

Planning Board Considers UNC Greek Locations

Three methods to solve the problem of locations for UNC fraternities and sororities were discussed by the Chapel Hill Planning Board at a Board meeting last week.

These methods included: a rezoning (now in effect), a special district for fraternity and sorority courts and the special use of property by an individual Greek organization, all on the basis of a plan approved by the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen.

Since the methods are still in the discussion stage, it has been suggested that the UNC Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council and Buildings and Grounds Committee offer their assistance in finding a solution to the problem of locations.

Fraternities and sororities now build or buy houses within an area of zoning, RA-10A, as stipulated in the Chapel Hill Zoning Ordinance passed in 1953.

"RA-10A" means the residential-agricultural area of at least 10,000 square feet and special conditions under which Greek organizations may build or buy a house.

The current zoning for fraternities and sororities has resulted in higher prices charged when the Greek organizations were making purchases. Also, some Chapel Hill residents complained they didn't want fraternity or sorority houses near their own homes.

The rezoning (now in effect) involves a petition from a fraternity or sorority, a joint hearing between the Planning Board and Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen, action and recommendation from the Planning Board, and then final action by the Aldermen.

The special district would be something similar to the fraternnity court, except that the houses included would "disturb" lines and not necessarily the individual lot requirements now followed.

Continuous Urban Area On Seaboard

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower called last night for careful planning of the development of America's cities to avoid haphazard growth and unsound financing.

"We must see that this growth is not like that of Topsy," the President said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Assn. of State Planning and Development Agencies.

Eisenhower said it seems clear that in the not-too-distant future the eastern seaboard from Portland, Maine, to Norfolk, Va., will be one continuous urban area.

"A new term—Megalopolis—has already slipped into our vocabulary to describe these giant groupings of central cities and suburbs," the President said.

Eisenhower also said the planning should be based on needs objectively determined, and not just on desirable projects, in order to make the dollars go as far as possible.

With the population increasing rapidly, more first-rate people must be attracted into the planning profession, Eisenhower said.

"We are a nation on the move; from country to city, from central city to suburbs, from metropolitan areas to urbanized regions in the corridors between metropolitan areas," Eisenhower continued.

Each fraternity in a "court" now must meet lot requirements of so much front yard, backyard and side-yard space and parking spaces. With a special permit, only the lot as a whole would have requirements. The placement of each house would be more flexible.

An individual fraternity or sorority would be able to apply for a special permit to build or buy at any location. Requirements in a consideration of such an application would include: yardage and parking space and, trees to serve as screening from neighboring houses. The application would be reviewed on the basis of the lot and a plan submitted.

This basis is considered to include more objective criteria and selection.

The Planning Board will continue a discussion of the fraternity and sorority location problem at future meetings on the first Tuesday of each month.

Russian Proposal Denounced By Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower yesterday denounced in strong language Russia's plan to demilitarize and isolate Germany. "An exercise in futility," he called it.

But Eisenhower, speaking at a National Press Club luncheon, offered "any assurance, any material move" to overcome Soviet fears of future German aggression.

The President's sharp words gave backing to an even stronger denunciation of the Russian plan for Germany made Tuesday by Secretary of State Dulles, who called it brutal, stupid and probably unworkable.

Dulles won from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday support for his insistence that the West be allowed to keep troops in Berlin and have free access to the city. The committee informally approved a resolution expressing its sentiments after a closed-door discussion with Dulles on free world problems.

In his prepared statement for the committee, which was made public, Dulles said America must be prepared to face up to perhaps generations of self-sacrifice and self-discipline to counter the economic and military growth of communism.

The expressions by the U. S. foreign policy leaders added up to a reaffirmation of unity on such questions as Germany as Eisenhower and Dulles prepared to talk here informally this weekend with Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan.

Eisenhower said in his press club talk he has no intention of making any new proposals to Mikoyan because that would transform the informal chat into a kind of negotiating conference.

The President said he wants to find out from Mikoyan, No. 2 Kremlin leader, whether the Soviets "are so sick of the armament burden that they want to find a way out of this dilemma." Eisenhower added that Mikoyan should be trying to find out the same thing from him.

"The most that can be expected from such an informal meeting," he said, "is to try to get behind each other's facial expressions and see what he is really thinking."

Talking of the Russian plan to demilitarize and isolate Germany, Eisenhower said:

"We think it is just an exercise in futility to try to demilitarize, neutralize, isolate a people as strong, as important, as virile as is the German people."

Eisenhower said the West should be ready to give the Russians assurances—"any material moves to show that there is no danger from these people and they shouldn't insist on isolating them."

Carolina Wins 72-68 In Overtime Contest

By RUSTY HAMOND

RALEIGH — Carolina's fired-up Tar Heels came through here tonight against pressure so thick you could cut it with a knife to beat arch rival N. C. State, the nation's No. 1 team, 72-68 in a thrilling overtime contest.

With the score knotted at 68-68 in the overtime, Doug Moe hit Lee

Shaffer with a perfect pass. Shaffer layed it in with 20 seconds left to put the Heels ahead to stay at 70-68. The final margin was provided when Harvey Salz hit a pair of free throws with one second left.

State jumped ahead early at 2-0 and 4-2, but after Larese's jump shot tied it at 4-4, the Tar Heels didn't trail again until late in the first half. The Tar Heels built a 4-point spread and held on until McGillivray's lay-up State within 2 at 25-23. Mac hit two free throws to tie it, then Richter's tap put State ahead 27-25. Doug Moe gave Carolina a brief tie on his jump shot, but McGillivray hit another jump to put the Pack ahead 29-27 at the half.

Carolina came back onto the floor after intermission and ran in seven points before the Wolfpack had scratched. Carolina then led until 6:02 showed on the clock.

Once again it was Bob McGillivray who hit two straight jumps to put his mates ahead 57-55. Carolina got the lead back on Salz's jump, but got it right back again on Pucillo's shot.

The Wolfpack, raced to a 63-59 margin which they held with only 1:43 left. Then Ray Stanley came off the bench and pumped in a jump shot and two free throws to tie it at 63-63 with 1:06 left. State played for a single shot, but Pucillo missed the lay-up and time ran out.

Carolina jumped off to a four point lead quickly in the overtime on Moe's lay-up and Salz's jump to go ahead 67-63. After that they never trailed.

Following Richter's two free throws, Stanley hit another to give Carolina a three point pad at 68-65, but Reiner's free toss and two more by Don Gallagher tied it at 68-68 with 1:07 left in the overtime.

Then came Moe's pass to the on-charging Shaffer who drilled the lay-up to put Carolina into the money at 70-68. State shot and missed, Carolina got the rebound and Salz was fouled with just one second left.

He calmly converted both shots of a one-and-one to erase any State hopes and provide the final margin of 72-68.

State, who had been No. 1 in the Associated Press poll, now faces a sharp nose dive. The Tar Heels stand a good chance of vaulting in to the top position.

The Heels had four big guns in the victory, led by Salz with 19. Larese followed with 17, while Moe hit 14 and Kephley 12.

State's big man was Bob McGillivray whose clutch shooting almost pulled it out for the Pack. Mac closed with 15 markers, trailed by Pucillo with 14 and Stepanovich with 13.

Two of the State starting five had fouled out midway through the last half. Both George Stepanovich and Dan Englehardt left the game on five personals. York Larese later fouled out for Carolina.

Strategy wise, the experts were all wrong as neither team attempted to hold the ball. Fast breaking accounted for many of both squads' points. State started off played conservatively, but speeded things up when they got behind.

Statistically, State won the game, but that's not what the scoreboard here said when the horn went off at the end.

No Free Telephones Insufficient Funds

Free telephones will not be installed in the Wilson Round Library this year, according to J. S. Bennett, director of operations.

There will be no free phones because the Library doesn't have sufficient funds to pay for them, he explained.

Don Furtado said yesterday he was in favor of having one free and one pay phone in the Library.

Originally there was one free telephone in the Library, but it was removed on the pretext that there were too many calls on the line. Two pay phones were installed to take care of all the calls. Since then the phones have been used infrequently.

A student government committee working with Bennett had the understanding that if it could be proved that fewer students were using the pay phones than had previously used the free phone, a free phone would be installed.

Last week student government learned that a pay phone would depend on library finances.

Letter Warns Heads To Stay In Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration has told government department and agency heads not to ask Congress for more money than is proposed for them in the President's budget.

It was learned yesterday that this admonition is contained in a letter to the officials from Maurice H. Stans, director of the Budget Bureau.

A spokesman for the bureau confirmed there had been a letter from Stans but contended it was not an attempt to gag officials who may be called on by Congressional appropriations committees for their views of Eisenhower's 77-billion-dollar budget.

The budget is to go to Congress Monday, and the House Appropriations Committee plans to begin hearings on it the next day. Chairman Ciraenec Cannon (D-Mo) said the first witnesses will be Stans and Secretary of the Treasury Anderson.

Since Democrats are already questioning the adequacy of Eisenhower's spending plans, there could be a row if committee members feel that witnesses are not expressing their views frankly.

The Budget Bureau spokesman described Stans' letter as merely calling attention to a 1954 circular, issued at the direction of the President, which spells out the responsibilities of officials in dealing with budget matters.

It is understood that Stans' letter directed witnesses to supply Frank answers to congressional questions. However, it admonished them to point out, if they voiced a view not consistent with the budget, that the budget represented the considered judgment of the President whose view of the situation was broader than their own.
