Carolina Forum Will Sponsor Walt Kelly Tonight In Hill Hall

Walt Kelly will use his Pogo comic strip characters and their language to illustrate his ideas on the "G.O. Fizzick Year" tonight in a Carolina Forum address.

The lecture will begin at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

Jim Holmes, Forum chairman, announced that Kelly's talk is open to the public without charge. A reception will be given afterward in Graham Memorial Student Union.

Kelly recently made a trip around the world, talking with the average citizen in many lands. Material gathered in his travels will be included in his next book, "Not So Square a World."

A past president of the National Cartoonists Society, Kelly has won the "Cartoonist of the Year" award and the Heywood Broun Memorial Award for the best editorial cartoon program.

Born in Philadelphia, Pa., Kelly spent most of his youth in Bridgeport, Conn., where he attended Warren Harding High School.

Beginning as a newspaper reporter he soon found himself in Hollywood. There he worked with Walt Disney, turning out "Fantasia," "Pinocchio," "Dumbo," "The Reluctant Dragon," "Baby Weems," and "Snow White."

In 1948 he took a job with the New York Star. In that paper the public saw for the first time a comic character previously seen only in comic books — Pogo the Possum.

The Carolina Forum, the official speaker-sponsoring agency of the UNC student government, brings a number of prominent men to the campus each year, mainly experts on politics or economics.

Forum speakers this year have been Norman Thomas, civil liberties spokesman and socialist leader; Israeli diplomat Abba Eban; and Senator Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.).

WRC Meetings Will Be Open To Reporters

Reporters from The Daily Tar Heel will be allowed at all future meetings of the Women's Residence Council, it was announced yesterday by Lillian Shannonhouse, chairman of the Council.

"Reporters will be welcome at any of our meetings," she said in a statement following Tuesday night's meeting of WRC. The new policy is a break from the former procedure of releasing only part of the minutes to The Daily Tar Heel after the meetings.

The council acted in clarification of its by-laws, in which there is no mention of the press.

The Council ruled that since the press was not specifically prohibited in the by-laws of the legislature group, that the press had a right of admission to any and all Council meetings.

The action came while there was a bill pending in the student legislature to make it mandatory that public and press be admitted to Council meetings.

In other action Tuesday night, Jean Sutherland, a rising junior nursing student from Greensboro, was elected chairman of the Women's Residence Council for the summer session.

Legislature To Consider Twelve Bills

Tonight at 7 o'clock, the student legislature will place under consideration the bill to amend the by-laws of the Women's residence council. The passage of this legislation would automatically open the doors of the WRC sessions to the public and to the press.

There are eleven other bills on the calendar at this time. Seven of these are money bills, including the Amateur Radio Club bill.

A complete slate of presidential appointments, including confirmation of Dick Robinson as Attorney General, will also be considered by the legislature tonight.

FIGHT FOR FACULTY—PART II

UNC Losing Out In Salary Competition

By PRINGLE PIPKIN

A consideration of specific figures of the UNC faculty members' salaries will give credence to the general opinions expressed by University officials.

A rundown of the figures paid to faculty for approximately nine months of employment shows that the highest amount of state funds paid to a full professor is approximately $12,000 to $13,000, and the minimum salaries is $7,500. The median salary is $8,900.

There are, of course, endowed chairs for full professors such as the Kenan Professorships which help to provide salaries ranging from $12,500 to $13,000.

Here an associate professor can receive up to $9,200 and down on the minimum salary of $6,500. The median pay check for this group is $6,960.

The maximum salary of a UNC assistant professor is $7,200, the minimum $5,400, and the median $6,670. An instructor begins at $4,500 and his pay check can go as high as $5,500; the median salary is $4,800.

A recent report of the US Department of Education revealed that the average of the maximum salaries paid to full professors by the private universities and colleges in the northeast is $13,850.

Recently Princeton declared that the minimum salary of any full professor would be $10,000, or $2,500 greater than lowest rate paid by UNC for men of the same rank.

The associate professors at public institutions of higher learning in the northeast receive maximum salaries which average $9,450. These same schools pay the assistant professors maximum salaries which average $8,050.

The instructors in northeast public colleges get maximum salaries which average $6,550 or $1,050 greater than the figure paid by UNC.

The faculty members of the dental school and of the school of medicine are paid a yearly basic, and consequently they receive higher salaries than those employed nine months.

The salary scale of the school of medicine ranks in the lower part of the middle group of the salaries offered by medical schools across the nation.

The salaries of the dental school are in the range of the middle third of the dental schools.

In the disparities were confined to the northern salary scales, it might be possible to dismiss the matter as simply compensation for a higher cost of living.

However, a new doctor in a field of science was offered $6,700 to be an instructor at a southern school. His salary, incidentally, is greater than that being paid to some of the men who instructed him in his graduate work at UNC.

Another graduate student in the field of science will be getting $6,500 when he goes to be an instructor at another southern school.

One man left the school of education to go to the University of Virginia where he would get a 20 per cent increase in salary.

A southern school of dentistry has offered positions which would provide a salary increase of $3,000 to two UNC faculty members.

Another southern university offered a member of the School of Business Administration a $2,000 increase.

During the spring, the most active period of faculty recruitment, many other offers such as these will be received by members of probably every school and department in the University.

However, the University does not compete against only the other members of the academic world. At present there are lucrative lures being offered by industry and the other professions both of which are enjoying a time of prosperity.

According to Dr. Ingram, head of the Department of Geology and Geography, a new Ph.D. in geology can earn $1,800 more per year by entering industry.

In ten years this same man would be earning $5,000 more each year if he was working for a company instead of teaching.

A man qualified to be a professor teaching advertising in the School of Journalism could probably make $25,000 if he was employed by a firm dealing in this field.

One industry offered a member of the physics department a salary of $10,500. Thus sum lacked only $300 of being double what this man was receiving at UNC.

Valkyries Tap 8 Members In Secret Pre-Dawn Rites

Five undergraduate women and three honorary members were tapped into the Order of the Valkyries, women's honorary organization, early this morning in a secret pre-dawn ceremony.

The Valkyries began their candle-light march at 1:30 a.m. in their customary black robes and hoods. As the march proceeded through the women's residence halls, the sound of the golden gong called forth those women who were recognized for the Valkyrie ideals of scholarship, leadership, character and service.

Those recognized were Mrs. Mary H. Davis, Chapel Hill, N. C.; Frs. Guion B. Johnson, Chapel Hill, N. C.; Miss Dorothy Douglas Kellam, Bel Haven, Va.; Miss Barbara Faye Miles, Burlington, N. C.; Miss Mary Susanne Mosteller, Hickory, N. C.; Miss Midori Sasaki, Hiroshima, Japan; Miss Luruth Sutton, Raleigh, N. C.; and Miss Paddy Sue Wall, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Following the secret ceremonies, a special breakfast was served at 6 a.m. in honor of the new members. Former members of the Order were also present for this conclusion of the ceremonies.

The Order of the Valkyries was begun on the Carolina campus in 1942 so that outstanding women students might be given special recognition for their services. The name of the organization is taken from an ancient Norwegian legend centered around the warrior god Odin, who represents Thought and Memory and who was mankind's benefactor.

Odin had nine select maidens at tendants, the Valkyries, who were daughters of the gods and yet were mortals as well. These attendant maidens waited on the tables in Asgard, but their chief task was to go to the battlefield and decide at Odin's bidding who should win and who should die, and then to carry the brave dead to Valhalla, the hall of fame. It was considered a great honor to belong to this chosen group because they shared the glorious companionship of departed heroes.

The purpose of the Order as stated in the Valkyrie creed is: "As a Valkyrie I will strive to accomplish gladly and quietly the tasks which lie before us, to be unaffected by success and undaunted by failure, to have an active interest in the welfare of my fellow students; to act always with a spirit of helpfulness and to try to inspire co-operation in others; to be sincere and considerate on all occasions, to work toward a tolerant and sympathetic understanding of others, and yet to stand staunchly by my own convictions; to be above pettiness in all my dealings and to direct my thoughts and actions persistently toward the highest purposes; as a Valkyrie I will strive constantly toward those ideals of character, scholarship, leadership and service for which our organization stands.

Press Club Banquet Set For Monday Night

Tuition scholarships will go to four journalism juniors at the fourth annual UNC Press Club Awards Banquet Monday night.

The awards, three of which are presented through the Journalism Foundation, are based on scholarship and need.

Also on the program is initiation of six new members to Kappa Tau Alpha, journalism scholastic honorary, and announcement of Press Club officers for 1958-59.

Chancellor William B. Aycock will speak to the group at the United Congregational Christian Church.

The scholarships, valued at $300, are named the O. J. Coffin Scholarship, the Quiney Sharpe Mills Scholarship, the Louis Graves Scholarship and the Gerald Johnson Scholarship. The Graves, Coffin and Johnson awards are through the Journalism Foundation. Last year's winners were John Ashford, Stan Brennan, Ray Smith and Tom Byrd. Byrd graduated in January and is now working for the Raleigh News and Observer.

Awards will be presented by Journalism School Dean Norval Neil Luxon. Press Club President Davis Merritt will be master of ceremonies.

The top ten per cent of the journalism school enrollment is eligible for Kappa Tau Alpha, a national fraternity. Initiates will be awarded certificates of membership and a year's subscription to the Journalism Quarterly.

A ham supper will be served by members of the Women's Fellowship of the church. Anyone interested may buy tickets, at $1.50 each, from the Journalism School office, Bynum Hall.

Students Urged To Appear At Meter Meeting

Student Body President Don Furtado has urged all interested students to attend the Merchants Association's special meeting on the proposed installation of parking meters tonight.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 in Town Hall.

So far, the merchant group has taken no stand on the issue, but because of "unusual" interest, Merchants Assoc. President Whit C. Powell and the Planning Committee felt the matter needed further consideration.

The meeting is open to the public.

Pine Room Dance

The Three Deuces, a Raleigh combo, will play for a dance at the Pine Room Saturday from 8-12 p.m.

Graham Memorial Activities Board will sponsor the dance.

Senior Class Begins To Enroll Special Alumni

The special on-campus enrollment of the Senior Class in the General Alumni Association got under way yesterday following the meeting of the class in Memorial Hall.

The period of active solicitation of seniors extends one week. During this time each senior will be visited in his place of residence and offered an opportunity to join the University's alumni association at a special rate of $1 for the first year of membership.

The solicitation is organized with more than 50 members of the class taking part in the drive, under the general direction of Co-Chairmen Frank Black and Jerry Oppenheimer. Responsible for major campus areas are Ann Morgan (women's dorms), Punkin Coe (sororities), Tom Walters (men's dorms), and Sandy Sanders (fraternities).

For those who take advantage of the reduced rate (regular dues are $5) their membership begins June 1 and extends 12 months from that date.

Among the direct benefits of membership is a subscription to The Alumni Review, the alumni magazine that is published 10 times during the calendar year as a magazine and each week during the year.

Jury Interviews

Today will be the last day for Honor System Jury interviews.

Interviews are being held by the Honor Council Commission in the Council Room at second floor Graham Memorial from 4-5 p.m.

Grail Ring Sale

The Order of the Grail will sponsor a class ring sale today from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Y-Court. Lee Blackwell, Balfour Company representatives, will be there to take orders for rings.
