

Student Legislature Exams Slated Tonight

The exam for candidate-delegates to the 22nd Annual North Carolina State Student Legislature will be given tonight at 9 p.m. in Roll and Parker Lounges Nos. 1 and 2 of Graham Memorial.

The exam will include questions on parliamentary procedure and current events. Following the quiz interviews will be arranged to determine the delegates.

All UNC students are eligible to serve as delegates to the legislature, and anyone interested in student government has been invited by officials to attend the meeting tonight.

The State Student Legislature, which will convene in Raleigh, Nov. 7-9, is the most famous student legislature in the nation, according to UNC legislative officials, in that it has been functioning over such a long period of time.

Walters said the purpose of IDC is to provide for greater comfort and enjoyment of dorm residents through better government and promoting of social activities.

An IDC register is to be provided for members this year. The register will include names, addresses and phone numbers of all IDC members. Members will decide tonight on the time of their monthly meetings.

An IDC Queen will be crowned at a dance in Cobb dorm basement on October 11.

UNC Going 'All Out' For Aycock Tribute
By ANN FRYE

The University is going all out in paying tribute to William B. Aycock when he is installed as chancellor this Saturday in Kenan Stadium.

Activities honoring Chancellor Aycock will get under way Friday night at a reception for Chancellor and Mrs. Aycock in Woollen Gymnasium. President and Mrs. William Friday will be in the receiving line along with the chancellor and his wife.

A number of exhibits during installation day, Oct. 12, will be

GMAB's Sound & Fury Is Headed By Pridgen

The spotlight is on G. C. Pridgen, both literally and figuratively, for he is the chairman of the Graham Memorial "Sound and Fury" committee.

"Sound and Fury," as any old student will tell you, is the UNC musical and its presentation is one of the high points of the Carolina year.

Last year "Sound and Fury" presented "Thieves Holiday," a rollicking musical built around the theft of the fabulous Pizpur diamond during Mardi Gras in New Orleans. The audience met such personalities as Marina, an exotic diamond thief; Joey Puccini, a witty proprietor of the Green Door bar; and three gay college students.

The script this year, according to Pridgen, was written by a Carolina student and a professor and the production has been planned for the spring. This will allow more time for work on casting and sets and chorus than if "Sound and Fury" attempted also to have a musical in the fall.

Pridgen is working on forming a committee for the production, and there are still vacancies.

This is an excellent opportunity for all you amateur Sargh Bernharts and Cecil B. Demilles," he said, "for "Sound and Fury" is an organization of students who love the theater and want to write, produce, direct, star in and do other work themselves on a musical.

"As anyone will tell you who saw the musical last year, you don't have to have a wonderful voice or
