Ten Russian Students Are Now Spending Three Days On Campus

Professor Jenkins Leaves For Alaska With J. Miller

Alaska will be added to the roster of states having its official and historic documents included in the world's largest microfilmed repository of state records—housed in the Louis R. Wilson Library of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Professor William S. Jenkins is on his way to Alaska to consult with Governor Mike Stepovich and other officials of the 49th state to make contacts which will lead to an expansion of Dr. Jenkins' collection at Chapel Hill.

Dr. Jenkins worked for 20 years collecting documents of the states and putting them on microfilm. The cost, $125,000, was paid by the Rockefeller Foundation. The Library of Congress was a co-sponsor of the long-term project.

In this "storehouse of knowledge" a researcher can get in a short time what formerly would have required a life time of travel by many people. Vital information pertaining to important state documents are included in the monumental collection at Chapel Hill—a rich resource for students working in political science and in statecraft of other aspects.

The film is equivalent to 3,333 books of 300 pages each, or about 2,500,000 pages. The title of the collection: "Records of the States of the United States: A Microfilm Compilation."

In Juneau and other cities in Alaska, Prof. Jenkins will talk with librarians, political scientists and government officials, so that Alaska will be as well represented in the UNC collection as the other states of the union.

Dr. Jenkins is accompanied on the journey by John Frank Miller of West Jefferson, a student in the University who is aiding in the project.

Enrollment Up

Prof. Guy B. Phillips, director of the Summer Session at the University of North Carolina, has reported a total enrollment of 2,637 students for the second term which will continue through Aug. 23.

"Enrollment for the second term, which compares with 2,511 for the 1957 second term, indicates the continued increase in summer enrollments, Phillips said. He noted that the total registrations for both summer terms this year, excluding non-credit institutes and conferences, was 6,107. This figure marks an increase of 294 students over the 1957 total.

Phillips also pointed out the increase in out-of-state students from 370 to 419 in the second term.

Of the 2,637 students enrolled in the second session of summer school, 2,230 are North Carolinians. The next largest number of students comes from Virginia which sent 78 persons to UNC.

Other states with students totaling in the two-digit column include South Carolina with 49; Georgia, 40; Florida, 32; New York, 29; New Jersey, 28; Pennsylvania, 22; Connecticut, 18; Maryland, 16; Tennessee, 15; and Alabama, 10.

The largest number of students, 305, are enrolled in the graduate school. Next on the list is the General College with 752 students. A total of 485 persons are taking work in the College of Arts and Sciences.

The School of Business Administration reports that there are 242 students taking business courses. A total of 171 persons are enrolled during the second session in the School of Education. There are 11 prospective newspaper workers studying this session in the School of Journalism.

According to a report submitted by the UNC Central Office of Records, there are 103 law students; 75 nursing students; 25 students in library science; 27 public health

Council Plans Big 'Eat' On August 7th!

The Summer School Activities Council yesterday announced plans for a party to be held on August 7 in front of Carroll Hall.

It will begin at 6:45 and run until 3:30 p.m. According to Council Chairman Nelson Lavergne, free ice cream and cokes will be given out. Lavergne went on to promise what he called a well known and "loud combo," which will entertain the students.

At 8:30 a free flick will be shown outside. It is "Sailor Of The King" starring Jeffrey Hunter, Michael Rennie and Wendy Hiller.

Lavergne went on to remind women students that Bermuda shorts will be acceptable attire for the evening's activities. He also pointed out that a big dance is planned for August 15. Plans for this event, will be presented in next week's edition,

The Group Is Being Sponsored By The Y

Ten Russian students, graduate students, graduates, and youth leaders are here on campus today, as a part of a thirty day exchange program sponsored by the Council on Student Travel with the approval of the United States State Department.

Traveling with the group is Mary Potter, a graduate student at Columbia University in New York, who interprets for the group and Ruth Furkable from the Council on Student Travel.

The group will participate in a student government meeting in Graham Memorial at 10 a.m., after eating breakfast at the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity.

Aycock Gives Report Of The Year's Events

Life as administrative chief of a large modern university is complex. "But there are compensations to make up for the complexities," declares Chancellor William B. Aycock in a report to the president, faculty and trustees of the University here.

In an annual publication, known as "Chancellor's Eye View," Mr. Aycock gives a history of the year at Chapel Hill—his first full year as head of UNC.

Hitting the highlights of academic events in the University, the booklet is illustrated with scenes of activities in classrooms, on the campus, among faculty organizations and at formal scholarly gatherings.

In the leading article "Complexities and Compensations," the Chancellor stated: "It is pleasing to me, personally, to become more closely acquainted with the broad sweep of University life, and to obtain a familiarity day by day with the dedication of members of the faculty. The compensations far outweigh the complexities, and I commend to your attention work of these many students and faculty."

Pictures in the brochure feature classes in sculpture, chemistry laboratories, dramatic arts, education classrooms, the pediatric ward of the N. C. Memorial Hospital, and many others.

To introduce the booklet, there is a color picture post card of the Old Well, from a photograph made by Hugh Morton of Wilmington.

The group will then lunch at Lenoir Hall before appearing at a public meeting at Hill Hall at 1:30. One of the Russians, probably the leader, Evgenii Bugrov, will speak at the meeting.

The group came to Chapel Hill from Knoxville, where they observed the Tennessee Valley Authority. A group of UNC students headed by Anne Queen of the YM-YWCA met the group at Cherokee. The Russians saw the Cherokee pageant "Unto These Hills" while in Cherokee and left Wednesday by car for Chapel Hill.

Wednesday night they attended a dinner at the Ranch House and Bugrov gave a talk in which he expressed his happiness at being in Chapel Hill, and his wish for continuation of intercultural educational exchanges.

Yesterday, members of the group attended economics, education, and English classes and participated in the Danforth Seminar currently going on at UNC.

An open luncheon at Lenoir Hall and the Rathskellar preceded the group dividing to attend a program sponsored by the North Carolina Heart Association and another program sponsored by the United Auto Workers (AFL-CIO) who are having an education workshop session at UNC.

The group swam at Kessing pool later in the afternoon before attending a University banquet. Prior to the banquet some of the group participated in a press conference and a televised interview.

The evening was occupied by a meeting of the Interracial Fellowship.

The Russians leave tonight via plane for Washington where they will complete their thirty day stay in the United States.

This group of ten is part of a group of twenty touring the United States, while forty Americans are currently touring Russia, as part of the bi-lateral exchange.

Benches

Incidentally, not all of the comments we've heard about the installation of benches downtown has been complimentary. Tone of most of the criticism runs that the idea of benches in fine, but that more comfortable and attractive ones should be set out. Actually, since the Town didn't obtain the old Memorial Hall benches itself, there's never been any official authorization for their being placed on the public sidewalks. —Literally a matter of squatters' rights now.
