Plane Crash

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 6 (AP)—A British European Airways plane crashed today in a third attempt to take off in a snowstorm, and Munich police said 21 persons were killed. Seven of England's top soccer stars were among the victims.
The twin-engine Elizabethan airliner was carrying England's champion Manchester United soccer team and a number of British sports writers. The British Consulate here said only 10 of the 17 team members survived.

The police said 23 passengers and crewmen survived the fiery crash but doctors were reported operating feverishly on some in an attempt to save their lives.

Unemployment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Several Democratic senators jumped on President Eisenhower today for what one of them called "the serious economic trouble" the country is facing.

This was the phrase used by Sen. McNamara (D-Mich.) in co-sponsoring a bill by Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass.) to increase unemployment compensation payments and widen the range of coverage.
Kennedy said present benefits cover only a small fraction of the current loss in wages.

Race Trouble

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 6 (AP)—A series of racial incidents were reported from Integrated Central High School today. And there was another anonymous report of a bomb in the school.

Supt. Virgil Blossom confirmed that he was investigating a report that a girl student struck another girl with a purse. He said one girl was white and the second negro, but declined to say which one did the striking.

Blossom refused to identify the students, but unofficial sources said the Negro girl was Minnie Jean Brown, who has been involved in some previous incidents. These sources gave the white girl's name as Frankie Gregg.

Reports emanating from the school said that a white boy later spilled soup on Minnie Jean in the school cafeteria and that another Negro girl was involved in a kicking incident in a corridor.

Pay TV

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—A House committee today asked the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to hold off on its plans for a trial of pay television until Congress can act on the issue.

Rep. Harris (D-Ark.) told reporters that the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, of which he is chairman, had passed a resolution to that effect in closed session today.

Such a resolution is not binding—it expresses the Committee desire only.

Professor

HIGH POINT, N. C., Feb. 6 (AP)—Corydon P. Spruill, professor of economics at the University of North Carolina, was named today as executive director for a committee to study North Carolina public school finances.

The appointment was announced by State Sen. Arthur Kirkman of High Point who is chairman of the North Carolina Committee for a Study of Public School Finance.

Bomb Scare

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Feb. 6 (AP)—A bomb scare at a Mecklenburg County Negro grammar school fizzled out today. A police captain suggested the whole affair was intimidation by a group of whites.

An anonymous male telephoned county police last night that a bomb was set to explode at 11 a. m. today in the Woodland School at Paw Creek, about five miles from here.

Police Capt. G. A. Stevens said his officers searched the school this morning and remained there several hours before they were withdrawn.

Revision Of Honor Councils Offered By Solons To Provide Single Body

Newspaper Research Group Makes Report

By PRINGLE PIPKIN

Al Goldsmith (UP) and Pat Adams (SP) introduced on the behalf of Student Government Attorney-General Sonny Hallford a bill to form "a council for Honor Code violations" last night at the Student Legislature.

The Honor Council will be composed of a council of five members and a jury of nine students which will have original jurisdiction of all cases of violations by men and women of the Honor Code.

Students in the Medical, Dental and Law will still be under the jurisdiction of their courts.

A committee will be drawn from the Honor System Commission to interview and select jurors "on the basis of interest, sincerity of purpose and competence."

Before a hearing a student will be given a list of 25 jurors. If he can give a "substantial" reason to the Attorney General why a juror is unacceptable, then the Attorney General will excuse that juror.

From the remaining jurors the Attorney-General will pick seven people. Two jurors will be selected from a group of four permanent jurors. There will be at least two male and two female jurors.

A two-thirds vote of the jury is needed for a conviction. The council members will decide questions of law and procedure by a majority vote. Their decisions are subject to appeal to the Student-Faculty Judicial Council.

There will be six permanent members of the council; three elected in the spring, three in the fall. One of the three shall be male, one female and one elected at large.

Should the bill be passed three people from the Women's and the Men's Honor Councils shall be selected by the President of the Student Body to serve until spring elections and three until elections next fall.

If passed, the bill will go into effect as soon as the procedures have been set up and the jurors selected.

Pat Adams (SP), chairman of the newspaper research committee, read its report. John Brooks (SP) made a motion that bills be drawn to implement recommended changes in those matters under the control of the Student Legislature.

The committee recommended that the students continue to elect the editor. A selections board would consider if the charges against and editor are valid grounds for a recall election.

The bi-partisan selections board would be altered. The committee drew up a list of qualifications needed by an editorial candidate in order to be endorsed by the selections board.

The committee recommended that The Daily Tar Heel retain its annual profits.

A bill was introduced by Harold O'Tuel (SP) to buy The Daily Tar Heel a new delivery truck. Ralph Cummings (SP) introduced a bill "to organize administration of the Bell Tower Parking Lot."

Jerry Oppenheimer (UP) introduced a bill to reorganize the campus orientation committee. A bill to alter the Carolina Forum and the Publications Board was introduced by John Brooks (SP).

UNC Receives $100,000 Grant From Carnegie

The University will receive a grant of $100,000 from the Carnegie Corporation for support of a program for superior students, according to an announcement made today.

The program will be supported by Carnegie for five years at the rate of $20,000 per year.

The current UNC program for "superior freshmen," which has been operating since 1954, will be expanded to apply also to top ranking sophomores, juniors and seniors.

One immediate result of the program can be decisions by the parents of many talented high school seniors to send their sons to the University at Chapel Hill so that their abilities will be recognized and special attention be given to their educational development.

The program will continue for five years under the Carnegie grant, at a cost of $20,000 a year which will include salaries for additional instructors to relieve regular staff members in the program and salaries for visiting professors.

Advantages

By carefully selecting faculty members to teach in the program and by organizing special courses for the most able students, the University will be able to:

1. Give the high-ranking students the benefits said to be characteristic of a few distinguished small colleges in the nation.

2. Also give them the advantages peculiar to a large university.

The procedure which has been followed is to select students with superior aptitude as indicated by tests and high school records (50 freshmen were chosen this year) and "keep them together" in special courses in mathematics, history of Western Civilization and English. Each student also takes two other courses, usually a foreign language and a natural science.

During the sophomore year they are also together in courses in philosophy and recent history.

The students and their teachers undertake to advance as far as their abilities will permit. In the first three years of the experiment

Living In Chapel Hill

Ex-Venezuelan Attorney General

By EDITH MacKINNON

"It is important to realize that any revolution is not directed against one thing or one group but against the culture in general."

These words were spoken concerning the recent Venezuelan revolt by Martin Perez. Perez is a former Venezuelan attorney general in exile by recently ousted dictator Perez Jimenez in 1951.

The lawyer and his family have been in the U. S. since 1955 and at present are making their home in Chapel Hill. A son, Martin, is now a pre-medical student at Carolina.

Pleased with Revolt
Speaking of the revolt which came to a head in January of this year, Perez said he was "very pleased" with the results.

The Venezuelan exile told how Perez Jimenez rose to power following the 1948 coup against the elected government of Dr. Romulo Gallegos. After a reorganization of the government in 1950, Jimenez became absolute ruler, and suspended many civil liberties.

"It is important to take account of the fact that the army became the main source of political power under Jimenez," Perez said. "He told how Jimenez had gained power through 'corruption' and 'bribery.'"

'Complete Tyrant'
In Perez's opinion, Jimenez was a "complete tyrant" and "not ruler of any country."

Asked about the Communist role in the recent revolution, Perez pointed out that it is "easier for the Communists to work in an underground position." The Communists were one of the four political parties making up the Patriotic Junta, the group actively working for the overthrow of Jimenez.

Perez said free elections would soon be held in their troubled country for a new president. These elections would be open to anyone over 18.

One of the main problems now, according to Perez, will be "to get an atmosphere of confidence and to avoid, for the first time, a real struggle."

Plans Return
Speaking of his own plans, Perez said he will return to Venezuela very shortly. His family will remain in Chapel Hill.

Asked if he would re-enter politics on his return, Perez said he would like better to go back into his law profession. He added that the new presidential candidate would probably be an independent. Perez himself is an independent.

Perez has been in politics since 1936 and was jailed in October, 1952 when he was involved in plans to organize a new political party. In December of that year he was "politely invited" to leave the country.

Perez says he is not really a politician, "but sometimes a man can not be what he wants to be."

Following his exile Perez and his family went to Costa Rica and came to the U. S. in 1955. They decided to come to America because they "felt" it was important

TYRONE POWER AS REV. HASLAM
Scene From Bernard Shaw's 'Back To Methuselah'

Tyrone Power—Not Only A Big Star But A Success As An Actor As Well

By DAVE PETERSON

Tyrone Power, who is co-starred with Faye Emerson and Arthur Treacher in "Back to Methuselah," which comes to Memorial Hall Feb. 28 and March 1, at 8:30 p. m., has succeeded in making both critics and public think of him, not just as a handsome movie star, but as one of the nation's more accomplished actors.

This change of thought pattern was not easily accomplished. As one of the screen's more popular stars, he had been so much admired for his rugged appearance that his acting ability tended to be overlooked.

When he returned from his military service in 1945, he fought for wider scope and achieved it somewhat in films such as "The Razor's Edge" and "Nightmare Alley."

Corps during World War II, his screen roles had placed him among the top ten stars at the box-office. His studio was happy with the financial returns of his film.

But they were limited to two types: the swashbuckling hero in adventures such as "Blood and Sand" and "The Mark of Zorro" and the romantic lead in comedies such as "Thin Ice" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Recent Roles
In recent years, able to pick and choose, he has been able to find tremendous gratification in the work he has been able to accomplish. His roles on the screen in "The Long Gray Line," "The Eddy Duchin Story," "The Sun Also Rises" and "Witness for the Prosecution" are far from the mold Hollywood had forced him into for so long.

And on the stage he has achieved artistic as well as popular success in "John Brown's Body" and "The Dark is Light Enough" in New York, and in London and Dublin as "Mr. Roberts" and in Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple."

Tickets for "Back to Methuselah" are available in the Carolina Play-makers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall. All seats are reserved at $2.20, $3.30, and $4.40.
