PRESIDENT FRIDAY
getting ready to move

Consolidated Offices To Move This Week

Consolidated University offices, now in South Building, will be moved some time this week into new quarters in the former Institute of Government Bldg. on East Franklin St.

The building, except for minor work, is ready for occupation. The cost of remodeling the building was around $40,000.

The offices of President William Friday, Vice Presidents W. M. Whyburn and W. D. Carmichael Jr., and Business Manager A. H. Shepard will be transferred from the first floor of South Building to the new offices across from Graham Memorial.

Chancellor William Aycock's office will remain in South Building as will other UNC administrators. The offices being vacated by Consolidated University officials will be occupied by members of the UNC administration.

Chancellor Aycock's new home on Country Club Road, which is being renovated by the University, is expected to be ready in about two weeks.

No date has been set as yet for the opening of the Ackland Art Museum, but the interior will be finished by the end of January. At least two more months will be required for landscaping the grounds.

U. S. Military Investing Funds In Scientific Research At UNC

The U. S. military is investing heavily in science research at Carolina. Some are projects of long standing; some have come following Sputnik and President Eisenhower's new science emphasis.

Sought by CNC physicists, chemists, mathematicians and statisticians are findings in connection with projects which include the following:

1. Rockets, including intercontinental guided missiles, the basic statistical research on which has been done at Chapel Hill.
2. Cosmic ray research.
3. Research in high temperatures—and effects on metals.
4. Research in low temperatures.
5. Gravity research.
6. A special program for training high school science and mathematics teachers.

These half a dozen programs are but a few of the laboratory projects on which scientists at the University are working in this age of artificial satellites and stepped-up preparedness in areas of defense.

Included in backers of the research here are the U. S. Air Force, Army Ordnance, Atomic Energy Commission, the U. S. Navy, and the National Science Foundation, a federal agency.

The NSF is granting half a million dollars this year and next year to pay for the concentrated training of 101 high school math and science teachers, 51 this year and 50 next year.

Besides this, summer programs for high school and college teachers of sciences and mathematics are being financed by the federal government.

GM SLATE

The following activities are scheduled for Graham Memorial today: Panhellenic Council, 5-6 p.m., Grill Room; Jehovah's Witnesses, 7:30-8:30 p.m., Roland Parker 1; Forum, 4-5 p.m., Roland Parker 2; GM Board, 4-6 p.m., Woodhouse Conference Room.

Committee Winds Up Hearings

The Newspaper Research Committee concluded its series of open hearings Monday with its second meeting.

During a four and one half hour session the committee got the opinions of five students on such matters as the endorsement of an editorial candidate by a political party and recalling the editor.

The committee also asked what the students thought the relationship should be among The Daily Tar Heel and the School of Journalism, the University administration and the student government.

The students were also queried on what they thought was the best way to select the editor, what the editor's responsibility should be and what salaries the editor and the other members of the staff should be paid.

CLOSED SESSION

Those testifying asked to present any other points they might want to make about the paper. The committee will meet in a closed session to draw up the report which it will submit to the Student Legislature.

Those members of The Daily Tar Heel who appeared before the committee were: Doug Eisele, editor; Miss Mary Alys Voorhees, managing editor; Syd Shuford, circulation manager and University Party Chairman; and Pringle Pipkin, reporter.

Tom Lambeth, acting director of Graham Memorial, also testified. He was a former member of the paper and was a candidate for editor in 1956.

Speaking first, Pipkin suggested the problem of selection centered around the lack of an adequate training system for the staff members and that the paper should put more effort into recruiting.

Eisele said the trouble with the present system of selecting the editor is that he is not tested until after he has been in office. However, he said it would be rather hard to find a better method than the present one.

He suggested strengthening the power of the present Selections Board and said he should not be on a selections board which would judge him should he run for reelection.

NEEDS CAMERA

To improve the newspaper he said it needed a camera for its own use and should have first priority on the state.

EXPERIENCED HELP: Carolina forward Roy Searcy might be one of the Tar Heel reserves to see action against N. C. State tonight. Searcy, a senior from Draper, has proved useful in the clutches in several games this season.

Sugg Chosen To Head State Executive Group

Bill Sugg of UNC was elected to head the state executive committee for the Collegiate Council for the United Nations (CCUN) at a conference here last weekend.

Sugg, who also is chairman of the local CCUN, was in charge of the conference here that was attended by around 30 delegates representing 15 colleges in North Carolina. He is a junior from Winston-Salem.

"It was a very successful weekend," Sugg said. He commented that interest in the United Nations and the CCUN was high at the conference, and he believed the goal of the conference had been accomplished.

This goal was to try to organize CCUN groups on other state campuses and to set up a state committee that would coordinate CCUN projects and programs.

This state CCUN executive committee, headed by Sugg, has another Carolina student as a member. Miss Connie Bernstein, junior from Charlotte was elected chairman of the speakers bureau. Her duty is to find speakers for CCUN groups in the state.

Other members of the executive committee, elected Sunday at the business session of the conference, include: Vice-Chairman, Leon Murray from A&T College; U. N. Model Assembly program Chairman, Dick Wood from Duke; program chairman for high school participation in the state, Miss Heea Halder from Guilford; and program chairman for UN Day, Human Rights Day and other special events.

Sugg said the executive committee plans to meet early in February to map out plans for various projects.

Next month Sugg, as chairman of the executive committee, intends to visit as many colleges as possible in an attempt to have them affiliate with CCUN. By the first of March he hopes every campus in the state will be affiliated.

The executive committee does not yet have a secretary of treasurer. Sugg said he would appoint a secretary from this campus shortly.

5500 Expected To See Case-McGuire Clash

By BILL KING

The masterminds of the Atlantic Coast Conference came head to head tonight in Woolen Gym and what will transpire is anybody's guess.

It's the Carolina Tar Heels and the N. C. State Wolfpack in their second meeting of the season at 8 o'clock and only coaches Frank McGuire and Everett Case plus their respective charges, have any idea what's going to happen.

The two master strategists, generally conceded the fathers of modern ACC basketball, will lock horns in a battle of wits and a capacity crowd of over 5,500 is expected to be on hand for this traditional and rivalry-ridden fiasco.

State Seeks Revenge

For the Wolfpack, the cry is revenge. The Tar Heels whipped the Raleigh club, 39-30 in the finals of the Dixie Classic in late December.

The score was an exact indication of "what happened" in that contest and it was only one of many times that McGuire and Case have matched wits in their long rivalry. Both clubs used slow-down, ball-control tactics in the Classics finale but whether the same thing will be used tonight is as uncertain as the number of filters in a cigarette.

The Tar Heels would also like a little revenge—revenge for a 74-61 loss to the Maryland Terps Saturday night. It was the first conference loss since the Tar Heels lost their final game to Duke in 1953.

Carolina comes into the contest with an 11-2 record on the season and a 4-1 mark in conference competition. Its only other loss was to West Virginia. The Wolfpack have a nine and three record for all games and are 3-2 in the conference (excluding the Dixie Classic loss to Carolina). State has lost to South Carolina and Duke, the latter a 76-75 double overtime thriller Saturday.

Anything Can Happen

Both clubs can expect the unusual tonight in furthering the "anything

news in brief

Rape Case

WINSTON-SALEM, Jan. 14. (AP)—Judge Allen H. Gwyn signed an order in Forsyth Superior Court today sending a High Point Negro charged with raping the wife of an assistant basketball coach at Wake Forest College to a mental institution for observation.

Charles Moore was ordered taken to the state hospital at Goldsboro for observation for a period not to exceed 30 days. Judge Gwyn issued the order on motion of attorneys for Moore.

Moore is charged with raping Mrs. Al DePorter, 25, Dec. 13. He was working at a service station and was riding back to the station with Mrs. DePorter when the alleged attack occurred.

Moore's attorneys argued last week that Moore did not have sufficient mental capacity to enter a plea and should be sent to a state mental institution.

Debt Limit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. (AP)—The Administration asked today for a five-billion-dollar increase in the national debt limit to 280 billions.

The first reaction in Congress pointed to approval, as a matter of regretful necessity in view of the ever-climbing costs of national defense.

The debt has already pressed to within less than 750 million dollars of the present 275-billion limit.

Chairman Mills (D-Ark) and Rep. Reed (R-N.Y.) of the House Ways and Means Committee introduced a bill to carry out the request from the treasury for the lifting of the ceiling.

Race Relations

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Jan. 14. (AP)—Race relations have worsened in the South in the past year, says Tuskegee Institute, and realistic action is imperative "if serious difficulties are to be avoided in the near future."

But some progress was made toward peaceful settlement of differences, notably in actions taken by the Federal Government. President L. H. Foster said today in the famed Negro college's annual race relations report.

All branches of the government "made clear," the report observed, "that American citizens must receive treatment which is racially non-discriminatory in education, transportation, recreation, voting and employment."

Nevertheless, Foster said, "Race relations in the southern states are in a more unsettled and disturbed status than a year ago. The divergent segregationist and desegregationist points of view are held more resolutely now than in the recent past."

Space Age

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. (AP)—The House agreed today to vote tomorrow on a $548,228,000 authorization bill for emergency Space Age defenses.

Prompt clearance by the House Rules Committee was expected for the legislation, which came to Congress only a week ago. It is part of President Eisenhower's request for $1,260,000,000 in supplemental defense funds for the fiscal year ending June 30.

Meanwhile both the House and Senate continued their investigations of U. S. progress in the ballistic missiles field in the light of recent Russian advances.

UNC Property Is Inspected Due To Fires

Inspection of all University property is currently being carried on by members of the state fire marshal's office and the Chapel Hill Fire Dept.

The University hopes to follow up on recommendations submitted by these two groups for eliminating certain fire hazards, according to J. A. Branch, UNC business manager.

This inspection came largely as a result of recent fires which "made us conscious of hazards that exist," Branch said.

He said some of the recommendations might be in the line of additional fire extinguishers or more fire hydrants.

Several years ago a similar inspection was conducted. As a result, fire escapes were erected on several dormitories and buildings.

AT MONDAY NIGHT FIRE

Jamming Almost Disastrous

Jammed telephone lines to the fire department Monday night during the fire at Memorial Hospital almost caused a tragedy at 215 Henderson St.

A blaze was discovered in the student rooming house, but could not be reported for 15 minutes due to busy signals on the fire department's phone.

Curious students and citizens were calling to see if the blaze at the hospital was a continuation of the arson outbreak which terrorized Chapel Hill last week.

Meanwhile, residents of the student rooming house fought the second blaze with buckets of water until the fire department arrived.

NOTHING NEW

Captain Blake of the Chapel Hill police force said there have been no new developments in last week's series of arson cases.

He is not positive all of the fires were started by the same person.

but the rash of fires leads to speculation that arson was involved.

The two suspects are still under surveillance, according to Blake.

Meanwhile, the Chapel Hill studios of WUNC-TV are continuing their normal telecasting schedule despite last Thursday's fire which caused an unofficial $60,000 worth of damage to the UNC Communications Center, according to John Young, director of the Chapel Hill studios.

TEMPORARY STUDIO

A temporary studio is in operation in the motion picture sound stage and television administration offices, located in the basement of Swain Hall.

Director Young said, "An almost superhuman effort on the part of the engineering staff, production crews, and administrative personnel enabled the station to return to the air so soon."

Alan MacIntyre, Chief Engineer of WUNC-TV, and his staff have done "wonders" getting the complicated electronic equipment companies, and other university personnel for their efforts in aiding the studio to begin telecasting so soon.

DAMAGE UNKNOWN

Insurance adjusters are still trying to determine the full extent of the damage caused by the fire. The exact amount can't be determined until contractors remove some of the debris from the building and the trenches under the building where water has not yet been removed.

The university radio station, WUNC-FM, has been broadcasting from the facilities of WCHL since the fire, but will return to their own studios today.

"The excellent work of the fire department and studio staff saved the building and equipment from complete destruction," Young said.
