GREEK WEEK PROGRESSES—A group of fraternity pledges are shown cleaning up the premises of the Lutheran Church, one of several projects in yesterday's work day program of Greek Week activities. Greek Week, the replacement for the now-abolished "hell week," consists of activities geared to bring some 400 pledges of 24 social fraternities together in an effort to better relations between the community and fraternity. An intramural field day is planned for the pledges today. Later this week they will take part in a carnival day and a final banquet, with trophy presentation for the best pledge class. SYMPOSIUM SPEAKER

Governor's Life Reminiscent Of American Success Story

By DAVIS YOUNG

GOV. HODGES
Symposium Speaker

Luther Hartwell Hodges, 92nd governor of the State of North Carolina, will be here on campus Sunday, March 16 at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall to deliver the keynote address for the Carolina Symposium on Public Affairs.

Governor Hodges represents a person who has come from almost total obscurity in his early days to the highest office in the state. He was born in Virginia in the year 1898 on a tenant farm and has risen from these meager surroundings to the position that he now enjoys.

He is a graduate of UNC where he was both president of his class and president of the student body. He entered the University with savings of $82.50 and worked his way through as a waiter, furnace-fitter and odd-job-man. UNC conferred an honorary degree upon him in 1946 as did North Carolina State College in 1955.

Hodges entered the business world in 1919 and remained in this field until 1944 when he was head of the Textile Division of the OPA. He was a consultant to the Secretary of Agriculture in 1945 and retired from business for good in 1950 to devote his energies to public service.

He was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1952 and assumed his present position in November of 1954 upon the untimely death of William Umstead. He was easily re-elected in 1957. Governor Hodges has sought to keep men and women of character and proven ability in state service of North Carolina without regard to political factionalism.

Pittsburgh Symphony Sets Concert Tonight

The Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra, which in the past few years has grown into one of the leading orchestras in the United States, will perform here tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

The concert group, sponsored here by the Student Entertainment Committee, has made more than thirty recordings for Capitol Records.

Students with ID cards will be admitted free. Student wives will be charged one dollar, and other person can obtain tickets at the door for two dollars.

Program selections will include: Beethoven's overture to "The Creatures of Prometheus"; Brahms'

Symphony No. 4 in E minor, Debussy's "La Mer" and six orchestra pieces by Anton Webern.

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra was established in 1896 with Victor Herbert as its conductor.

William Steinberg, the present conductor, joined the Symphony in 1952, after being affiliated with other outstanding orchestras in the United States and other countries, including the NBC Symphony and the Buffalo Philharmonic.

Members of the Student Entertainment Committee responsible for the concert are: Larry Harris, chairman; Pace Barnes, Marcia Metcours, Joel Flesman, Kai Jurgensen, Dr. Wilton Mason, and Tom Lambert.

The Committee has also presented in its entertainment series Iva Kitchell and Jan Perce.

Taylor Appointed To Post Of Special Student Adviser

Dr. George V. Taylor of the History Department will serve as adviser to about 100 freshmen and sophomores participating in "the special student" program. He will assume these duties beginning with the fall semester.

An announcement of Dr. Taylor's appointment was made at this month's meeting of the Faculty Council by the Committee on Superior Students.

Dr. Taylor's appointment to the adviser staff of the General College was made possible through the recent $100,000 grant from the Carnegie Foundation. This grant, which is for a five-year experimental program in developing suitable courses in the curriculum for honor students, will repay the History Department for relieving Dr. Taylor of some of his teaching duties.

Dr. E. A. Cameron, chairman of the Committee on Superior Students, said yesterday that the addition of Dr. Taylor to the adviser staff is a "vital step in the program to have someone in the General College to guide the students in the special advanced curriculum program into suitable courses."

"Dr. Taylor is fervently interested in the program and will do a fine job," said Dr. Cameron.

Dr. Taylor has taught social science courses in the special student program for the past two years.

According to the Committee on Superior Students, Dr. Taylor's duties will include: serving as adviser to the freshmen and sophomores in the special program and working for improvement of the existing programs and the instigation of new programs and courses aimed at providing appropriate educational opportunities for better students.

UNC Starts Planning New Frosh Camp

Plans are underway for next fall's Freshman Camp.

Sponsored by the YMCA, the Camp serves as a recreation-orientation session for a limited number of freshmen. Campers are selected on a first come-first serve basis.

Director of the camp this year is Mike Givins, a junior from Charlotte. Givins and prospective counselors have had two meetings and will continue to get together once a week for the rest of the semester to plan next year's camp and to receive training in counseling.

All students interested in working as camp counselors have been asked to attend a meeting tonight at 8:30 in Room 200 Carroll Hall.

Givins said he hoped a number of rising sophomores would turn out for the meeting.

New officers of the Planners Forum, an organization of graduate students, faculty members and professional people in the field of city and regional planning, have been elected at UNC.

Newly elected president is James Stevens of Little Rock, Ark., a first year graduate student in the UNC Department of City and Regional Planning. He succeeds George Stevens of Asheville as Forum president.

Both young men are working on their master's degrees in the field of city planning; the past president, George Stevens, will graduate this June while the new president, James Stevens, will complete his study in June, 1959.

Other officers of the executive committee of the Planners Forum are Alfred Huyck of Ridgewood, N. J., program chairman; Marilyn Nelson, Belvedere, Ill., secretary-treasurer; John Anderson, Kansas City, Mo., publicity chairman; and Alvin J. Karetcki, Kenosha, Wis., social chairman.

Dr. V. I. Mann Receives Aid In Research

Dr. Vrigil I. Mann associate professor of geology at UNC, has been notified that he is the recipient of a $9,200 grant from the National Science Foundation for a gravity survey in North Carolina.

Dr. Mann, in explaining the nature of his research project, stressed the importance of the study of the earth's gravitational field throughout the world. He stated that the headquarters for gravity study in the United States are located at the University of Wisconsin under the direction of George Woollard.

"In as much as the area in this state is gravitationally unknown, the University of Wisconsin agreed to furnish a gravity meter for the study, provided that the money for transporting the meter be obtained from other sources. The money is now available for this purpose from the National Science Foundation," Dr. Mann commented.

Brooks, Wall, James Other SP Nominees

Don Furtado, John Brooks, Paddy Wall, and Everette James were nominated by the Student Body to candidacy for the four major campus offices at stake in the spring elections.

Furtado won the contest for president of the student body by the count of 23-22 over present study body Treasurer Bob Carter. Furtado, currently is vice-president of the student body.

Furtado, in accepting the nomination, stated: "It is undoubtedly the greatest honor which has been bestowed upon me to have been selected as a candidate for the Presidency of the Student Body."

COMMENDS LEADER

"In the past three years at Carolina, I have been very fortunate in having the opportunity to work with past President Bob Young and President Sonny Evans. The outstanding leadership which they have shown has illustrated to all of us the tremendous obligation and responsibility that accompanies the position of President of the Student Body.

"In the coming weeks, I sincerely hope that I can illustrate to the members of the Student Party and to my fellow students that I am worthy of assuming that obligation."

Bob Carter, who lost to Furtado, said that he did not wish to comment on a report that he may run independently. He added that he would have to give the matter more careful consideration before reaching a decision.

BROOKS WINS

John Brooks the present parliamentarian won a three cornered race for the vice-president nomination from Ralph Cummings and Gary Greer. Brooks won by 22-9-9.

Brooks in seeking the nomination promised that the legislature would take its rightful place as the body that enacts legislation, and that the committees and subcommittees of the legislature would be co-ordinated.

WALL ACCLAIMED

Paddy Sue Wall, a member of the women's honor council, was acclaimed the SP nominee for secretary of the student body.

Attorney General Sonny Hallford moved unanimous acceptance, and Miss Hall received a standing ovation from the SP membership.

Everette James, who had won twice before in campus-wide elections, was nominated the SP candidate for treasurer of the student body over David Evans by a vote of 27-7.

LEVY WINS NOMINATION

Ed Levy won the nomination for National Student Association Coordinator over Roger Foushee by 17-13. Levy is a member of the University Party; however, the job (See CANDIDATES, page 3)

UNC Men To Debate Scots

CARL BARRINGTON
Will Meet Scots

UNC students Carl Barrington and Jim Tolbert will represent the University against two Scottish debaters Thursday night in debating "Resolved: That the Sun has set on the British Empire."

The debate will take place in Carroll Hall at 8 p.m. Thursday and is being sponsored by the UNC Forensic Council and Carolina Forum.

The two Scottish debaters, Leonard MacKenzie Turpie and Ronald Bernard Anderson, are being brought here under the auspices of the Speech Association of America and the Institute of International Education.

Barrington, senior English major from Fayetteville, is a member of the Forensic Council, Dialectic Senate and Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Tolbert is a pre-law major from Morganton. He is a past president of the Philanthropic Society, a member of the Forensic Council and a member of the Anphoterian.

Both Scottish debaters were active in forensics during their undergraduate days at Glasgow University. They are currently associated with debating organizations.

Di Debating Amendment On Disability

Tonight at 8 o'clock, the Dialectic Senate will debate a bill calling for a constitutional amendment to provide for the delegation of presidential powers to the Vice President, should the President become disabled.

The meeting will be in the Senate hall on the third floor of New West. Di President Gary Greer has extended an invitation to all who are interested either in hearing the debate or in participating.

Vote Changes Will Be Topic Of Phi Debate

The Phi Society will debate the abolition of the electoral college system and substitution of direct popular election for the presidency tonight at 8 p. m.

Dr. William Jenkins of the political science department will be the society's guest critic. The meeting will be on the fourth floor of New East.

The bill states that: "The electoral college system of electing the President of the U. S. is basically undemocratic and all citizens of a free state should have a voice in the selection of their chief executive."

An executive session will be held following the debate to initiate new members.

Republicans Discuss Slump

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP)—Dr. Gabriel Hauge, President Eisenhower's economic assistant, said tonight it may take until July but "I think we'll lick the slump when private expenditures go up."

Hauge said the dips so far "are within the range of expectations we had."

But Sen. Bridges (R-NH) described the recession as "more prolonged than was expected." He said Eisenhower "may have to supplement some things" in his antirecession program if conditions get worse instead of better.

Hauge and Bridges spoke out in a separate radio show transcribed in advance — Hauge for NBC "Reporters' Roundup" and Bridges for CBS "Capitol Cloakroom."

Each endorsed a tax cut that becomes necessary to give business a shot of adrenalin.

Surgeon General Indicates Need Of Trained Workers

Dr. L. E. Burney, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, said here Monday the greatest need in the field of public health is trained personnel.

The nation's number one public health official was speaking this afternoon at a student-faculty seminar sponsored by the School of Public Health. The topic of Dr. Burney's talk was "A Look Ahead in Public Health."

Dr. Burney said in the immediate future the recruitment of physicians, engineers and dentists with public health training would be difficult because of the demands of private industry.

"We are not daunted," he said. "There are several ways to help solve the most crucial problems and several compensating factors. One way is to improve the quality of present and future public health workers. This is being done through the increased opportunities for graduate training in public health. The U. S. Public Health Service is sharing in this increase and is especially pleased with the results, even though it represents but a small share."

Dr. Burney said that a second way to solve the problem was for employers, employees, faculties and student to work out better methods for using highly qualified workers more effectively. He explained that while this is a primary task for employers, the influence of faculties, students and employees would go far to improve the utilization of personnel.

"A third way, and is one in which public health trained physicians could play the most important part, is to stimulate the application of preventive principles and techniques among practicing physicians. As our public health problems focus increasingly upon the health status of the individual, it becomes more and more essential that the preventive methods be applied by the practicing physician. Many public health trained physicians today have not had this essential fact brought home to them."

Dr. Burney explained that a fourth way to solve the public health recruitment problems is for each graduate student in schools of public health to work toward bringing young people into the field.

Dr. Burney became the eighth surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service when he took office in 1956. He succeeded Dr. Leonard A. Scheele.

Public health personnel from the N. C. State Board in Raleigh and from numerous local health departments attended today's seminar.
