Additional Dormitory For Women

Whitehead Dormitory, pictured here shortly after its completion in 1939, will serve beginning in September as an additional dorm for Carolina women. The building, originally designed for medical students, has a resident capacity of 116.

Whitehead Dormitory Will House Women Beginning Next September

Whitehead Men's Dormitory on South Columbia St. will be converted into a women's residence hall beginning September, 1958, according to an announcement this week by Miss Katherine Carmichael, dean of women.

The conversion to a women's dorm is possible, Dean Carmichael said, since 675 new spaces are being created for men in two new dormitories now under construction. These dorms are expected to be ready for occupancy by September.

The approval of Whitehead Dorm (which can house 116 persons) as the seventh women's residence hall came last week at a meeting of the Chancellor's Cabinet.

"Renovation of the building, if any, will be slight because of budget problems," Dean Carmichael said. In fact, one of the main reasons Whitehead was selected as the latest women's dorm was that the cost of renovation would be less there than in some other building, she said.

According to an agreement with the Extension Division, Whitehead Dorm again this summer will be used for delegates to conferences.

Dean Carmichael said that it is incorrect to assume that the enrollment of coeds will be increased 116, the number of available spaces in Whitehead Dorm. In some of the women's dorms where girls have been tripling in crowded quarters, the situation will be alleviated.

Whitehead Dorm, erected in 1939, was named for Dr. Richard Henry Whitehead, who was dean of the Medical School around the turn of the century.

A meeting on how to convert Whitehead to a women's dorm will be discussed Monday by administration officials and other persons concerned.

CCUN SECRETARY SAYS:

International Relations Important To Students

Delegates to a state-wide conference, sponsored by the local chapter of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations, last night heard CCUN Field Secretary Miss Connie Curry explain why the American student must be interested in the United Nations and international relations in general.

Miss Curry spoke to around 30 delegates representing 15 colleges and universities in North Carolina. The conference, which continues through today, is being held in an attempt to organize CCUN chapters in the state and coordinate these chapters by a Continuation Committee.

Only Means

"In our world today, the United Nations is the only means for a peaceful solution of our world problems," she said. "If the United States is to take leadership in an intelligent solution of these problems, our policy must be formed and supported by an educated and informed populace."

Miss Curry said the awareness of the international situation must begin in college, where the student is learning to think.

Citing a report, "Changing Values in American Youth," she said the average college student does not change his values in college that "our colleges have a socializing effect rather than a liberalizing one."

Student Movement

With this idea in mind, Miss Curry said the CCUN exists. Through a national student movement for the United Nations, she said CCUN hopes to bring an international mindedness to the American college community.

Through members groups, she explained that the CCUN sponsors such projects and programs as a model General Assembly, seminar trips to the United Nations, regional conferences and an annual leadership institute in New York.

In addition, each member campus receives monthly publications which keep the campus up to date on proceedings of the United Nations and a monthly magazine which explains what other CCUN groups are doing.

Maryland Upsets Tar Heels, 74-61

Terps Gain Tie With UNC As ACC Leaders

Former U. N. Delegate To Speak At 8 Tonight

By BILL KING

(Special To The Daily Tar Heel)

COLLEGE PARK, MD. — The Powerful Maryland Terps proved to over 15,000 fans they were just that here last night by handing the third-ranked Carolina Tar Heels a 74-61 defeat in Cole Stadium.

Maryland put the clamps on the Chapel Hillians three and one half minutes before the first half ended and didn't take them off until this ACC affair was over. The Terps built up a 30-23 halftime lead and came roaring back in the second half to snap a six game winning streak and hand the Tar Heels their second loss in twelve games this season. It was also their first loss in ACC competition, leaving them at 4-1. Maryland with a 4-1 record moves into a first place tie in the conference.

The College Park contingent simply outplayed the Tar Heels, who experienced one of their worst nights this season in the second half. It was a case of Maryland doing no wrong as the tall Terps owned the backboards here in this beautiful stadium.

It was a wild and woolly affair, the Tar Heels getting a cold reception from the Maryland partisan. No blood was spilled but things got plenty hot in spots.

Both clubs played it man to man throughout the second half. The Tar Heels had more trouble hitting the basket than penetrating the Maryland defense as the ball just wouldn't drop for Frank McGuire's club.

None of the cheering fans were willing to concede Maryland the ball game for a long time in the second half, but when the Terps grabbed a 40-30 lead at 13:55 and then continued to pour it on, the throng sensed the Tar Heel's dominance was doomed and they cheered vigorously.

Carolina kept trying to battle back and finished the game in a full court press, but Maryland was the superior team on this particular night and all Tar Heel efforts went for naught. Bob Cunningham and Harvey Salz went out via the foul route for Carolina.

Everybody was hitting for the Terps. Maryland was deadly from the charity line and equally efficient from the floor.

Top scorers in the contest for Carolina were Pete Brennan and Lee Shaffer with 17 and Tommy Kearns with 10. Al Bunge had 14 for Maryland.

In the rebound department, Maryland racked up a 46-37 advantage. From the floor Maryland was 38.4, while Carolina was 30.4.

Maryland grabbed its 30-23 halftime lead by hitting seven straight points while holding the Tar Heels scoreless in the last three minutes and 36 seconds. Before that, the lead had changed hands nine times.

Forwards Pete Brennan and Lee Shaffer kept the Carolinians in the ball game for the first 20 minutes (see Basketball page 4)

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, long a champion of strengthened support for the United Nations, will discuss the U. N. in a public address tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

Her visit to Chapel Hill is being jointly sponsored by the UNC Collegiate Council for the United Nations and the Orange County chapter of the American Association for the United Nations.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who will arrive around 1 p.m. today, will hold a press conference from 2 to 2:15 in Roland Parker I and II.

In addition, she will speak informally to delegates to a CCUN conference, which began yesterday and continues through tonight. This informal talk has been set for 3 to 3:30 this afternoon.

The conference is being held by the local CCUN to initiate representatives from North Carolina campuses to this organization and its work in promoting an understanding of the role of the United Nations in the world today.

Mrs. Roosevelt's appearance here today is the third in recent years. In November, 1956, she made a private appearance sponsored by the North Carolina AAUN. Several years ago she was sponsored on the Well lecture series.

VOLUNTEER

When Mrs. Roosevelt resigned her post as delegate to the United Nations General Assembly in 1952, she decided to devote herself to gaining understanding for the U.N. in the United States. At that time, she became a volunteer for the AAUN, a nonpartisan organization which seeks to build an informed citizenry for the United Nations in the United States.

Mrs. Roosevelt now spends time in expansion and field work for the association. Through her work, she assists the United Nations to gain more and more support and interest from America's thinking people in the present critical times.

The wife of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt has been a member of the AAUN's Executive Committee for several years and is currently chairman of its Board of Governors.

CHAIRMAN

As chairman of this board, Mrs. Roosevelt sends out a newsletter informing AAUN members of the latest achievements and techniques used by other chapters throughout the nation.

Mrs. Roosevelt was officially associated with the United Nations since she went to London as United States delegate to the first part of the first regular session of the General Assembly. She continued in that post until later in 1952.

Throughout her service with the U.N., Mrs. Roosevelt served as the United States representative on the Third Committee of the General Assembly, the committee of social, humanitarian and cultural questions. She also was the United States member and chairman of the Commission on Human Rights during April and May, 1946.

ACTIVE

Besides her work with the United Nations and affiliated groups, Mrs. Roosevelt has been active in educational, sociological and political affairs. She was finance chairman of the women's division of the New York Democratic State Committee from 1924 to 1928. She worked with the Democratic National Campaign Committee in 1928 as a member of the advisory committee in charge of women's activities.

In the early part of the war, she was an assistant director of the office of Civil Defense. She is the author of numerous books and papers. Mrs. Roosevelt writes a daily column and conducts a question and answer page in McCall's Magazine once a month.

After her speech here, she will go to Raleigh to be principal speaker tomorrow for the annual meeting of the North Carolina AAUN.

NO FIRES YESTERDAY

Police Suspect Arson In Eight Campus Fires

No fires occurred on the UNC campus, yesterday.

Police are continuing investigation of a series of eight fires which broke out on the university campus Thursday and Friday.

Captain W. D. Blake of the Chapel Hill police force said police had released the two youths who were being questioned in connection with the fire, but added that the two youths were still in the picture as potential suspects.

Blake said that he had no doubt that the series of fires was a case of arson. He added that the arsonist had probably used a cigarette lighter rather than matches, as there was no evidence of matches at any of the fire scenes.

Blake had been on duty continuously for two days and nights, until yesterday afternoon when he was first able to get two hours sleep.

Blake said that the university had hired extra guards to cover the wooden buildings and other vulnerable areas of campus, and reports from reliable campus sources indicate that all buildings that are not in use have been locked, and that only one entrance to other buildings have been allowed to stay open.

Commenting on a report that the Federal Bureau of Investigation was working on the case, Blake said that this was untrue and that the F.B.I. does not have jurisdiction on local cases such as this. The State Bureau of Investigation could not be reached yesterday for comment on a report that they were investigating the fires.

Blake said he did not know whether all the fires were started by the same person, and added that no arrests were in the immediate offing. Blake said that evidence such as newspapers and bill found at Friday night's attempted fire at Hill Hall basement, and charred newspaper's found at the intern's quarters at Memorial Hospital, were indicative of arson.

He reported that the abundance of fires on Thursday, led him to believe arson was involved.

Blake pointed out that from the (see Fire, page 3)

Integration

ATLANTA, Jan. 11 (AP)—A group of Negro parents today filed suit in federal court here seeking to end segregation in Atlanta's public schools.

It was the first attempt to break down the public school pattern in Georgia although other suits have tried to end racial segregation in colleges and on Atlanta's buses.
