Arthur Miller's 'View From Bridge'—A Modern Tragedy In Greek Form

Arthur Miller's "A View From The Bridge" to be presented by The Carolina Playmakers in The Playmakers Theatre, Wednesday through Sunday at 8:30, is a modern tragedy in the Greek form. Reminiscent of Euripides' Hippolytus, the play concerns a man whose love for his ward leads to his death.

Representing the chorus-commentator in the play is the figure of Al fieri, a lawyer, played by John Sneden of Tenafly, N. J. Sneden will be remembered by campus audiences for his portrayal of The Dauphin in "The Lark." Mr. Lunnie in "Brigadoon" and Caesar in "Androcles and the Lion." Sneden is a senior in Dramatic Art.

First Leading Role

As Catherine, the young niece, Margaret Starnes, Raleigh, will appear in a leading role for the Playmakers for the first time. She has been seen at East Carolina College in "Blithe Spirit," "Riders to the Sea," and "Antigone." This fall she played in the Playmakers studio production of "No Exit."

Ken Callender, Greensboro, enacts the role of Eddie, the leading figure in the play, whose failure to understand the passion for his niece brings about his tragic downfall.

Page Williams, Fort Thomas, Kentucky, plays Beatrice, Eddie's wife. Her work at the University of Kentucky has included roles in "The Lady's Not for Burning," "Detective Story," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "The Innocents."

Director

"A View From The Bridge" is directed by Thomas M. Patterson, veteran director who also presented Miller's earlier "little man" tragedy, "Death of a Salesman."

Tickets for "A View From The Bridge" are available in The Playmakers Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall, and Ledbetter-Pickard. All seats are reserved at $1.50.

Associate Ed Crowther Leaves For World's Fair

Frank H. Crowther, associate editor of The Daily Tar Heel, has been notified of his acceptance as guide demonstrator for the Brussels World's Fair, opening April 17 in Belgium.

He will leave Chapel Hill Sunday, with plans to meet other U. S. delegates to the Brussels Fair in New York on March 23. The group then will sail for Europe.

Official notice of his acceptance came by telegram Thursday from Sen. John Marshall Butler of Maryland.

Crowther's appointment to the U. S. delegation came from Congress voted additional funds for the fair, the greatest of the traditional international expositions held during the past 100 years.

The fair seeks "to bring the peoples of the world together in an atmosphere of peaceful exchange, and to rekindle human values and step forward to understanding among nations."

"The theme of the exhibition," reads the fair's official publication, "as symbolized by the Atomium, is a declaration of faith—mankind's ability to mold atomic age to the ultimate advantage of all nations and peoples."

Crowther will be among more than 200 guide demonstrators sponsored by the U. S. State Department and individual states within the union. Expenses of all delegates are financed by the respective governments.

Crowther, who lived in France two years while working with the State Department, will spend about two and one-half months in Paris with friends after the fair. He will return to UNC for the spring session, 1959.

UNC Roars Back In Second-Half Surge

Evans Vetoes Single Honor Council

Tar Heels Top Clemson 62-51; Stanley Hits 16

By BILL KING

REYNOLDS COLISEUM, Raleigh—Sophomore forward Ray Stanley, a bench-warmer for most of the season, provided the Carolina Tar Heels with that "Cinderella" touch here yesterday and the Chapel Hillians battled their way into the semi-finals of the ACC basketball tournament against State with a 62-51 victory over Clemson.

It took a magnificent second half surge by the Carolinians to get by the rugged and inspired Clemson club which held a halftime lead of 24-19 and built up margins of as much as 12 points during the first stanza.

Carolina hit a miserable 25.9 percent of its shots in the first half and didn't get its first basket until after six minutes and 25 seconds. A man to man defense and some personnel maneuvering by Frank McGuire got the Tar Heels rolling toward the end of the half.

Stanley's 16 points was second only to Pete Brennan who tossed in 22 and turned in a fine performance despite the fact he was double teamed most of the way. But it was Stanley, real jumping jack, who bagged 10 rebounds and provided the spark the Tar Heels needed to sweat through this toughest.

Although Carolina found the range at the beginning of the second half and finished the game with a 40.7 shooting accuracy, it wasn't until nine minutes and 14 seconds into the second half that the Tar Heels were able to gain the lead. Clemson had led throughout the contest until Brennan tossed in a free throw to make it 35-34 with 10:46 remaining. From there, Carolina built onto that lead and Clemson never contended again.

New Bill To Put Juries Into Present System

By PRINGLE PIPKIN

With a veto Student Body President Sonny Evans killed last night the Student Legislature's bill which would provide a single council composed of both men and women which would try both men and women.

By a vote of 41-0 the Student Legislature voted to cancel the election concerning the Honor Council amendments to the Student Constitution to be held Tuesday.

Roger Foushee (SP) introduced on the behalf of Sonny Hallford, Student Body Attorney-General, and George Ragsdale, Chairman of the Men's Honor Council, a bill to revise the Honor Council composition but to retain two separate councils.

With the exception of the separate councils this bill is identical to the early bill, which called for a jury and a council of five to try Honor Code violations.

The jurisdictions of the Honor Councils remain the same, and, therefore, no constitutional amendment is needed. The Student Constitution lets the Student Legislature determine the composition of the Honor Councils, and so there will be no campus wide vote.

The Student Constitution makes statements only about the jurisdiction of the councils and can be changed only by a campus-wide vote.

No Delayed Rush

By a wide margin Gary Greer (SP) bill to delay rush was defeated. The Carolina Quarterly was granted $650 upon the passage of

UP Convention Dates Changed Due To Conflict

The days for the University Party conventions have been changed because of a conflict with the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic Council sponsored concert Monday night, according to an announcement yesterday by Syd Shuford, UP chairman.

The convention meetings have been re-scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Tuesday night at 7:15 the remaining legislature seat nominations will be made, as well as for senior class officers and National Student Association coordinator.

Student government officers will be nominated Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Would Be Unfair

In announcing the change in days, Shuford said, "I feel that it would be unfair to the IFC and Panhellenic to deliberately conflict with their concert as this is for a most worthy cause, that of furtherance of harmonious relations between the Greek letter societies and the people of the Chapel Hill area."

This concert is to be presented by Ralph Marterie's orchestra Monday night at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

Symposium Conflict

Shuford said that the conventions are being held next week because of the Carolina Symposium which begins March 16 and continues throughout that week.

Shuford urged all sororities and fraternities to arrange their chapter meetings as best as to permit adequate representation at convention sessions.

Lost Contact

"Perhaps the system has lost contact with the students," Evans said. Asserting that "the judicial power has gravitated toward a narrow segment of the student body," he stated that 14 men of a 15 man Honor Council are in fraternities.

Ten of the 14 men are from three houses. He said the same situation existed in the Woman's Council.

"I for one, though I am in a fraternity, deplore the fact that our justice system is administered by representatives of one-sixth of the student body to the other five-sixths."

"This is not to imply collusion or incompetence, . . . but the situation is very unhealthy for the proper administration of campus justice. Perhaps this is the reason for the loss of contact," he commented.

He said, that the student freedom lay "in a vigorous Honor System administered by democratic courts and supported through the respect of all of the student body."

Psychotherapy Is Discussed At Grad Club Meet

"Psychotherapy, if employed correctly, is a unique human relationship, from which all competition is eliminated between the two participants," Dr. Harley Shands told the Graduate Club supper this week.

Dr. Shands, who is associate professor of psychiatry in the School of Medicine, discussed the overall methods used in psychoanalysis, which he described as "doing nothing skillfully."

A most important knowledge for a psychotherapist is how to use silence at the proper time, while letting the patient talk out his thoughts, Dr. Shands said. The therapist must exercise self-control to avoid giving the expected response which the patient thinks his statements will bring.

"The novelty of psychotherapy is the belief that a person gains (See GRAD CLUB, Page 3)
