1:15 p.m. North Carolina or Eastern Standard time. Maryland will still be on Daylight.

One Tar Heel player who may have been missed by the Tar Heels against N. C. State was sophomore quarterback Nelson Lowe. Lowe, who is a splendid passer, did not dress that day because of an injury. The Tar Heels could have used sharper passing. Some observers are convinced that one reason passing was not better was because of the muggy weather, making the ball hard to handle.

THIS AND THAT:—With veteran announcer Dick Jamerson taking it easy these days on account of a heart attack earlier in the year (although he is well and back on the job in the classroom), two newcomers are handling the P. A. at Carolina's football games. The silver voices, inaugurated last week, belong to Joe Marnick of Charlotte, one time boxing star and coach here, and Pat Earey, the new Tar

N. C. State Prepares For Terps

RALEIGH, Sept. 27 — (AP) — There was no contact work today as North Carolina State College reviewed all phases of offensive and defensive play in preparation for Saturday's game with Maryland.

Coach Earle Edwards and his assistants placed much emphasis on punting with backs Dick Hunter, Ken Trowbridge and Dick Christy doing the booting.

Jim Sciarretta, who attempted a field goal against Carolina last Saturday, looked good as he practiced field goal and extra point kicking.

The team will leave Raleigh by train tomorrow morning and is due to arrive in Washington tomorrow afternoon.

Heel swimming coach. Both have had previous experience. Soccer coach Marvin Allen and cross country coach Dale Ranson are working out their men daily for the fall campaign. Tar Heel athletes on training table soon will have a brand new private room in which to eat. It's being added to the Monogram Club, the University's popular dining room which is taking care of the athletes now in the main area.

CLEMSON GAME!—Clemson is sending a large following of alumni and patrons to its game here Saturday with the Tar Heels and Joe Sherman, head of Clemson's public relations, has arranged picnic grounds. Both Clemson and North Carolina will have a Goff in Saturday's game, the former a quarterback and the latter a halfback. Four Smiths are on Carolina's squad this year, two of them ends. Halfback Wade turned in a fine performance last week. Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois will be a guest at the game, and also a ceremonial feature will be the presentation of the first "Service to Sports" award from the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association to Robert A. (Coach Bob) Fetzer, long time beloved athletic director at the University, who retired several years ago to become executive secretary of the Morehead Foundation.

Frosh Football Team Could Be One Of Best Ever At Carolina

By ERWIN FULLER

Coach Bud Carson is happy. The sincere, hard-working freshman mentor has just reason to be pleased; for under his supervision, he has about 70 of the finest football prospects in the nation. The former UNC tailback (during the Snavely era) is pleased to note that of his candidates, more than half are native Tar Heels.

Carson feels that his group is making "satisfactory progress" in their preparation for the season's first contest with Maryland's Baby Terps on October 4 in College Park, Md. "Of course," he continued, "it's a tremendous jump from high school and prep school football to our system here at UNC, and we can't expect our boys to make the change overnight."

The Maryland game, Carson feels, will be the toughest affair of the five-game slate for his squad. Carson describes the Maryland unit as a "very good freshman team, supposedly one of the top groups in the country. Its recruiting staff did an excellent job, especially in the Pennsylvania region, and from what we can hear, they've landed some very promising boys." Last year the Tar Babies handed the College Park Frosh eleven a 21-7 thrashing.

Carson, however, is far from quaking at the thought of meeting the Maryland group and those opponents who will follow. "After all,

Lennie Rosenbluth Inks Contract With Warriors PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26 — (AP) — Lennie Rosenbluth, All-America basketball forward at the University of North Carolina last season, signed a contract today with the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Assn.

Rosenbluth, who led the Tar Heels to a 32-0 record and the NCAA basketball championship, scored 2,045 points during his three-year varsity career.

The 6-5, 185-pounder was the Warrior's first choice in the NBA draft last spring.

Philadelphia leaves tomorrow for pre-season training at Hershey, Pa.

BIG RUGGED TACKLES

Carolina tackles Stu Pell (left) and Leo Russavage will be ready to try to "hold that Tiger" Saturday afternoon in Kenan Stadium. Both boys are veterans and should see a lot of action as the Tar Heels meet Clemson in their second straight conference game.

Tar Heel Gridders Looking Forward To Clemson Game

If you think last Saturday's loss to N. C. State was a disparaging blow to the morale of the Carolina Tar Heels, you're wrong.

Likewise, if you think the Tar Heel players are nursing deflated egos this week, you're also wrong.

On the contrary, the Tar Heel players are looking to this Saturday's Clemson Tiger game with keen anticipation—eager to break into the win column.

Coach Jim Tatum has repeatedly emphasized to his team the imporance of not making mistakes. In fact, he has stated simply, "Football is a game of mistakes. The team making the fewest is the winner every time." That was the case last Saturday against State. In a game of frequent and obvious goofs by both teams, State reigned supreme.

The Tar Heels didn't live up to their potential last week and that's all the more reason why they're pointing to the Clemson game. It's a challenge, but even more than that, it serves as a kind of proving ground. The 100 yards of Kenan Stadium soil will be used again this week to show all the skeptics among the Tar Heel rooters that the 1957 grid machine is not another flash-in-the-pan.

The Tar Heels have not played the Clemson Tigers since 1915 and, furthermore, there have been only five games played in a series that started in 1896. UNC holds a 3-2 margin thus far.

The Tar Heels are expected to be ruled at least two touchdowns underdogs this week based on last Saturday's results. Clemson's 65-0 frolic over outclassed Presbyterian showed only one thing—Coach Frank Howard has not been loafing this fall in pre-season drills.

According to the UNC scout report, prepared by Coaches Emmett Cheek and Fred Tullai, the Tigers have a strong and experienced line this year with only one sophomore starter. The backfield, for the most part, is inexperienced, but is loaded with talent.

Harvey White, a 6-2, 200-pound former All-South Carolina player out of Greenwood, is the starting quarterback and despite his bulk, is considered very swift. A good passer, White, as a sophomore, appears to be a real comer for Coach Howard. He is backed up by some more bulk in Bill Barbary, a 6-3, 220-pounder, while Johnny Mac Goff, a slender passing wizard, is also a brilliant sophomore quarterback prospect.

The Tar Heels will depend on the same personnel, of course, that fell before State, but adjustments are being made this week and they are hopeful they have learned a few lessons. Practice has been hard in ironing out the kinks. Players, themselves, express confidence that they will be ready for the strong Orange Bowl team.

UNC Officials Named To Attend Meetings Two UNC officials and an officer of the Consolidated University will attend meetings this month in North Carolina and Georgia.

Vice president W. H. Whyburn and Dr. James Godfrey, dean of the faculty, will attend the annual meeting of the Southern Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities in Athens, Ga., Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

Sooners Take Week Off; Four Big Games On Tap

The Associated Press Since Oklahoma won't be monopolizing football attention this week end, fans can turn their attention to three or four games which may have far-reaching effects. Or they can loll in front of their TV sets and watch Stanford and Northwestern in a contest which likely will be interesting but inconclusive.

The big ones, from a national viewpoint, at this early stage of the season are Auburn at Tennessee, Southern Methodist at Georgia Tech, Houston at Baylor and Washington at Minnesota. On a slightly lesser scale there's Virginia Tech at West Virginia—a game that could decide the Southern Conference championship almost before the race starts.

Top-rated Oklahoma, after rushing the season with an impressive 26-0 victory over Pittsburgh, takes a week off. But Saturday marks the opening of the season for the Big Ten teams, including a couple of contenders for Oklahoma's No. 1 spot; the Ivy League and a couple of other biggies like Notre Dame and Tennessee.

Northwestern, which could head the second division in the Big Ten, sends tiny but tough Bob McKeiver against Stanford, which lists 5-10, 178-pound Jack Douglas as a "little" quarterback. This is the week's national television game and the lads who figure point spreads rate it as a "pick 'em" affair.

Tennessee's 1956 Southeastern Conference champions run smack into one of the leading contenders, Auburn.
