Red Chinamen:

The United States' policy toward Red China must be restudied and revised.

This was the theme of former Secretary of State Dean Acheson's talk some two weeks ago. What should be added, and what he neglected to add, is that the U.S. should now recognize the reality of Communist China, Moreover representatives of the Communist regime should be given a seat in the United Nations.

The necessity for this major revision should be obvious. Standing out boldly as the primary reason is the fact that the Communist regime is the political control of the nearly 500 million people of the geographic area called China. Moreover, it may be noted from the writings of many noted students of Chinese affairs that the revolution in which the Communists gained control of China was a popular one. The people wanted communism because they saw in towns across the Russian border people who were clothed better and ate better than the Chinese people under the Nationalist regime of Chiang Kai-shek, No amount of propoganda can obliterate this fact.

Nor can anyone say today that the average Chinese does not eat. better, does not travel more comfortably, is not clothed better, and has not more industry that he can boast about than ten years ago when the Nationalist regime was still grimly hanging onto power. #### MISSISSIPPI STATE COLLEGE:

The incidents arising from the integration of Little Rock and Tennessee High Schools have left a dark blot on the heretofore clean slate of the South and of the United States.

Such action as was taken by radicals on both sides of the question is inexcusable, and has cost the United States immensely in the loss of world wide respect.

· Violence in opposition to the integration of public schools is not the answer. Violence only leads to needless bloodshed. Opposition through legal methods is the only hope that the South has to prevent integration.

The situation in Little Rock last week with National Guardsmen and Federal troops standing guard is an example of the work of radicals and rabble rousers working for both sides . . . a tragic thing.

Many southerners regret President Eisenhower's decision to call out Federal forces, but we must face realities. The United States government is not and can not permit violence to block the order of its courts. We, here in the Deep South, can not win with force.

It is evident that many Southern people think that demonstrations . . . even violent destructive demonstrations will end integration attempts, but this only makes the Federal Government clamp down even more. The good citizens of the South certainly do not want mob violence, but the action of the Supreme Court in declaring segregation illegal, in many of their minds left them with seemingly no alternative.

Even more than violence, the proposed abolition of public schools in many Southern states would paralyze one great area of the United States. One hundred years of toil and sweat would be blotted out in one quick move by state legislatures. With Mississippi and many other Southern states ranking very low educationally in the United States, it would be cutting off the nose to spite the face if public schools were abolished.

Yes, the problems are many, but violence is not the answer . . . careful rational thinking and planning from both sides of the question with dis regard for petty hatred and jealousness is the only way that the problem can be solved. Let us not fool ourselves into thinking that we can force the United States government into doing something it has no intention of doing. We must work out the situation . . . together.

Silence Isn't So Golden.

There is a great deal of controversy over whether student funds may be handled privately without direct supervision from the Student Activities office.

Student body Vice President Don Furtado made a very admirable stand before the Student Legislature last Thursday night when he condemned any handling of student lunds without direct Audit Board supervision.

And Furtado-a man who seldom hides his convictions and is forthrightly frank and capable-yesterday vehemently reiterated his stand in a statemnt to The Daily Tar Heel.

Furtado was later pressured by Carolina Symposium officials (The Carolina Symposium is the recipient of the debated funds-taken from the direct control of the Audit Board) and University Party introducers of the bill enabling the symposium to keep its funds privately in the Bank of Chapel Hill into withdrawal of his statement. The Daily Tar Heel was urged to in which a handful of Chinese are involved can change this

Other reasons for de ure, as well as de facto, recognition of Red China should be obvious. Dur. ing the Korean War when 100.000 Chinese soldiers poured from behind the Yalu River to send the United Nations armies hurtling backwards and General Mac-Arthur to civilian life, the American government and the U. N. protested the action to a government to which they did not give cognizance of existance. It is a curious situation when you give up your life to citizens of a country that does not exist but whose bayonets seem awfully real. This problem simply stated is that if you come across a bear or a lion in the forest, you don't ignore its existence. You must, if you are to survive, recognize its, existence and find methods by which to deal with it. Moreover, the enigma of Red China has been a source of diplomatic imbarrassment to the United States as recently as this past summer. When several U. S. students went to China in order to investigate how the people lived there, the State Department was in a position of having to chastise the students because they went to a country where diplomatic recoging to reconcile this with Ameri-

United States to hide.

The votes on admission of Red China to the U. N. have each year become closer, and if the U.S. is to keep what little initiative it has left amongst the powers of the free world, it had better vote in Red China soon before the General Assembly goes over the head of the United States.

China holds the largest population of all countries in the world. It therefore becomes the number one manpower reservoir in the world in time of war. It stands at the gateway of the resource rich Southeast Asian countries of Burma, Malaya, and Indoesia, but perhaps new most important of all, with its new industry, China is becoming the largest factor in Asiatic trade

With the present prohibitive tariffs in the U.S., Japan and other smaller Asiatic strongholds are being forced to deal with China to maintain subsistence. The economies of these countries can become very readily China-dependent, rather than dependent on the U.S. If this comes about, and U. S. policies remain constant, the influence of the U.S. in Asia will be minor indeed.

The Return To Isolation: Ike's Administration

Whit Whitfield

The people of these United States are extremely fortunate that the "good ol' days" are gone forever, Remember when we were the undisputed world leaders under the Roosevelt and Truman administrations?

This was terribly unfair to the rest of the countries of the world. They hardly had a chance. Soviet Russia was then only a second rate power. Now, under the dominant leadership of President Eisenhower and the progressive Republicans we can no longer boast so loudly. This has been good for the national ego. We can hope to profit by our experience. We have been good winners for so long that it is only fair to take the real test of sportsmanship and see what type losers we are. This chance we owe to the foresight of the Eisenhower administration. During the Democratic administrations of Roosevelt and Truman the United States was ruler of the world. There was no one else who could boast as many ships, planes, etc., etc. Now the story is somewhat different. No longer do the our former friends have been lost. while others are looking to us with dubious eves. It might truthfully be stated that the year 1952 was the beginning of the end for American Supremacy. The mighty monarch of the western hemisphere has lost its golden touch.

This is a good sign. A sign that the world is not in a rut, so to speak-a sign of progress.

We may soon shed all our responsibilities as a world leader. We have given so many of them over to Soviet Russia that they are beginning to learn how to handle them. It is generally thought, we believe, that Russia is only too willing to accept them.

When this time comes, the United States can retire on its laurels and once more assume its isolationst policy of the early part of the twentieth century. This will save the taxpayers great sums of money. This is where the Eisenhower tax cut comes in. It would seem to many that this is a rather drastic way to reduce the budget, but not really. It is by the easiest guns, stategic military bases, etc., way, and that should be the way to do things-the easy way. This new twist of fate is a

VIRGINIA TECH:

Not too long ago nine men decided to remake the country. These nine judges of the Supreme Court were not in a hurry. They did not ask that the "reconstruction" be carried out over night/Within the South there were many men who sought ways to meet this "law" without violence. The plans of these men require time for fulfillment. Sadly, this time has not been allowed them. Impatient Federal Judges and the NAACP have decided that this "rebirth of the South" must take place now, this September! Why, I ask myself, won't they give us time to solve our own problems in our own way? We Southerners did not like the decision of the nine men in Washington but we do recognize authority and we realize that if we are to continue to live as a free people, we abide by the laws of our free society, no matter how distasteful these laws may be. But the use of Federal troops to force compliance with this new legal requirement certainly runs the risk of increasing the desperate feeling of the Southerners who see themselves coerced by a great powr from Washington. We are ready to comply with the law of the land but we will not have this law shoved down our throats with a bayonet.

Mary Baldwin Speaks On Asiatic Slant

Now that the Asian flu vaccine is being made available to the student body, each student should take advantage of receiving the inoculation.

The fact cannot be stressed enough that the reason the college is taking so many precautions is because of the epidemic tendencies of the disease. If measures were not taken in advance here at Mary Baldwin as well as throughout the United States, the entire national health program could be crippled should an epidemic develop.

Asian flu, even though it may attack large numbers of people, has an extremely low mortality rate and is in general a mild disease with few complications. It would be well to remember that out of a million and a half cases in Japan, there were only five deaths.

In most cities, this vaccine has not been offered to the public. The shots are being given only to people such as: transportation workers, physicians, nurses, city workers, and government officals.

The following facts about Asian flu were taken from an article in the Richmond Times-Dispatch on September 30. The disease itself lasts normally about a week. But "secondary infections" as pneumonia. and ear and sinus infections are common. Asian flu is person-to-person spread; similar to the common cold, it is contracted through droplets taken in through the nose and throat. It is contracted through contact with those having the disease; thus it is easy to see how fast an epidemic could spread through the Mary Baldwin community.

We do not desire that Carolina Symposium unity be shattered. But students should be informed of the governmental haggling over who should control what funds. We urge-as Furtado did-that the bill be vetoed by Student Body President Sonny Evans,

And we deplore silence when student funds are concerned. We will not keep quiet.

We should be proud that Mary Baldwin was one of the first colleges in Virginia to apply for the inoculations. Join with your fellow students and get your shot as soon as possible. Every shot given lessens the chance of an epidemic.
