BEFORE 'ANGEL' OPENING

Kin, Showpeople Will Honor Wolfe

Homage will be paid Thomas Wolfe by his contemporaries and theatrical personalities at a dinner preceding the first off-Broadway production of "Look Homeward Angel," Dec. 5.

The play, based on Wolfe's famous novel of the same name and written for the stage by Mrs. Ketti Frings, will be presented by the Carolina Playmakers Dec. 5 and 6. Invitations have been sent to motion picture star and Wolfe admirer Charles Laughton, playwright Clifford Odets, producer Kermit Bloomgarden, director Abbott Von Norstand, and Mrs. Frings.

Others expected for the informal affair are three members of the Wolfe family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolfe of Spartanburg, S. C., and Miss Mary Louise Wolfe, a cousin.

Paul Green, Ben Cone, Albert Coates, Corydon P. Spruill, Jonathan Daniels, Legette Blythe, and Victor Bryant, all Wolfe contemporaries, also will be invited.

There will be no formal program, but plans have been made for the conversations and discussions at the dinner to be recorded for possible broadcast.

Mrs. Frings gave special permission to the Playmakers to present the prize-winning play which is still running in New York.

Wolfe, a native of Asheville, attended the University at Chapel Hill. He was a member of the Carolina Playmakers during his student days.

Experienced Students Have Parts In 'Angel'

Robert Ketter, of Wyncote, Pa., and Betty Green, of Jacksonville, Florida, will appear with The Carolina Playmakers as Eugene Gant and Laura James in "Look Homeward, Angel."

The Ketti Frings dramatization of Thomas Wolfe's novel is scheduled for Memorial Hall, December 5 and 6 at 8:30 p.m.

Miss Green is a junior dramatic art major. She has appeared with the Jacksonville Little Theatre in "The Long Goodbye," "The Remarkable Mr. Pennypacker," and Ketter is a graduate assistant in the department of dramatic art. He has worked with the Playmakers in "Peer Gynt," "The Lark," and "What Every Woman Knows." Last summer, Ketter portrayed the aging William Henry Harrison in the Cherokee drama "Uto These Hills."

The character of Eugene is the counterpart of the novelist, Thomas Wolfe.

Reserved seat tickets will be available for the general public November 24 at 214 Abernethy Hall and Ledbetter-Pickard.

Memorial Hall Will Be Scene Of Talent Show

By MARY ALICE ROWLETTE

Memorial Hall will rock, roll and roar Tuesday night when the third annual Carolina Cavalcade of Talent gets under way at 8 o'clock.

Entertaining the students will be some of the best talent on the UNC campus, sponsored by the Y and Graham Memorial. The show is under the direction of Jim Talley, Ess Bruner and Wally Kuralt.

Acts ranging from Elvis Presley impersonator David Barringer to a classical pianist, Henry McInnis will appear on the stage. Between these two extremes are 20 other acts, including dixieland, jazz and rock 'n' roll bands, vocalists, dancers and even an acrobat—Ann Summers.

Approximately eight groups are returning to the talent show for the second time. These include Les Sutorious playing Dixieland; Nick Kearns' rock 'n' roll combo, vocalist Kack Anthony, "The Shades," a singing group under the direction of Jim Talley; the Chi Omega "Circle 9," guitarist Shields Flynn; and Ed Crow and Joe Alexander in a "drum battle."

The rest of the show will consist of a variety of new "discoveries" on campus. Some of these are Bob Williams and Belle Harkrader, a dance duo who will perform to "The Night They Invented Champagne," Tim Longley and Louise McGee in a song and dance routine and Wendell Manuel, the comedy hit of the Freshman Camp Show.

Vocalists are Jimmy Gibbs, Ralph Harrington, the Sigma Chi Singers under the direction of Charlie Clement and two singing groups from the Men's Glee Club, a quartet and "The Comrades," a quintet.

Carolina Men Fighting Irish For Number 7

By RUSTY HAMMOND

Special to The Daily Tar Heel

SOUTH BEND, IND. — Carolina's streaking Tar Heels lay a six-game winning skein on the line here today when they take on the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame with a possible bowl bid hanging in the balance.

Despite the fact that Carolina was ranked 11th by the AP and Notre Dame only 18th, the Irish will be favored by most of the experts on their home field.

Carolina enters today's battle with a fine 6-2 record, compiled after losing their first two games. Notre Dame has only a 4-3 slate, but have lost to the top teams in the nations such as Army, Purdue, and Pitt.

The probable starting line-ups:

Pos.	Carolina	Notre Dame
LT	Don Kemper	Monty Stickle
LE	Phil Blazer	Frank Gernia
LG	F. Swearingen	Dick Shulsen
C	Ronnie Koes	Myron Pottios
RG	Fred Mueller	Al Ecuyer
RT	Don Redding	Chuck Puntillo
RE	Al Goldstein	Bob Wetoska
QB	Jack Cummings	George Izo
LHB	Wade Smith	Bill Mack
RHB	Emil DeCantis	Jim Crofty
FB	Don Klochak	N. Pietrosante

Carolina will sorely miss today sophomore end John Schroeder who was injured in the Virginia game. Tackle Don Stallings, however, has recovered from a practice injury and should be ready to go today. Don Kemper will start in Schroeder's place, and other than Schroeder the Tar Heels are in top shape.

Notre Dame absorbed a 29-26 beating last week against Pitt, and many injuries resulted from the hard-fought contest. Myron Pottios, Bob Williams, Don Toth, Chuck Puntillo, and Dan Griffith all got banged up in the Pitt game but most of them will play. Guard Jim Schaff and Tackle Bronko Nagurski are out for this game, however.

In addition to the great team warfare, several individual battles will be waging on the field today. Carolina's recent find, fullback Don Klochak, will be pitting his bulling type of play against the equally tough Nick Pietrosante. The great lines of each team clash here today being recognized as two of the finest in the country. Quarterback Jack Cummings will have his play-calling and passing skill compared to that of Irish sophomore flash George Izo.

Carolina is now the number 10 team in the country on total defense, and the Irish are number 5 in total offense.

The Tar Heels will run from variations of a split-T, using flankers, slot backs, and lonesome ends. The Irish, who were a strictly ground team before the coming of Izo, will probably do much the same.

A crowd of better than 56,000 is expected for the game today, and at last count only a few tickets remained with the prospects of a sell-out getting better each minute.

Carolina today will be trying to do something no Tar Heel team has ever done—beat Notre Dame. In the series, the Irish have swept 8 straight.

Notre Dame will have to guard against the thing that has plagued them thus far this year or they'll have a rough go of it. The Irish have fumbled the ball consistently and with Carolina's cat-like ball hawk linemen on the loose, Notre Dame will have to be on the ball.

Fletcher Says ACC Contract Not Violated

By CHUCK FLINNER

Fred Fletcher, general manager of WRA-TV in Raleigh, yesterday charged that the UNC-Notre Dame game could be televised without a violation of any contract between the ACC and the New York promoters.

James Weaver, ACC commissioner, said yesterday that televising the game in this area would be a violation of the ACC television agreement.

In a wire to The Daily Tar Heel Fletcher stated, "We were advised by Mr. Cornwell (O. K. Cornwell, secretary-treasurer of the ACC) that no such provision was contained in that contract."

Cornwell was not available for comment. Cornwell and Weaver were both in Raleigh for a meeting of the Executive Committee of the ACC yesterday. Cornwell's office revealed that there were no legal grounds for prohibiting the televising of the game but on moral grounds it would be unfair to the sponsors.

In Weaver's statement Thursday which freed the University of any responsibility in the television decision, he said the telecast would be against the Television Committee's policy of only sponsoring games between conference members as well as a violation of the agreement.

"The ACC has sold the rights to a sponsor, and if any other games were televised, it would not be fair to the sponsor," Weaver said Thursday.

WRAL-TV could get clearance for televising the game if Weaver consented. No legal provision prevents the telecast and Charles Erickson stated Thursday the University would like to have the game televised.

Option Asked In Atlanta On Integration

ATLANTA — (AP) — Atlanta's Mayor William B. Hartsfield yesterday demanded that the state of Georgia "let the people of Atlanta be the jury to decide the fate of her own schools."

The mayor's statement came shortly after the city's four-man legislative delegation pledged itself to keep the public schools operating if there is any way to do it.

It has been widely forecast that Atlanta schools will have to close next September if negroes are ordered admitted and state laws aimed at blocking racial integration in classrooms are invoked.

As the prospect of school closings has become stronger there has been increasing demand from Atlantans that the city keep its schools operating even if it means acceptance of some integration.

Under present state law, this could not be done and Hartsfield called for modification of state law to put the decision in the city's hands.

At a citizens' meeting Thursday, there was strong demand that the schools be kept in operation even if this meant integration. The lawmakers joined in the feeling that the schools should not be closed but warned that keeping them open would be extremely difficult.

Rep. Ralph McClelland said he had found 95 per cent of the children want to keep the schools open, regardless, and Mrs. Edmund Phillips, mother of two children, said she and "many, many more parents" desire the same thing "above all else."
