Yackety Yack Makes 1958 Appearance

Long lines stretched to Morehead Planetarium yesterday as students filed past the windows of the Rendezvous Room at Graham Memorial to receive their 1958 Yackety Yack.

This edition of the yearbook sports a soft red leather-like cover. Its 455 pages are filled with pictures and feature articles. Included is a fast-reference index, showing exactly where each student's picture may be found in the book.

The theme, "Our Year at Carolina," is carried out with liberal use of bright colors throughout.

Following a section devoted to UNC Administration officers, student activities are covered, including Student Government, publications, fine arts and student life.

Second Lawn Concert Planned By UNC Band

The UNC Concert Band, directed by Herbert W. Fred and assistant director Calvin Huber, will present its second lawn concert of the season Sunday afternoon at 4:30 at Davie Poplar.

Miss Quillian White, soprano, will be the featured soloist singing "A Kiss in the Dark" from "Orange Blossoms" by Victor Herbert, and "I'll See You Again" from "Bittersweet" by Noel Coward.

Activities Chair Is Still Open, Says Furtado

Don Furtado, president of the student body, called Thursday for applications from persons interested in serving as chairman of the Summer Activities Council plus those interested in working with the council.

Other works on the program include novelty arrangements by Fred of two popular tunes, "Chopstick," and "Li-Li Liza Jane; "Headlines," a modern rhapsody by Colby; "Procession of Nobles" by Rimsky-Korsakoff; "Emperor Waltz" by Strauss; "Arioso" by Bach; "Carnival Day in New Orleans" by Morrissey; "Cuban Fantasy" by Kepner; and selected marches.

Di Senate Defeats Bill Opposing US Alliances

A bill advocating the United States' withdrawal from all entangling alliances was defeated in the Dialectic Senate Tuesday night by a motion to consider the bill unfavorable.

President Gary Greer introduced the bill, explaining that he felt the United States could better carry out its duties as a leader of democracy and the free world by withdrawing from those alliances which have drawn it into such embarrassing stands in the past several years.

Withdrawal from such alliances, he continued, as the U. N. and NATO, would not be a reversal to the policy of isolationism. Instead it would allow the United States to better pursue her duties as a leader of the Free World, Greer concluded.

Folklore Head Hudson Co-Edits New Anthology

Arthur Palmer Hudson, Kenan professor of English and director of the Folklore curriculum, is co-editor with John T. Flanagan of the University of Illinois, of an important anthology of folklore literature recently published by Row, Peterson and Co. under the title "Folklore in American Literature."

The anthology, drawn from available sources of folk literature, is designed to show the rich legacy upon which many American writers have levied. The selections are assembled in 12 classifications based upon folk relevance and thus provide both a literary classification and a broad picture of American regional divisions according to literary interest and expression.

Dorm Leader Assures Safety; Letter-Writers Receive Threat

By PRINGLE PIPKIN
Two Carolina students have been threatened with physical violence because of an unsigned letter that was printed in The Daily Tar Heel yesterday.

The note read, "The residence of this hallowed hall are hereby invited to the funeral of Messrs. Quack (Robert Quackenbush) and Stein (Lewis Steingold), which will be held immediately after that quaint southern remedy for informers—tar and feathers is carried out."

The signature the note bore was R R Resl and the rest was unintelligible. The recipients of the note said they had definite ideas as to who might have sent the note. Quackenbush said that around 11:30 yesterday morning he had been blocked in the hall way by three students who were not making friendly gestures.

French National Assembly Votes Pflimlin More Power

PARIS — (AP) — The National Assembly overwhelmingly voted Premier Pierre Pflimlin drastic authority yesterday to fight any grab for power by Gen. Charles de Gaulle's backers at home and in Algeria. The vote was 461-114, the greatest majority any government has received since World War II.

The Council of the Republic, the upper house, was expected to pass the bill within hours.

Francis Venable Honor Awarded To Williamson

The recipient of this year's Francis P. Venable award in chemistry is Stanley M. Williamson of Charlotte.

The Venable medal is awarded each year by the Rho Chapter of the Alpha Chi Sigma professional chemistry fraternity to the outstanding senior in chemistry UNC.

The rebellious Committee of Public Safety in distant Algiers stood firm in its demands for the return of de Gaulle to power.

During his sophomore and junior year Williamson also received scholarship awards given by the fraternity to outstanding members of these classes. In addition to the scholarship awards, Williamson was awarded a $500 grant at the beginning of his senior year given annually by the Chemstrand Corporation of Decatur, Ala.

Paris was tense but quiet after the news came during the morning that Pflimlin's home outside Paris was bombed and considerably damaged Thursday night.

On completion of his B. S. degree in chemistry this June, Williamson will assume as summer position as a research assistant to Dr. J. F. Bunnett in the Department of Chemistry. In October Williamson will begin graduate study in chemistry at the University of Washington in Seattle.

More than 1,000 armed special security troops stood guard outside the Council of the Republic, the upper house, was expected to pass the bill within hours.

More Than 400 Of Senior Class Join Alumni

More than 400 members of this year's graduating class who live on the campus have joined the General Alumni Association in the current drive to organize the "Alumni Class of '58," according to Committee Co-chairmen Jerry Oppenheimer and Frank Black.

Members of the alumni committee yesterday were joined by Senior Class President George Ragsdale in expressing pleasure over the success to date of the on-campus phase of the drive to enroll seniors in the University's alumni association.

Most committeemen have already completed their solicitations and reported their results to the Alumni Office.

Some seniors could not be personally contacted and they may be expected to visit the Alumni Office, Association headquarters in the Carolina Inn.
