COED RULES:

Furtado OK's Legislative Resolution

By AL RESCH

Don Furtado, president of the student body, Friday stated that he was pleased with the Student Legislature's passing of a resolution in opposition to the new Women's Residence Council rules.

The resolution put the Student Legislature on record as being opposed to any rules which apply only to freshman women but not to all Carolina Coeds. It was passed by a vote of 28 to 9.

"Though a resolution carries no official weight but only expresses opinion of the group, I am pleased to see that the Legislature recognizes the inappropriateness of the WRC proposals," said President Furtado.

He added that it was his hope that the WRC would take this statement of opinion into consideration when discussing the rules again.

In commenting on an editorial against the presence of a member of the Dean of Women's Office on the WRC, Furtado said, "It has been said by those who favor the inclusion of this representative that it is done in order that the WRC may know the feelings of the Dean's Office before any measure is passed.

Playmakers Slate Final Production

The Carolina Playmakers will give their final performance of three new one-act plays tonight at 7:30 in the Playmaker Theatre.

The plays are products of the playwriting class of Thomas Patterson, of the Dramatic Art Department.

This is an annual feature of the Playmaker's season. The representatives since the organization was first founded in 1918 included such figures as Thomas Wolfe, Paul Green, Betty Smith, Howard Richardson, Frances Gray Patton, Bernice Kelly Harris, Josephina Niggl and Kay Porter Lewis.

Cosmopolitan Club Schedules Open House

The Cosmopolitan Club will hold its annual International Open House from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday at Hill House, 210 Cameron St.

The program will include song and dances from Sweden, Norway, South America, Japan and also American folk songs.

Exhibits will represent Scandinavian countries, Holland, France, Italy, Latin America and the Middle East, Japan, China, and India.

"The officers and the members of the Cosmopolitan Club cordially invite the student body to come and to bring their friends. This is a wonderful opportunity for friendship and international understanding," said Jean Pierre Bois-savit, the club's president.

Di Defeats NAACP Bill

The Dialectic Senate overwhelmingly defeated a resolution to abolish the NAACP in North Carolina Tuesday night.

Senators Gary Greer and Larry Good advocated the bill by adopting the view that the NAACP has been a disturbing factor in peaceful integration, and was not favored by political leaders in this state.

The remainder of the bid and two guests hit the resolution with cries of "prejudice, unconstitutional behavior, and deprivation of human rights." The negative senators in their attack of the resolution pointed out that state political leaders were expressing prejudice, and that by denying the NAACP the right to function, the state would in reality be denying the organization of legal free expression and the right of assembly.

New Trio Of Men's Dormitories Will House 800 Extra Students

By WYNDHAM HEWITT

The mansions just over the hill-top will be ready for students next fall. The three new UNC dorms will open their doors to more than 800 students.

The new dorms are located on the other side of the intramural field. The dorms afford a beautiful view from the hill top across the fields. Students living in these "palaces" will be able to appreciate the view from verandas that run the length of each floor.

Much of the noise that is found in the dorms now in use will be cut down in the new dorms. There will be no inside halls. A porch will run the length of each floor and the eight and nine men cubicles will open onto the porches.

The cubicles are spacious accommodations for eight men. They feature brown and tan, and brown and green tile floors.

In each of the cubicles there will be four two-man rooms. These men will have access to one bathroom that is also within their cubicle. Each of the rooms have a locking door that opens onto a small hall that leads to the porch. There is a door on the porch entrance that can also be locked and unlocked by the cubicle occupants. This will assure more privacy. The key to the occupants door will also open the outside hall door.

The rooms will have two desks with indirect fluorescent lighting. In the new dorms the straw desk chairs will be a thing of the past. They will have wooden chairs with wooden seats.

For the student who enjoys the "sleep of the just" the new dorms will feature just the thing. Single beds with either inner-spring mattresses or foam rubber ones. Students who use sleep as an extracurricular activity will no longer have to worry about roommates feet in their face.

Plenty of storage space will be

Residence Council Opens Study Meet On Freshmen Rules

Women's Residence Council will hold an open discussion on the new freshmen rules Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial.

Rules to be discussed include dorm closing hours, supervised study and lights-out hours. Housing of freshman women in the new wing of Spencer will also be discussed.

According to Lillian Shannonhouse, chairman of the WRC, "The council will endeavor to explain the new rules to the student body in the meeting."

The new rules grew out of a concern for all freshman women by the Women's Residence Council. They were drafted after approval by the WRC, the School of Nursing and the Dean of Women.

In the past freshman women have lived on the University campus, but not in great enough numbers to warrant special rules. With the expected addition of 50 women in the University next fall, the WRC took action toward the new rules.

The decision, which reversed a previous decision by the council that they not allow opposition points of view to come before the council, followed a meeting of the Council Thursday afternoon.

The new rules are presently being reconsidered by the Council, and will not be final until after the Tuesday meeting.

Officials said that the discussion will be open to all interested people on campus.

Tom Walters Reviews IDC Accomplishments

By STAN BLACK

Outgoing president of the Interdormitory Council Tom Walters reviewed the accomplishments of the IDC over the past year in his speech at the annual banquet held Wednesday night at Brady's.

Walters noted that, among other things, the IDC defeated a resolution that would have established dorm counselors with wide powers in each dormitory.

On the social scene the IDC sponsored football receptions after games in Cobb Basement and held open house in some dorm's social rooms.

Also several weekends the facilities of the Rendezvous Room and the pool room in Graham Memorial were made available to couples free of charge.

The IDC voted to support the Grail-Intramural Jamboree by a contribution, and at Christmas gave money through the Campus Chest to a needy family in Chapel Hill.

Another project of the IDC was the Dormitory Sweetheart Contest, which culminated in a dance at Cobb at which the Queen was crowned.
