Last 'Teahouse' Showing Today

The final presentation of the Carolina Playmakers' production of "Teahouse of the August Moon" will be held tonight at 8:30 in Memorial Hall.

The teahouse is an institution for the orientals, an enchanted place in which the worries of the world may be lost in the beauty of a Geisha dance, the calculation of a wrestling match, and the age and wisdom of an August moon.

Since its opening on Broadway in 1953, "Teahouse of the August Moon" has delighted audiences all over the world with its quiet philosophy of acceptance and its spoof of military red tape.

Good seats for the production are still available, according to John W. Parker, Business Manager of the Playmakers. Since the show is in Memorial Hall, tickets will be available there at 7:30 each performance evening.

Tuesday Evening Series Offers Chamber Music

The fourth concert given this fall on the popular Tuesday Evening Series sponsored by the UNC Music Department will feature an unusual program of chamber music.

The program, which is free and open to the general public, will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The string players who will perform have appeared in numerous concerts. Edgar Alden, violinist; Dorothy Alden, violist; and Mary Gray Clarke, violoncellist, are members of the University String Quartet. Equally well known is the pianist Wilton Mason, a UNC faculty member and director of the University chorus.

The harpists, Suzann Davins and Emily Kellam, have made many solo appearances; both have studied under Salzedo whose works they will be playing. Earl Slocum, director of the University Orchestra, will be the featured flutist.

Besides the music for strings and piano generally expected in a concert of chamber music, seldom performed compositions involving harps and flutes will be heard.

Joining Slocum in a Beethoven Trio will be two members of the University Orchestra, Dorothy Hickok and Tish Harter. The Beethoven Trio in C Major, Op. 87, to be played by the flutists will open the Tuesday evening program. Two arrangements by Salzedo and several of his original works will be presented.

Compositions for the unusual medium of two harps will comprise the second group of numbers. The third movement of a Quintet for harp, flute, violin, viola and violoncello by Jean Cras, a French composer of the 20th century, will conclude the first half of the program. Works by Reger and Schumann will be presented after intermission.

news in brief

Benson Blasted

PARSONS, Kan., Nov. 16 (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler tonight predicted Secretary of Agriculture Benson would be "ditched by the Eisenhower administration as a political liability."

"But farmers can expect no relief since the Eisenhower farm program for which Benson has been to a large extent blamed will continue in operation no matter who is named to replace him," Butler said.

Butler, in a speech prepared for a third district Democratic fundraising dinner, termed the Eisenhower farm program "a study in failure."

Shoot Sputniks

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16 (AP)—Sen. John M. Butler (RMD) believes the United States should shoot down Russia's satellites as quickly as they are launched.

"I would like to see our armed forces shoot down Sputnik II," he said. "I think it is possible of accomplishment. We just say to them, you put them up and we'll shoot them down. I think we'll come to that some day, and it's not too far off."

Butler made the statement during a panel discussion which was recorded yesterday for broadcast tomorrow at 9 a.m. (EST) over radio station WFBR, Baltimore.

Toll Hits 44

Newport, Isle of Wight, Nov. 16 (AP)—The death toll of the flaming crash of a big flying boat on this English island rose tonight to 44. One of the 15 survivors, an Englishwoman, died in a hospital of her injuries.

Forty-three of the 58 persons aboard, including the eight-member crew, were killed outright when the four-engine Solent smashed into a timbered chalk cliff last night and burned.

All the 50 passengers were British.

Faces Issues

RALEIGH, Nov. 16 (AP)—Several issues, headed by the controversy over dancing at Baptist colleges, are on the agenda for the Baptist State Convention's 127th annual session which opens here Tuesday.

A new move to oust Dr. Harold W. Tribble as president of Wake Forest College may come up when the convention takes up the selection of Wake Forest College trustees.

Race Tension On Edge After White Girls, Negroes In Car

STATESVILLE, N. C., Nov. 16 (AP)—Negro and white citizens broadcast an appeal for calmness here tonight in the wake of a demonstration in front of the home of two white sisters who officers said they found in a car with two Negro men.

The girls and their mother were escorted from town at 8 p.m. last night, about an hour before a demonstration was staged at their home. Police Chief W. T. Ivey said Mrs. R. B. Lambeth and her daughters, Judith, 17, and Martha, 15, were taken to U. S. 70 west. He said they left the county, but would not give their destination.

While the demonstration was in progress, officers arrested 14 Negroes ranging in age from 15 to 22. Police said they were charged with disorderly conduct and were throwing rocks, shouting obscene remarks to white women and pushing white people off sidewalks.

Another group of Negroes, armed with rocks, were searched and sent home later in the night, Ivey said.

The appeal, broadcast from Radio Station WFIC, was by a white minister and a white educator and a Negro minister and a Negro funeral director.

All pleaded with parents to keep their children at home tonight as a precaution against mob-forming.

Ivey said in his opinion if nothing happened during the night, the incident would blow over.

Ivey said the two girls were found in a car with Alfred James Smith, 22, of Rt. 1, Hamptonville, and John Franklin Bruner, 20, of Rt. 1, Statesville, at 2:30 a.m. Thursday morning. Both men are Negroes.

Smith was charged with driving without an operator's license and with having an improper muffler which Ivey said caused officers to stop the car. Smith later was released under $200 bond and will face a hearing in City Court Monday, Bruner and the girls were released, the sisters to their mother.

Thursday night a cross was burned on the lawn of the Lambeth residence and a rock was thrown through a window of the house.

Ivey said the family was escorted from the city last night, about an hour before the demonstration which swelled to between 500 and 600 persons.

TALENT TRYOUTS

Tryouts for "Carolina Cavalcade of Talent" will be held tomorrow night in Memorial Hall. All persons interested in participating in the annual event have been asked to appear for the tryouts.

Rule Silent About Plans For Election

Both Editor Neil Bass and candidate Barry Winston yesterday urged students to take advantage of the opportunity to hear the issues involved in the recall movement debated at the candidates' meeting scheduled for 7 o'clock Monday night in Gerrard Hall.

The third candidate in the race for editor of the Daily Tar Heel, Paul Rule, declined to elaborate on the meeting ahead of time. He said, however, that he welcomed the opportunity to present his views and would gladly attend the Monday night parley for that purpose.

In a statement issued yesterday, Winston gave a preview of the issues he may bring up at the three-way discussion.

He said that, if elected, he would work toward the following goals: 1) a free, but responsible press, 2) objective news coverage, 3) unrestricted freedom of student expression, 4) intelligent editorial treatment of all issues and 5) technical competence.

He added that he was "wholeheartedly in favor" of the debate among candidates. "I feel that this will be an ideal opportunity for the clarification of all the issues involved," he added.

Editor Bass, however, expressed assurance that he will be re-elected in the recall vote November 26.

"It seems more apparent as time passes," he said, "that students who 'impulsively' signed the recall petition because they disagreed with editorial stands on professional football and the Asian influenza epidemic are now beginning to realize the dangers to free press of the recall election."

He also re-emphasized his belief that the recall movement was initiated by what he termed "a small political clique." He added that their plan to "ramrod the recall election through" had collapsed.

"The greatest advantage remaining for the recall clique," he continued, "is the possibility that a small percentage of voters will turn out on election day. The clique will vote 100 per cent."

"Student upholders of free expression must vote in mass to counteract the votes cast by the recall minority," he said.

The debate Monday night will be held in conjunction with informal meetings of both campus political parties. Following the discussion, the two parties will hold formal meetings at which time they will decide whether to endorse a particular candidate and, if so, which one.

Benny Thomas, GMAB president, will preside over the debate among contestants for the top newspaper post.

This Was Action As Boles Captured Annual Dukathon Race Saturday

By DAVIS YOUNG

In an extremely close and exciting finish John Boles won the Dukathon race from Chapel Hill to Durham yesterday, finishing the 13.6 mile grind in 82 minutes, 10 seconds, just one minute ahead of Ray Bagwell.

Driving rains narrowed entries from an expected 95 to some 40 participants in the annual event which got underway at 1:30 p.m. in front of the Chapel Hill Post Office.

Immediately preceding the race, Pretty Eleanor Williamson of Delta Delta Delta Sorority was crowned Dukathon Queen by Jim Menzel and Charlie Green of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity, the sponsoring organization.

She was presented an arrangement of flowers and a large silver cup and then was escorted to the pace car to ride in front of the lead runners the rest of the way.

The pace car was supplied by Crowell Little Motor Co. of Chapel Hill.

As the initial gun sounded, the runners scattered and set the pace according to their physical conditions. Many of the entrants had crews riding along side, giving encouragement and such staples as oranges, chocolate bars and towels to their favorites.

As the race progressed towards the destination the scattering of runners became more pronounced. When Boles and Bagwell entered the city limits of Durham the last runners behind them were over four miles away.

A large reception committee was on hand in Durham to welcome Boles as he crossed the finish line, closely pursued by Bagwell. Both boys looked fresh and in good condition.

Boles was given a trophy, and Bagwell and third place finisher, Ronnie McNeill, were given smaller tokens of their achievements in the form of cups. All finishers were given survivors medals.

Boles had this to say at the finish line: "I mainly ran for the trophy and was confident all the way although anything could have happened. I ran the first 13 miles with Bagwell and then we split. We had decided to run this way before the race, saying that the one who had it at the end would take it.

"We did considerable training for the race over the past week running from eight to ten miles a day. As for next year, we'll just have to wait and see."

Chairman Menzel called today's event highly successful, stating that if the weather had been more favorable, he would have expected even more entrants.

He said of the winner and second place finisher: "I watched both boys from the pace car and they never broke stride all the way. It was certainly a great achievement for them."
