Fraternities Hear Young Score DTH

Davis Young last night asserted that Editor Curtis Gans used the recent series on fraternities to "slam" fraternities for "his own personal satisfaction."

Young, a staff member of The Daily Tar Heel, urged the IFC to see to it letters are written to the editor so that the editor's views may be contradicted.

Young pointed out that he was "tremendously" disappointed in the present paper, and added that "many members of the staff will back me up when I say that I am not satisfied with the paper."

He said that columns by Anthony

Wolff, Cort Edwards, and the controversy on contraception had lowered the quality of the paper. He further exclaimed The Daily Tar Heel was not read, and "any paper that is not read, is not a good paper."

"I hope that students will rally behind this challenge and will speak out in the form of letters and columns to show their distaste for the present paper," Young concluded.

The IFC voted last night to allow Pringle Pipkin, Daily Tar Heel reporter, to cover the meeting of the Council.

Also approved was the IFC week-end scheduled for December.

IFC President Tucker Yates thanked Young for presenting the fraternity point of view in his letter to the editor of last week, and also complimented the job Jamie Holmes and Young did in compiling the fraternity series which ran on the front page of the newspaper last week.

Miscegenation Is Di's Topic This Evening

The abolition of all state laws prohibiting inter-marriages of the races will be debated at tonight's meeting of the Dialectic Literary Society at 8 o'clock on third floor, New West.

The bill to be debated states that legislation of this nature is inconsistent with the democratic principles of the United States and the civil liberties of the citizenry of North Carolina.

Di President Gary Greer said yesterday that anyone interested in the topic for discussion or in parliamentary debating is invited to attend.

The topic of abolishing laws which prohibit inter-racial marriages evoked much comment last spring when the state student legislature took this up.

Organizational Meeting Called By Cardboard

"Being one of the largest cardboard sections in the eastern United States, the UNC Cardboard needs a large staff," Pat Dooley, president of the Cardboard, has announced.

"For this reason," he continued, "we are having a second organizational meeting this fall for those who could not attend the first meeting in September." The meeting will be tonight at the office in Emerson Stadium at 7 p.m.

Lawrence Wilson, Art Director, will explain his department which thinks of the stunts and draws them. The Office Department and the Usher Department will be explained by Cotton Hale and Thal Elliott respectively.

For work in all departments there are awards based on year and a point system. The first year award is a certificate of merit, and the second award is a UNC Cardboard jacket. A Cardboard monogrammed sweater is given the third year in recognition of work; fourth year members receive gold keys.

Dooley extended an invitation to all freshmen, upper classmen, and coeds. He said that refreshments will be served.

CONFERENCES COMING UP—YM-YWCA Conference Committee Co-Chairmen Suzanne Mosteller and Larry Anderson are planning a full season of events.

Many Committee Meets Mark Y's 'Kick Off' Week

The YMCA-YWCA "Kick-Off Week," which began Monday and continues through next Monday, has four meetings scheduled for today.

"Kick Off Week" is designed to get the many committees and functions of the Y underway in their various projects.

Today's workshops lead off with a discussion group on "Campus Social Problems" at 4 p.m. in the Y building. The discussion leader will be Doug Sessoms.

Weekend Meet Features Beach On Conscience

By BEN TAYLOR

Are you apathetic... interested only in future security; or a conformist... lacking in strong individualism? Is this a picture of the typical Carolina student, including yourself?

These and many other questions on contemporary campus life will come in for discussion when the UNC YMCA-YWCA and the N. C. State YMCA co-sponsor a weekend conference on Oct. 11-12 at Quaker Lake.

Dr. Waldo Beach's important new book, "Conscience On Campus," will serve as the basis for discussion. Dr. Beach is Professor of Christian Ethics at Duke University and a renowned speaker on college campus problems and ethics.

Conference co-chairman Larry Anderson said the joint conference will serve to "provide an opportunity to examine realistically contemporary campus life and the motivation behind it, and to search for the answers to the problems involved."

"It will be a week-end conference planned with the new students especially in mind."

Plans for the conference call for talks by Dr. Beach on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon, as well as study groups, panel discussions and a vespers talk by Jack Lewis. Regular Sunday morning worship services will also be held at the conference site.

"Conscience On Campus," according to Anderson has won praise from many sources in the months since its publication because of the "honesty, wit, and insight with which Dr. Beach examines college life."

"It is a realistic, concise interpretation of Christian ethics for college life; also, it is being used as the basis for study groups and conferences on campuses throughout the country this fall," Anderson said.

The conference will begin at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Oct. 11, and will end around 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. It will begin late so as to avoid conflicting with the football game that afternoon.

Transportation to and from the conference site will be provided, Anderson said.

Y officials have urged anyone interested in the weekend conference to register at the Y office today.

Cobb Phones Are Disconnect Due To Damage

The two telephones on second floor, Cobb, have been cut off temporarily because one of the phones was damaged.

Rudy Edwards, IDC president, said yesterday that the phones were cut off this past weekend and will remain off for around a week. Edwards said neither phone on second floor had been working well. But before repairs were able to work on the phones, the wires of one had been cut and the box ripped from the wall.

In case of an emergency, the telephones on Cobb's other floors are working, Edwards said.

Edwards, who is also an adviser in the dorm, saw to it that the phones were cut off temporarily.

Capital Improvements At UNC May Take Special Bond Issue

By CURTIS GANS

A special bond issue may be floated in order to pay for capital improvements to the University—including a new student union — Chancellor W. B. Aycock explained at the first Chancellor's Cabinet meeting of the year yesterday.

President Furtado Urges SP To Improve Campus

Student Body President Don Furtado, speaking last night before the Student Party, admonished the body not to compromise itself, that a party is not a thing to exist for itself.

Furtado, in addressing the party, stressed the role of Student Party in student government, saying, that it is easy at times for a party to try and maintain itself. He expressed the opinion that the party should express its beliefs with the idea of making the campus better.

In his opening remarks Furtado apologized to the gathering for his failure to attend the party's first meeting last week because of a previous engagement. "This is my party," he said, "and in the past four years it has carried me a long way."

"The problems on campus are rather evident," he said in outlining points he would like to see the party carry out. Furtado urged the group to look around and see things that are wrong, and secondly to find people who are willing to work to improve the world and the campus.

At the conclusion of Furtado's speech, Student Party Chairman Leon Holt called for announcements. Erwin Fuller pointed out that SP began a series on present campus problems last year and that at the present there were several areas of concern.

Fuller called attention particularly to the question of proposed revisions in the present election laws.

According to Chairman Holt these proposed election law revisions, will be probably discussed at the next meeting along with a suggestion by Don Furtado to change the regular meeting night to Tuesday.

Courts Uphold Prison Term Of UNC Grad

RICHMOND, Va. — A state court permitting the government to disclose only those parts of classified investigative documents relative to testimony was upheld here Monday by the U. S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals.

In upholding the statute the court affirmed a six-year prison sentence for Junius Orving Scales, a Greensboro native, Scales was convicted in 1955 of knowingly belonging to an organization Communist party which advocated violent overthrow of the government.

The Supreme Court reversed Scales, first conviction in the Eastern District of North Carolina because the government declined to produce FBI reports from their informers. The high court held the defense must be entitled initially to see the reports to determine what use would be made of them.

Since the first conviction, a statute was passed allowing the government to expose only those parts of documents considered pertinent to a case.

Scales, a UNC graduate, contended through counsel that his constitutional rights were being violated on a charge of mere association unaccompanied by unlawful conduct.

On this point the appellate court said: "The activities of such a group constitute a clear and present danger to the state and he who joins with open eyes becomes a part of all that he sees."

University Party Will Meet Next Week

The University Party will hold a general meeting next week for old members as well as new ones. At a meeting of the Executive Board this afternoon, the date and time will be determined, according to Jack Lawing, party chairman.

Carolina Sports Crowds To Be Rated On Conduct

At each home basketball and football game, Carolina crowds will be rated by visiting ball teams in a race with other conference schools for the Atlantic Coast Conference Sports Writers Association award.

"The award, which is presented each spring, was won last year by Duke University and the year before by Maryland.

"We are vitally concerned over the sportsmanship question and ference area," the association's executive secretary, Bill Hensley, wrote in a letter to Student Body President Don Furtado.

During football season, visiting ball players are rating the Carolina crowds. Both the teams and the officials will rate the crowds during the basketball season. Votes will be tabulated and the trophy will be awarded in the spring.

hope that this trophy will be the most sought after honor in the conference area."

Deane, who represented the 8th in 1956, said Christians should be District for five terms until losing direct the thinking of misguided Southerners on the race issue.

Deane lost in the 1956 primary election because he had refused to sign the Southern Manifesto, a states' right document.

The Chancellor discussed UNC proposals at the request of Student Body President Don Furtado, who brought forward some tentative proposals for bettering student-faculty relations which will be discussed at the next Cabinet meeting.

Aycock pointed out that the University was requesting over 11 million dollars, and that this was divided into three budgets.

The first budget, the "A" budget, covers the operating expenses at the present level of education with increments only according to predicted growth of the University. This budget is currently before the Advisory Budget Committee for approval or suggested final changes.

The "B" budget contains expansion, increase in salary, research facilities, and other items indicative of the growth of the University.

A new feature of the "B" budget is that across the board increases on faculty salaries are not present. There is a lump sum to be given for salary increases to be appropriated by the administration and department heads as they see fit.

The Chancellor pointed out that the main emphasis in the "B" budget is on faculty benefits.

The "B" budget is under consideration at the present time and a report from the Advisory Budget Commission will be forthcoming soon.

The third facet of the budget is permanent improvements. Heading the list of permanent improvements is additions to existing buildings and building repair.

In the original budget request, the School of Public Health's request for buildings was placed separately from the request of the University for additional buildings.

In the University's request, a building for geology and geography came first, followed by a new student union, and the botany building.

These capital improvements are usually made from surplus monies, and this year there probably will be no surplus, according to the Chancellor. Hence, the necessity of a bond issue.

In order to formulate the bond issue it was necessary to consolidate the request from the School of Public Health and the general University request. After formulation, the new student union

Law Alumni Reunion Set This Weekend

Law alumni will return to the University next weekend for their annual reunion complete with a dinner, business session and reception.

Attorney General Malcolm Seawell will address the annual Law Review dinner, to be held Friday night, at 6:30 p.m. at Howard Johnson's Restaurant on the Durham Boulevard.

Presiding will be Paul Johnston, director of the N. C. Department of Administration, and chairman of the Law Review Committee of the UNC Law Alumni Association.

Election of officers and directors, presentation of a yearly budget and other business will concern the Association in its annual meeting at 11 a.m. Saturday in Manning Hall Courtroom.

President Harry L. Riddle of Morganton will preside. Other officers are Vice-Presidents Howard Manning of Raleigh and Francis Fairley of Charlotte, and the secretary-treasurer, Miss Mary Oliver of Chapel Hill.

The Law Alumni Day festivities will continue Saturday afternoon with attendance at the UNC-South Carolina football game in Kenan Stadium. Law students will sport canes and top hats and attend the game as a group in their annual day of recognition.

Following the game a reception for all law alumni and members of the bar will be held in the main reading room of the Law Library in Manning Hall.

was after the botany building, and behind the School of Public Health and geology and geography buildings.

The Chancellor said that the Board of Higher Education will issue its recommendations shortly to the Advisory Budget Commission concerning the bond issue, and if they approve of it and the Advisory Budget Commission approves of it, the bond issue may stand a good chance of passing the General Assembly when it convenes this winter.

If so, the State will vote on it in the November elections.

Library Phones Will Go Out; Abuse Is Cause

Unreasonable abuse of the pay telephones in the Library will result in the elimination of pay telephone service there, according to a report from the Student Library Committee yesterday.

This abuse specifically involved the use of the telephone booths as latrines, according to Pringle Pipkin, a member of the committee.

"Availability of telephone service in the University Library is a privilege, not a right," the report said, and the student committee has assumed the responsibility for "reasonable and proper respect for use of the telephones."

"The Library would like to continue to make this privilege available to the student body," the report continued. "However, when a privilege is abused, it is no longer a privilege, it is an abuse."

Included on the committee are Larry Taylor, chairman; Don Furtado, Jon Mazzy, Bill Lam, Tom Blumenfeld, Jim Purks and Pipkin.

Phi To Debate Death Sentence Tonight At 8

Is capital punishment just? This is the question the Philanthropic Literary Society will debate in its second meeting tonight at 8. Dr. W. B. Sanders, professor of criminology in the Dept. of Sociology will be the guest critic for the evening.

The bill of the evening is a resolution favoring the abolition of capital punishment in the state of North Carolina. Arguments supporting abolition will center on the practical failures of the policy.

Rep. Don Jacobs, the author of the bill, believes that capital punishment has outlived its usefulness to society, that the infliction of the death penalty seems to have little continues to be one of the world's effect on the crime rate which highest.

As recently as the 19th Century the death penalty was given for a variety of minor crimes.

The bill before the Phi would abolish such practices, substituting rehabilitation as the primary goal of law enforcement.

Students and faculty members who are interested in the debate, particularly freshmen, have been invited to attend. The society will meet at 8 p.m. in Phi Hall in New East.
