Hoke 'No. 1' Simpson In Talent Calvalcade

By MARY MOORE MASON
Hoke Simpson, young man of renown in the world of "platter spinning," will be one of the star attractions of the "Carolina Cavalcade of Talent," annual talent show sponsored by the Y and GMAB, which this year will be Tuesday evening, Nov. 26, at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall.
Hoke, famous for his record "Number One," a calypso ballad about the achievements of the unbeaten Carolina basketball team, is now a sophomore at UNC. This week he is anxiously awaiting news of how successful his newest record released last Friday by ABC Paramount, is. The record has "Gig," a rocking ballad on one side and "I've Finally Found You," a rock and roll piece on the other side.
Hoke wrote "Gig" one afternoon this summer while he was lifeguarding at a pool near his home in Larchmont, N. Y. Although he has been kidded a lot about some fictional young lady named Gigi, he says that he actually wrote the song only using the name of the captain of the girls' swimming team at Larchmont because he thought "Gig" was such a catchy name.
"Hoke, how did you ever get your ABC Paramount contract," I asked.
"Well it's like this," the tall slender young man said with a gleam in his eye. "When I was in New York, I went up to the ABC Paramount office. After trying to get by the secretary for some time and practically getting thrown out of the office on my ear, I finally told her that I was a very close friend of George Hamilton of 'The Rose and the Baby Ruth' fame which of course was not quite the truth as I had never met George.
"I also told her that I had a very hot song that would sell a couple of million copies, and that every company in town was after it. I must have convinced her for I got an interview with Don Costa, head talent man, and then was offered a four-year contract with four one-year options."
When asked how he started on his road to fame, Hoke explained that he first got interested in singing and playing a string instrument when he was in the seventh grade. In one of the high school plays there was a Hawaiian scene calling for several uke players.
He was grabbed to be one of them. Since he didn't know how to play the instrument, Hoke took a few quick lessons back stage before the play, got interested and soon took guitar lessons.

Music Series Slated Tonight

Tonight's Tuesday Evening Concert Series will feature seldom-performed compositions involving harps and flutes in addition to music for strings and piano. This marks the fourth fall concert sponsored by the UNC Music Department.
The program of chamber music, to be held at 8 o'clock tonight in Hill Hall, will be open to the public. There will be no admission charge.
Flutists will open the program with the Beethoven Trio in C Major, Opus 87. Two arrangements by Sufredo and several of his original works will also be presented.
The second group of selections he compositions for the two harps. The first half of the program will conclude with the third movement of a quintet for harp, flute, violin, viola and violoncello by Jean Cras, a 20th century French composer. Works by Reger and Schumann will be presented after intermission.
String players in tonight's performance are Edgar Alden, violinist; Dorothy Alden, violist; and Mary Gray Clark, cellist. At the piano will be Wilton Mason, director of the University Chorus.
Harpists are Suzanne Davids and Emily Kellam. Earl Slocum, director of the University Orchestra, will be the featured flutist.

Statesville Trial Postponed To Dec. 2

STATESVILLE, Nov. 18 (AP) — The trial of one of two Negro men found in an automobile last Thursday with two white girls was postponed today until Dec. 2. The defendant, Alfred Smith, 22, is charged with driving without an operator's permit and with having an improper muffler on his car.
Police said that when they stopped the car to investigate the muffler they found the two white girls riding with Smith.

Federal Grant Will Go For New Laboratory

By ROBERT BARTHOLOMEW
A grant of $39,325 has been made to the UNC School of Medicine by the U. S. Public Health Service for the construction of a new research laboratory.
The new laboratory, which will be used by the Department of Pathology, will be located at Snipe's Farm north of Carrboro. This is University-owned property.
The total cost of the project, which is expected to get underway by the end of the year, is $78,650. The National Institutes of Health of the Public Health Service has granted half of this sum. The remaining funds will come from other sources, including the National Hemophilia Foundation.
The new research facility will be used for the study of hemophilia, a hereditary disease occurring in males but transmitted by females. The disease is characterized by the failure of blood to clot.
The project will be under the direction of Dr. K. M. Brinkhous, head of the Department of Pathology.
At the present time and for the past 10 years these studies of hemophilia have been carried on in the main building of the School of Medicine. Due to the expanded four year program in the School of Medicine and increasing research in the field of hemophilia, new quarters have been urgently needed for several years.
The Department of Pathology of the School of Medicine maintains a unique colony of dogs. These are the only dogs in the world known to have hemophilia.
This new research facility will provide increased kennel areas for these dogs which are so important in the study of bleeding diseases.
All of the dogs of the colony are descendants of Terry Bay, a female Irish Setter who was a transmitter of hemophilia. Terry Bay was brought to the School of Medicine 10 years ago.
Among Terry's numerous descendants there have been normal and hemophilic males, transmitters and normal females and the world's first female hemophilic dogs. These dogs have been kept alive by good

Chancellor Will Speak At Dialectic Installation

By DAVIS YOUNG
Chancellor William B. Aycock will be the main speaker at tonight's Dialectic Senate meeting starting at 8 o'clock in New West. He has been invited along with ex-Chancellor Robert B. House, who will introduce him.
The presence of Aycock and House is in conjunction with the inauguration of Di President Girard Boudreau. Aycock's speech will be on the subject "The Role of the Literary Societies at Carolina in the Future."
Former president of the Di, Larry McElroy, will swear in the new president. After the ceremony, Boudreau will address the assemblage on "The Challenge that the American College Youth Faces Today."
Boudreau has been active as president of Delta Upsilon Fraternity, vice president of Graham Memorial Board, chairman of the Carolina Mardi Gras and a member of the student body president's cabinet. He is currently reading for honors in history.
The Philanthropic Literary Society has suspended operations for tonight in honor of Boudreau's inauguration.
Boudreau gave the following statement to the Daily Tar Heel yesterday from his office: "I am honored by Chancellor Aycock and House's coming tonight. I am sure that their being in the historic Di Hall will enrich this traditional ceremony. I sincerely hope that the entire student body and faculty will come."

Air Views Before Students At Meet

By PRINGLE PIPKIN
Around 300 students heard the three editorial candidates in the recall election and their speakers talk and answer questions for about two and half hours.
Present Editor Neil Bass spoke first to say that the issue was "freedom of the press and freedom of expression." He then answered "nebulous charges" which were in a bill debated the Di and Phi.
He promised an "active and controversial newspaper," he said that he hoped the students recognized that "a recall would hamstring the editor."
He claimed that the recallers had tried to cloud the issue of freedom of the press by asserting that the present editor is "incompetent."
"If I did not honestly feel that I was competent, I would resign," Bass said.
Paul Rule said that it had been rumored that he had been influenced by the recallers or by Bass to run for editor, but he said that the truth was that he was running independently.
He claimed that it was not just an issue of freedom of the press but that the quality of The Daily Tar Heel had fallen from its past standard.
He implied that if he were elected editor he would cut the cost of the newspaper, and said that he would start a training program for the staff.
He criticized the editor's use of large words and the manner in which he expressed himself. He said he would take a moderate segregationist's viewpoint on integration.
Barry Winston said his objectives in running were to have a free but responsible press, objective news coverage, unrestricted freedom of student expression, intelligent editorial of all issues and journalistic competence.
He alleged that some of the statements in Bass's editorials concerning the "flu epidemic" were "completely unbacked by fact."
He said that people had claimed he was being backed by a clique and he asked the accusers to name the clique. He said the number of

'Y' TV Series Features Camus 'The Stranger'

A dramatic adaptation of Nobel Prize winner Albert Camus' novel, "The Stranger" will be presented tonight at 9:30 on WUNC-TV. Following the presentation a panel will discuss the work.
This show is one of a series of programs presented by WUNC-TV in cooperation with the YMCA. The series is entitled "Faith and the Fine Arts."
Other shows upcoming on succeeding Tuesday nights will be Arthur Miller's "A Memory of Two Mondays," Modern Sculpture, Religion and Politics, and The Nativity Theme in Art.
On tonight's program the panel which will discuss Camus' novel consists of Dr. Maurice Natanson of the Philosophy Dept., Jean-Pierre Boissavit and Jim Carser who has been acting as the moderator of the series.
Featured in the dramatic portion will be Bob Ross and Pete O'Sullivan. The producer-director of the series is Jim Studdiford of WUNC-TV.
Miss Eve McClatchey is chairman of the planning group which initiated the series and plans the programs in it.
The full schedule for the entire series will be announced soon following final plans to be made by her group for the rest of the year.

J. M. Morehead Made Honorary Phi Beta Kappa

John Motley Morehead was made an honorary member of Phi Beta Kappa at UNC, his alma mater, in ceremonies at his home in Rye, N. Y., Sunday.
Dr. Ernest Mackie, dean of awards, and Prof. Carydon P. Spruill inducted Morehead into Phi Beta Kappa.
A native of North Carolina, Morehead graduated from Carolina in 1891. He is an internationally-known industrialist, engineer, scientist, philanthropist and former minister to Sweden. He had been an executive with Union Carbide and Carbon Co.
He founded the Morehead Scholarships here, where at present there are 105 Morehead Scholars, each receiving $1,250 a year.
He gave the University the Morehead Building which houses the Zeiss Planetarium, the only one of its kind on a University campus.
Among his other gifts to the University are the Morehead Sun Dial and the Morehead-Patterson Bell Tower.
