Campaign Continues As Run-Off Nears

New Ideas Suggested By Furtado

Changes to make the life of the Carolina student better were outlined yesterday, by Don Furtado, Student Party candidate for president of the student body in the special run-off election Tuesday.

"In the past few weeks, I have given my views and plans on a number of our campus problems—the need for a men's dormitory, visiting agreement, for a new student union, for fraternity self-government, for faculty pay raises and paid leaves of absence, for familiarizing the students with the new Honor System, and for the abolition of self-liquidating dormitory payment.

"These problems are evident to each of us, but their solution will require much time and effort by the President of the student body and many others before we can see tangible results.

"Presently, men at Carolina have few acceptable places to study at night. The library in addition to often becoming a social thoroughfare, closes at 10:30, just about the time that many students these groups understand each other and even work with each other from time to time.

Agreement: Run-Offs Are Easier

By WYNDHAM HEWITT

The run-off campaign has been cited as easier than regular campaign by the UP candidate and SP party leader. It was agreed that most of the real issues of the campaign were hashed out in the regular campaign.

Both sides said they were pretty sure in the original election that a run-off would be necessary, although they were hoping for a majority.

Pia Adams, SP party leader, said the campaign had "certainly not been as hard" for his party since they were just pushing one candidate in the run-off. Adams said he thought, "The heat of the campaign got hold of the UP of late and their desire to win has made them over eager."

Al Goldsmith, candidate for president of the student body on the UP ticket, said he thinks this has been a "clean and hard fought campaign." He said the run off was good and it gave the students a chance to narrow down their choice.

Adams said he was impressed with the leadership of Furtado. He said he thought most of the people working on Furtado's campaign were of the same feeling.

Goldsmith said, "Things look good in the run-off and I am especially happy that many of Bob Carter's supporters have come over to my side."

Assistance Asked By Goldsmith

Al Goldsmith, University Party candidate for president of the student body, called for more cooperation among campus groups in a statement yesterday, which said:

"Closer cooperation among various groups on campus and a system by which the president of the student body can bring a more representative group of people close to him for advice are two great needs on campus today.

"I do not think we can ignore the fact that there is great disunity on our campus and like-wise that exists a situation where too few persons are in a position to advise the president.

"This situation disturbs me greatly. I have noticed, especially during these weeks of campaigning the split between dormitory men and fraternity men as well as other factions on our campus. I believe that instead of allowing excessive factionalism to remain we should strive to have better understanding and more unity here at Carolina.

"A start to improving this situation can be made in student government. During my campaign I have enumerated several things I would attempt to do if elected. They are:

"1. Revise the president's cabinet to include heads of specific campus organizations in addition to members at large.
"2. Work closer with the IFC and IDC in an effort to help

New Freshman Girls To Get Stiffer Rules

By STAN FISHER

An expected increase in the number of freshman women enrolled at UNC has led to the drafting of new rules to govern all freshman women. The new regulations will become effective in the fall of 1958.

Fifty additional women are expected at the University next fall. They will be enrolled in pharmacy, medical technology, dental hygiene, and physical therapy. The physical therapy program has recently become available to women students.

All freshman women, other than those in the school of nursing will be housed in the new wing of Spencer dormitory.

The new rules grew out of a concern for all freshman women by the Women's Residence Council. They were drafted after approval by the Women's Residence Council, the School of Nursing, and the Dean of Women. In the past freshman women have lived on the University campus, but not in great enough numbers to warrant special rules.

These special rules are based on those of the School of Nursing and those of Women's College. They will govern all freshman women beginning next year.

New Rules
Main provisions in the rules for first semester women are as follows:

Hours Monday through Thursday will be 11 p.m.; Friday through Sunday 12 p.m.

House regulations will include closed study Monday through Thursday from 8:10-30 p.m. (One excuse per week may be granted to attend a campus function lasting after 8 p.m. and study time must be made up within 48 hours.)

Out of town permission may be granted for three nights (not to exceed 6 overnights during the fall semester in addition to University holidays and between semesters.)

Second Semester Rules
Rules for second semester women will be slightly altered.

Women without C averages must have closed study.

Lights must be out at 11:30 Monday through Thursday. Six cuts will be permitted on this rule per semester. (This rule does not apply to the exam period.)

Dean of Women Katherine K. Carmichael, when questioned about the present rate of dropping out or transferring to other courses among women students already enrolled at the University, said the rate is presently negligible, but that no forecast can be made for the future.

'Quite Helpful'

"I think the rules the students have drawn up for freshman women will be quite helpful to young women in forming good study habits and will be conducive in helping girls learn to live in an organized society. These rules are nearly standard for freshman women in this area. I hope the men will be understanding of these rules," she added.

Personnel Adviser to Women, Luann Thornton, said "In the past the freshman women not living on the main UNC campus have been governed by rules different and more strict than those governing freshman women on the main campus. In the fall of 1958 all freshman women enrolled in the University and living in University housing will be governed by a uniform set of rules for the first time."

More rules concerning special permission and fraternity visiting are currently being discussed. They will be available in their completed form in approximately three weeks, Miss Thornton said.

Petites Musicales To Feature Pianist

Two other programs are scheduled in the current series of Les Petites Musicales. On April 20, Gene Strasser, tenor, will give a recital and the final concert set for May 4 will be presented by Francis Hopper, organist.

Sociology Professor Prints Books Fast

Three books in the past six months—that is the record of Dr. Alan Keith-Lucas of the School of Social Work.

His latest book, "Readings for House Parents of Children's Institutions," has sold 1,400 copies since publication date two weeks ago.

It is the first book of its kind published in the United States and reflects Dr. Keith-Lucas's work in workshops and courses for matrons, superintendents, counselors, housemothers and others who help raise children in orphanages and other child care institutions.

His previous books are "Decisions About People in Need," published by the UNC Press in Sept. 1957, and "Some Casework Concepts for Public Welfare Workers," published in Nov. 1957.

His latest work, published by the Workman Book House, in Chicago, and is a paperback volume, selling for eighty cents.

Professor Keith-Lucas is director of the Group Child Care Project of Southeastern Conference of Workers in Children's Homes and the School of Social Work of UNC.

The project is unique in that it teaches houseparents in children's institutions on their own campuses and is financed in most part by the institutions themselves—23 institutions in Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and Florida. Eight of the institutions are in North Carolina.

Dr. Keith-Lucas is a native of Cambridge, England, and is a graduate of Cambridge University, of Western Reserve in Chicago and of Duke University.

First Day Of 'Swing' Is Success

The first day of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchant's Association sponsored "Spring Swing" was referred to as a success by merchants yesterday.

The second annual sale featured many reductions in retail prices by local merchants.

The two-day sale promised to be a leading event for both students and merchants financially speaking. Some local businessmen were expected to price certain articles at below wholesale prices.

"Spring Swing" was held in March last year, but was postponed until April this year because of cold weather.

A concert and street dance was scheduled for Friday night in Franklin Street, with the Sam Atwater combo from Durham booked to furnish music for the events.
