Carolina Named Host School For Model U. N. Assembly

Noted United Nations personalities and around 300-400 students from colleges in six Southern states are expected here for a Model UN Assembly the weekend of April 9-11.

Botany Search Yields Data For Book

One of the world's most intensive and complete searches for scientific botanical data has just been completed at Chapel Hill, the end of a three-year's exploration for a book on the "Flora of the Carolinas."

Included in the 150,000 plant specimens gathered from all parts of North and South Carolina are more than 3,000 different species of plants.

About 200 species were not known to exist previously in the Carolinas.

Botanists report discovery of two species which were heretofore unknown to science!

The biggest part of the Flora project is over — that is, gathering the specimens. In the three years remaining in the program, the scientists hope to write the many descriptions needed to produce the book.

Three years ago botanists at Chapel Hill set out to answer the common question: "How many kinds of plants grow in North and South Carolina?"

The three-year collecting program designed to furnish an answer to this question has been completed on schedule. The work deals primarily with the kinds of plants and their distribution in North and South Carolina, but the work will also serve as a complete and up to date survey of the plant resources of the two Carolinas. First Playbill Due In Spring, Says Editor

The first issue of Playbill will appear early in the spring semester, Gary Arzt, Playbill business manager, said yesterday.

Playbill is a newly established publication that will program the events of campus organizations and that will also include features and editorials. Copies of Playbill will be distributed at various events on campus, such as Playmaker productions and concerts.

Other than the programs in the center of the publication, the features and editorials will be changed bi-monthly. The programs will, of course, be changed for each new event.

One other feature of Playbill will be its section on coming events. Arzt said yesterday any organization desiring coverage in the coming events column or wanting programs included should contact him by writing to Box 1313, Chapel Hill.

As the host for the Assembly, the Y's UN Education Committee, headed by Betsy May and Robert Foushee, has already made operational plans for the meeting.

Committee chairmen for the Assembly are currently working with a tentative program for the three-day sessions, but they have a great need for student workers, Betsy May said yesterday. Volunteer workers may contact the Y or may even stop by the Y when the UN committee meets every Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Cynthia Grant and Belinda Foy, co-chairmen of preparations for the Assembly, are patterning plans so that the Assembly will be as similar to the UN as possible.

As in the United Nations, resolutions will be introduced and caucusing will be held during the Model Assembly. At the conclusion of the three-day Assembly, a news letter will be publishing, containing the resolutions passed and other activities during the weekend.

Liz Howell, chairman of the Rules on Procedure Committee, will be in charge of seeing that UN procedure is followed as much as possible during the Model Assembly.

In keeping close to the operations of the United Nations, the Model Assembly will be working within its goal of helping college students to understand the United Nations through active participation.

As yet, the main speakers for the weekend Assembly have not been secured, but two prominent UN workers will be here for a key note address April 9 and the main speech April 10.

Most of the Assembly session will be held in Carroll Hall, a section for UN "delegations" will be roped off, and a special place for spectators will be arranged. Flags of all UN nations will be placed on the stage in Carroll Hall.

Each "delegation" will be five representatives from colleges in Kentucky, Virginia, West Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia and North Carolina. Each college will be one "delegation." To give a real international flavor, foreign students on campus will assist in the Model Assembly.

Although the real work on the Model Assembly is being done through the Y UN committee, the sponsoring group is the State College Council for the United Nations (CCUN). The state chairman is Bill Sugg, who is also president of the local YMCA.

AAUN IS CCUN AFFILIATE
Affiliated with the CCUN is the American Association for the United Nations (AAUN), which will assist in preparations for the Model Assembly — primarily through housing arrangements for delegates — through the Orange County AAUN chapter.

WORK UNDERWAY
Already at work for the Model Assembly are: Jack Doug, in charge of physical arrangements; Judy King, housing chairman; Nancy Smathers, treasurer; Jan Gardner, chairman of the Secretariat; Molly Wiley, historian; Belinda Foy, recording secretary; Margaret Ray, corresponding secretary; Jeannie Aldige, publicity chairman; and Joyce Farris and Joanne Baker, hospitality co-chairmen.

Melissa Osborne is in charge of orientation of eight and ninth grade boys who will serve as pages during the Model Assembly.

More Snow Is Possible This Week

Carolina students slipped and slid their way to classes after the weekend's snowstorm faced with the possibility of more of the same.

The United States Weather Bureau reported yesterday that Carolinians can expect more rain or snow Wednesday night or Thursday. Freezing weather until then should keep roads and walks icy.

The high temperature today is expected to be in the middle 30's with the low tonight put at 12 degrees. The highest temperature yesterday was 32 degrees.

Major highways throughout the state are clear but there are some icy spots on secondary roads. U.S. 441 in the Smokies still requires chains.

Chapel Hill Choral Club To Present Bach Tonight

Bach's "Christmas Oratorio," the annual Christmas concert to be performed by the Chapel Hill Choral Club, will be presented tonight in Hill Hall at 8 o'clock.

Sponsored by the UNC Music Department, the program is a part of the Tuesday Evening Series and is open to the public without charge.

Don Furtado Names Six To Offices

Six members have recently been added to the attorney general's staff, according to Student Body President Don Furtado. The members, subject to the approval of Student Legislature, are Bob Baynes, George Boss, Graham Adams, Paula Quick, Mary Bahnsen and Jenny Elder.

Furtado said the reason for the additional members to the staff is that "we envision an expansion of the attorney general's investigatory duties to Campus Code cases, as well as Honor Code cases."

The new members will be primarily concerned with investigating any Campus Code or Honor Code violations which arise and with serving, at times, as the defense counsel for students on trial by the appropriate court.

"All six have illustrated a sincere desire to assist in the administration of the attorney general's duties, and I'm sure they will be excellent additions to the staff," said Furtado.

The members were selected last week, after a discussion between Furtado, Dick Robinson (the attorney general) and Dave Biren (the assistant attorney general).

Dr. Joel Carter, associate professor of music here, will direct the concert. Seven members of the group will appear as soloists in the first three parts of Bach's oratorio will perform the soprano recitatives.

Tenor Robert Melton, staff member at Duke University Hospital, will sing the role of the Evangelist. Betty Jean Smith of Chapel Hill will perform the alto solos. Bass recitatives will be presented by Dr. U. T. Holmes, Kenan professor of Romance Languages. Barbara Peacock of Chapel Hill performs the soprano recitatives.

"Mighty Lord," the bass aria, will be sung by UNC graduate student Marvin Tatum from Richmond, Va. The soprano-bass duet, "Lord, Thy Mercy," will be sung by Beth Diaz of Durham and David L. Vaughn, graduate student from Salem.

Accompanying the soloists will be Lee Bostian, graduate assistant in the Music Department and regular accompanist for the 35-year-old organization.

A two-piano arrangement of the orchestral accompaniments for the choruses will be performed by Bostian and Kay Knight, an English major from Osceola, Mo.

University Finds Space For Storing Of Supplies

The University has obtained space to store supplies replacing those recently destroyed in a fire on the campus, and officials are investigating the possibility of building new storage facilities, preferably off-campus.

The supplies were destroyed the morning of Dec. 5 when a fire swept through a middle section of the University's storeroom. Other sections were not damaged, but the interior of the section—holding varied household items ranging from iron piping to toilet tissue—was gutted. The fire was believed to have started from a malfunctioning electric motor.

Webb Evans, director of the UNC Office of Purchase and Stores, said that for the present combustible items are being stored in a quonset hut near the filter plant in Carrboro.

Non-combustibles, he said, are being stored in the basement of Aycock Men's Dormitory on the campus. Aycock is a relatively new structure. Some other items are being stored in sections of the storage facility not destroyed by the fire.

Mr. Evans said that no decision has been reached on whether to build back the present structure, located on the campus near Phillips Hall, or to build an entirely new building on a new site.

"We hope to build a new one off the campus some place," he said. He noted that the present stores are in a "congested" area.

He said that accountants are still working on the records to determine actual loss in the fire. A report is due this week, he said. Early estimates placed the loss at around $80,000.

Dr. Fred P. Robbins of Chicago will speak before the department's Monthly Scientific Meeting Thursday at 4 p.m. His subject will be "The Problems of Consensus."

NAMED TO QUEEN'S COURT

Coed Going To Sugar Bowl

Lila Scott, senior from Shreveport, La., has been named to the 1959 Sugar Bowl Queen's court.

Miss Scott was chosen to represent the University at the Jan. 1 game in New Orleans by a committee chaired by Ralph Cummings. Other committee members were Jackie McCarthy, Spencer Dormitory counselor, Miss Julia Staples, secretary of the student government, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs and Mrs. Sam Magill and LuAnne Thornton, personnel adviser to women.

Each school whose football team has appeared in the bowl in recent years is asked to send a representative to the court. Carolina last played there in 1949.

In choosing Carolina's representative, the committee interviewed all seniors having served in the Yack Beauty Queen's court. Selection criteria were beauty, personality, poise and similar qualities. Miss Scott is a member of Phi Beta Phi Sorority. In addition to her Yack Court Membership, she has been named to the Beat Dook Parade Queen's court.

Two Visiting Lecturers Schedule Talks Here

Two visitors are scheduled to lecture at the Department of Psychiatry of the University School of Medicine.

Dr. E. James Anthony will speak today on "Sleep Disturbances." He is acting director of the Child Guidance Clinic of the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

Dr. Fred P. Robbins of Chicago will speak before the department's Monthly Scientific Meeting Thursday at 4 p.m. His subject will be "The Problems of Consensus."

The Carolina Quarterly

QUARTERLY COVER, FALL-WINTER '58 — The cover drawing for the new Quarterly was done by Feliks Topolski. Topolski was awarded the International Fine Arts Council's gold medal of honor in 1955. The campus literary magazine prints the drawing by courtesy of Topolski's Chronicle, London, England.

New Carolina Quarterly Has Variety Of Writers

This year's first copy of the Carolina Quarterly, which appeared Monday, represents writers from Reno to Chapel Hill.

A UNC senior honors candidate in creative writing, a graduate student in English and a professor of philosophy are the local contributors to the magazine.

Other contributors include a graduate student at UCLA; a resident of Reno, Nevada; the editor of Coastlines; a Virginian who graduated from New York University in 1926; and a graduate student in English at Yale University.

The Quarterly contains four short prose fiction articles, five poems, four reviews and one article entitled "The Liberal View of Man and Society."

The short prose fiction includes such stories as "A Walk on the Stepped-on Side with the Man with Golden Hair Growing out of a Golden Toe."

The front cover drawing of the Quarterly was done by Feliks Topolski, the 1955 winner of the International Fine Arts Council's gold medal of honor.

The 82-page magazine is the eleventh volume published.

Decoration Judging Planned Tonight

Judging for the GMAB sponsored Christmas decorating contest, originally scheduled for last night, will be held tonight at 7 o'clock. The judging was postponed last night because of bad road conditions.

Edna Faye Pugh, chairman of the Special Events Committee, said engraved trophies will be awarded winners in these two divisions: 1) fraternity and sorority and 2) men's and women's dorms.

Several residents of Chapel Hill will serve as judges. Decorated doors of dorms and fraternities and sororities will be judged on originality of the decoration, neatness and appropriateness.

Debaters Leave NYU Undeclared

By RON SHUMATE

The UNC debate team, which finished the New York University Hall of Fame debate undefeated, was second in a field of 43 teams.

The debate, which was held last weekend, was represented by such schools as Princeton, Harvard, Yale, the Naval Academy, Boston College and Washington and Lee University.

Teams defeated by the UNC squad included Loyola University, Brooklyn University, Manhattan and the American School of Diplomacy.

The tournament was won by St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, also undefeated. St. Joseph's placed ahead of UNC on the basis of individual point records.

Princeton, Dartmouth and Georgetown tied for third place with 7-1 records.

The debates were judged on the basis of originality, analysis of argument, logic, rebuttal and delivery. Each debater had ten minutes for instructive speeches and five minutes for the body of his talk. The debate consisted of four rounds.

The topic of debate in the tournament was "Resolved: That the further development of nuclear weapons should be prohibited by international agreement."

The UNC affirmative team was made up of John Brooks and Tom Long. Members of the negative team were Clay Simpson and David Evans.

Long, a senior in his second year of debating, took second place honors earlier this year at the Emory University Peach Tree Tournament.

Brooks headed the Debate Squad last year and is currently president of the Forensic Council, the control body for all debate organizations. He is now in his fourth year of debating.

Simpson, the incumbent president of the Debate Squad, is a junior and has had over two years of debating experience.

Evans has had over two years of debating experience and is a junior.

The team left for New York by train Thursday morning and arrived late the same afternoon. They stayed at the New Yorker Hotel, attended a symposium Thursday night and a banquet Saturday night. They came back Sunday.

The symposium was attended by many prominent persons, including Merrill Eisenbud, the head of the New York branch of the Atomic Energy Commission; J. Anthony

Y Court Site Of Carol Sing Around Yule Tree Thursday

Y Court will be the scene Thursday night of a Carol Sing around the Christmas tree. The sing, to begin at 9 o'clock, is being sponsored by the Y and the Grail.

Bill Sugg, YMCA president, said Dr. Joel Carter of the Music Department will lead the singing. The Glee Club will also be present and will probably sing one number alone.

"The idea behind the sing," Sugg said, "is to get the various groups on campus, such as sororities, fraternities, dorms and other organizations, to do their caroling early in the evening and then come and join in a campus wide sing."

Sugg said hot chocolate and donuts will be served afterward.

Those working with the caroling, besides Sugg, are Charlie Huntington, in charge of the sing for the Grail, Denton Lotz, Sophie Martin, Betty Kay Johnson, Ben Taylor and John Hunnicutt.

This afternoon a meeting is planned in the Ram and Ewe office for all people interested in working on the magazine. Anyone with a large store of "printable" jokes is welcome, but the publication also needs writers, typists, cartoonists and advertising salesmen.

The following positions are also open: managing editor, copy editor, advertising manager, circulation manager, exchange editor, head of typing staff and censor.

Anyone unable to attend the meeting has been asked to leave his name at the Information Office of Graham Memorial.

Magazine Staff Will Meet This Afternoon
