

Booters Stage Rally For 5-5 Tie With Duke

Deadlock Is 2nd In Row For UNC

The Carolina varsity soccer team played its second straight tie game here yesterday, and had to come from behind again to do it, as it tied the Duke Blue Devils, 5-5.

Coach Marvin Allen's hustling squad had to bounce back from two goal deficits twice to gain the tie. At the half, the Tar Heels were behind, 3-1, and roared back to tie the game at 3 all early in the third quarter.

But Duke jumped ahead again by two goals, and it was a tough road back for the Tar Heels. With about seven minutes to go in the game, right wing Charlie Whitfield scored his first game of the season to put Carolina within one goal of a tie.

Thompson Scores

Then, with 30 seconds remaining in the regulation game, center forward Mike Thompson came to the rescue, and scored to deadlock the game at 5-5.

Two five-minute overtimes were played, but neither team could break the tie, although Carolina once came within an inch of scoring the winning goal.

Duke jumped to the lead early in the first quarter when Duke's leading scorer, center forward Ed Gauld blasted the ball into the Carolina goal.

Carolina bounced right back to tie it up, 1-1, when Rick Grausman scored his third goal of the year. But Duke was too hot to be denied, and goals by Gunner Schull and Ed Gauld put the Blue Devils ahead at the half, 3-1.

Game Tied

In the second, half the Tar Heels thrilled the crowd with a thrilling come back as John Ghanim and Coleman Barks scored within a few minutes of each other to deadlock the game at 3-3.

Duke then scored twice in the second half, on goals by Bill Power and Ed Gauld. Gauld's goal was his third of the game.

The tie marks the second time the Tar Heels have tied a conference opponent. Coach Allen's squad barely gained a 4-4 tie with Virginia's Cavaliers Wednesday. Carolina's next game will be with N. C. State next Wednesday.

Joe Quigg Will Probably Play Again

By BILL KING

Contrary to published reports, Joe Quigg, veteran Carolina basketball center is "getting along fine" and is expected to be able to continue his basketball career after this season.

Dr. E. M. Hedgpath, university physician, reported on Quigg's condition yesterday and said: "We hope and believe that Joe will be able to continue his basketball career after this season."

Quigg was injured November 7 in an intra-squad scrimmage in Woollen Gym and underwent a knee operation on November 8. Since that time, he has been convalescing in the university infirmary. No visitors are being allowed as yet.

The loss of Quigg was a tremendous blow to the Tar Heel cagers. He was one of the sparkplugs of last year's national championship team and it was he who dropped in the two free throws which beat Kansas in the NCAA finals last March.

Hathaway Improving

Veteran quarterback Curt Hathaway, who sustained a broken arm against South Carolina last weekend, is still confined to the infirmary but doctors say he is resting well and hope that he will be able to leave in the near future.

Curt broke both bones in his right arm late in the third quarter of the SC game and will have to sit out the rest of the season. The Norfolk, Va., junior is, however, being counted on for action next season.

Lineberger, Rattay Out

Another football casualty, guard Jack Lineberger has also been declared "out for the season" due to a pinched nerve in his neck. Lineberger is out of the infirmary but is wearing a neck brace. It was thought at first that he might possibly see action in the final game of the season against Virginia, but was declared out earlier this week.

Soccer goalie Jim Rattay is still in a Charlottesville, Va., hospital recovering from a fractured cheekbone suffered against the Virginia Cavaliers Wednesday. Rattay will probably be back in Chapel Hill by Monday.

Big Game In Durham This Afternoon

Saturday and no Carolina football. Seems a little odd doesn't it? But there is football in the immediate area, and a very important game it is. An Orange Bowl bid could easily be riding on the outcome of the Duke-Clemson game in Durham this afternoon.

The Durham fray, in fact, is perhaps the most important game of the year thus far in the Atlantic Coast Conference. It involves not only the Devils and Tigers, but the Tar Heels also. A Clemson victory today would put Jim Tatum's club in the thick of the Orange Bowl scramble.

Tatum said earlier in the week that he was not encouraging his club to attend the game, but most of the players with whom we've talked in the past couple of days are planning to take it in.

A good many other students are also making plans to watch the fireworks, thus we should have a pretty good delegation in Duke Stadium by two o'clock kickoff time.

Murals Department, A Functioning Organization

It is our opinion that the most underrated organization on the Carolina campus is the intramurals department.

Those students who attended and/or participated in the co-rec carnival Thursday night saw the competence of the murals department at its best. The program went off without a hitch and it was quite evident that a tremendous amount of time had been spent preparing everything to perfection. It was an interesting evening of entertainment—one of several big events which the intramural department sponsors each year.

Coach Walter Rabb has done a magnificent job as head of the intramurals department and his assistants have carried on the organization's functions in a praiseworthy fashion.

We Predict: Clemson To Win; State, Va. Also

We're almost ashamed to play "pick the winners" this week after blundering through our prognostications last weekend, but since we've vowed to try our power of prediction each week, we'll give it another whirl.

Right away we're confronted with Duke vs. Clemson and that's enough to make anybody want to go bury his head. The stakes could be the Orange Bowl representation, consequently both clubs will be up for this one. It should be a terrific battle and one touchdown could easily be the difference. We'll play the upset card this time and say: Clemson 20, Duke 14.

N. C. State goes out of the ACC and into the hot Southern Conference where it suffered its first loss of the season last week against William and Mary. The Wolfpack takes on Virginia Tech, a talented ball club. But State should have its guard up in this one. N. C. State 27, Virginia Tech 7.

Wake Forest also goes against a Southern Conference team, West Virginia. The Deacs are due to win after nine straight losses but it looks like another black Saturday for the Deacs. West Virginia 20, Wake Forest 7.

South Carolina and Virginia should have quite a tussle up at Charlottesville. This one ought to be close. We'll take the Cavaliers by a touchdown; something like 14-7. Maryland played Miami last night.

Tar Heel Runners Defend Title Tomorrow

Monday is a big day for the Carolina cross-country team, for it is then that the thinclads defend their Atlantic Coast Conference title in Winston-Salem.

The Tar Heels will be favored but will encounter some stiff opposition. Several of the other ACC schools have some fine individual runners and the going will not be easy for Coach Dale Ranson's crew. Ranson, incidentally, has won 17 titles in 34 years.

The undefeated Tar Heels (6-0) will be paced by Wayne Bishop, Dave Scurlock, Ev Whitley and Cowles Lipfert. Lipfert is a sophomore, Bishop and Scurlock are juniors and Whitley is a senior and captain of the runners.

Duke Tickets Purchase Urged

The ticket office has urged all students who have not bought tickets to the Duke game to do so immediately in order that they might take advantage of the ticket cut price.

Ticket officials appear concerned at the small number of students who have bought tickets and remind students that the half-price (& $2.00) deadline is Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock. After that the price of tickets will be the regular four dollars.

Under the student ticket plan,

ALL HAD BIG TIME Tri-Delt And Delta Sig Win Co-Rec Carnival

By DAVE WIBLE

Delta, Delta Delta No. 1 sorority and Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity combined their masculine and feminine skills in everything from button sewing to box hockey and emerged as the team champion in the action packed eleventh annual Co-Recreation Sports Carnival held Thursday night in Woollen Gym.

The SAE No. 1—Chi Omega No. 1 team carried off second place honors while SAE No. 2 Chi Omega No. 2, Grimes-Alderman No. 4, and Law School-Alderman No. 2 tied for third place.

Successful Carnival

Termed "the most successful carnival we have had" by officials of the Intramural Department and the Woman's Athletic Association who co-sponsored the affair, over 600 students representing 15 teams participated in the eight well organized events with an enthusiasm and team spirit never before seen on this campus.

Boys met their master in the button sewing relay and girls theirs in the baseball throw. The crowd's faces reddened when the ball wouldn't break as they sat on it, and men's egos went to a new low when their female partner made the better showing in the carnival games.

Aycock Presents

When the dust settled and the points tabulated Chancellor Aycock made the presentation of trophies. Winners were: John Jester (DKE)-Box Hockey; Sally Armfield (Chi O No. 1) Tether Ball; Maillary McGurk and Henery McInnis (Law Sch-Alderma No. 2) Ping Pong; Don Vinnik and Mary Montgomery (TEP-Alderman No. 3) Badminton.

Gail Willingham and Fred Daniel (Delta Sigma Pi-Tri Delt No. 1) Volleyball; Day McGavran and Charlie Covell (SAH-Town Girls) Archery; Bobbie Madison and Dick Cashwell (Pi-Ka-Pi Phi No. 3) Carnival Games.

The relay winners were: Delta Sig Pi and Tri Delt-I.

It was an evening full of fun and entertainment for participants and spectators alike, many of whom were heard to say, "we should do this more often."
