

TRACKIN' THE TARHEELS

It now appears after only two games that Carolina's Tar Heels could give any team in the country a real battle in the second half. For the second straight contest, the Tar Heels shook off a bad first half and poured on the power in the second half to win easily.

Against Clemson, Carolina didn't look exactly bad in the initial half. It was just that the Tigers looked very good in hitting 59% of their shots. Carolina ran away with it, however, in the second stanza, both offensively and defensively.

Against Virginia the Heels did look bad in the first half, especially in the closing minutes. They blew an early lead to the Cavaliers, who came on quickly in the closing moments to pull within a point at 29-28.

Virginia even led briefly at the beginning of the second half. But it was very briefly, for the Tar Heels hit a real hot streak and pulled ahead to 39-31, and after that were never threatened.

Most of those points in the spurt came on a Doug Moe to Lee Shaffer combination. Moe passed to Shaffer twice for lay-ups which Lee made good. He also collected a foul shot on each play.

As far as shooting went, Moe had a bad night. Everywhere else, though, he was exceptional, especially on assists and rebounds. Doug grabbed off 11 rebounds for second high man.

Dick Kepley was held down to 10 points against the Cavaliers, a far cry from his 24 in the opener. But Kepley was a demon on defense, hauling in 16 rebounds and stopping big Herb Busch, but good. Busch didn't score a point or get a rebound.

This year's Tar Heel team features a slight "New Look" from those teams of the past. For instance, on the national championship team, the order of every game was "get the ball to Rosenbluth." Last year Pete Brennan was the big man.

It appears at this early date that the '58-'59 version of the Tar Heels won't have any "big" man, it will have five. There probably won't be any one big scorer, but all five of the starters had most of the subs are capable of a 20-point night.

This may serve to make the Tar Heels even more dangerous than they have been in the past. After the Virginia game, Coach Frank McGuire remarked, "We have five men out there playing together."

Before the season started, there was talk around campus that the basketball team had "five good individual stars but they will never be able to work together." It seems now that the exact opposite is true. They have five good individual stars, but they work together, and how.

The conference race is moving merrily along with Sattre College now in the driver's seat. The Pack is unbeaten in three games, two of them against league foes Wake Forest and Maryland. Carolina, of course, has an identical in conference record, but has so far not met the stiff competition that State has.

Game Highlights: In the pressbox for the Virginia game was Lou Caracerra, an assistant coach at St. John's. He was scouting the Cavaliers who meet St. John's later in the season. Caracerra is quite an old hand with Tar Heel players, having coached Tommy Kearns, Hugh Donahue and York Larese at St. Ann's High School in New York City. He played for Frank McGuire when McGuire was at St. John's.

Also in the pressbox was Ken Rosemond, former Tar Heel backcourt man and last year's freshman cage coach. Rosemond is now assistant coach at South Carolina, and he was scouting the Tar Heels who meet South Carolina in their next game.

A disappointing note: Even with the small capacity in Woollen Gym, the last two home games have not been sellouts. Both nights there have been plenty of seats available.

BIG NIGHT—Harvey Salz had his biggest night of the year against Virginia, gunning for 19 points. Salz was high scorer for both teams. He is also the Tar Heel playmaker.

Swimmers Meet ECC Today

Carolina's defending ACC champion swimming team, fresh from a 64-18 rout of Clemson in their season opener, travel to Greenville today to meet East Carolina College in their home pool.

The meet should be something of a breather for the Tar Heels, a meet that Coach Pat Earey has described as "not a real test." Once again Earey's hot-shot sophomores will be getting more of valuable experience, the only ingredient they lack for another shot at the ACC crown.

The sophs did exceptionally well against Clemson, especially freestyler Harry Bloom. Bloom, who cracked many of Carolina's freshman records last year, was the only double winner in the meet. He captured the 220 freestyle and the 440 freestyle.

Another soph, Randy Dodson, finished first in the 200-yard butterfly and helped his mates to a win in the 400-freestyle relay. Dodson will be heavily counted on today, in addition to soph Tom Gurrant, another freestyler.

Old hands like Kit Mercer in the medley relay, Dick Cashwell and Pete Reynolds on the diving boards, Brent Nash in the 100-freestyle will also be looking for second victories.

Still another soph, Bob Hunter, will be out for win number two in the backstroke event.

Last year the Dolphins roared through 11 straight meets without a loss, and appear to be well on the way to another undefeated season under at Earey.

Five All-Americans graduated off last year's team, but even these losses seem to have able and willing replacements which appear in the form of sophomores up from one of the finest frosh teams in the history of the conference.

Football To Open Vs. Clemson

By Associated Press
Carolina swapped pesty North Carolina State for Clemson as its opening day football foe on the 1959 schedule announced Tuesday by Athletic Director Chuck Erickson.

The 10-game slate includes all the Tar Heels' 1958 opponents except Southern California who will be replaced next year by Miami, Fla.

Carolina plays five home games and five on the road. The latter include traditional season-ended against Duke, Nov. 21 at Durham.

Coach Jim Tatum's Carolina crew, which won six and lost four in 1958, will open with Clemson, the year's Atlantic Coast Conference Champion, in a home game Sept. 19.

The Tar Heels will play all seven other conference foes, and, in addition to Miami, will meet Norte Dame and Tennessee in inter-sectional matches.

They'll play North Carolina State at home Oct. 3. The Wolf-pack, opening day team for the past three years, spoiled the Tar Heels' debuts in 1956, 1957 and 1958.
