

Carolina's Second Ranked Tar Heels Blast Clemson 60-46

It looks as if Baron Adolph Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats will stay a solid choice as the nation's number 1 aggregation as long as they keep winning. The Cats closed first in both the AP and UP polls last week with the Tar Heels of Carolina breathing down their necks in both.

One publication, Sports Illustrated, gives the nod to Carolina. In ranking the teams, regionally, it rates the Tar Heels first in the South with Kentucky second and Auburn third.

After seeing the Wildcats slaughter three opponents, we can't help but believe maybe they deserve that lofty position. Just let them slip an inch, though, and Carolina will be on top, but quick.

The funny thing about it is that both Kentucky and Carolina have a nucleus of untried sophomores, and neither was rated at all highly before the season began. Now, eyes are opening all over the place and both teams roll along like ole man river.

The next test for Kentucky comes very soon when the Cats tangle with Auburn, who is undefeated this year and has a two-year streak of 24 games going. That might be the last straw.

The next toughest the Tar Heels face is next week when disappointing, but capable, Maryland comes to town. After that, well, there's always State to play again.

State skidded as low as sixth in one of the polls and held onto fourth in the other. The Pack is currently playing with, but not against, Carolina in Charlotte. The two teams swap opponents tonight.

Speaking of the next N. C. State-Carolina contest, upcoming on February 18, the final decision has been made as to where it will be held. After three sites were suggested and much controversy arose, the Athletic Department wisely decided to play the game here in Chapel Hill. Even though Woollen Gym will only hold 4,800, the move was still the right one.

Had the game been played in distant Charlotte, or even at Raleigh, there would have been an immense transportation for students problem. Even though both places had offered 7,000 student tickets, the simple fact remains the students could not have walked to the game. The game will be broadcasted for the benefit of those who don't get into the "Sardine Can".

Odd Fact: Kentucky, number 1 team in the nation, isn't even leading its own conference. The Wildcats were beaten by SEC foe Vanderbilt, while Auburn's unbeaten Plainsmen hold the league lead.

Sports Illustrated, in addition to handing the Tar Heels first place, had a picture and article on Carolina middle-distance flash Dave Scurlock. The article asks, "Is the United States a Second-Rate Track Power?" Scurlock runs today in the Millrose games in New York City against old rival Arnie Sowell.

Before last night's battle with Clemson, Carolina had compiled some amazing statistics: 1 — All five starters are averaging in double figures, 2 — They lead the league in offense (74.5), 3 — They average the biggest point spread (almost 10), 4 — York Larese is putting in exactly 50% of his shots.

After this weekend's double header in Charlotte, the Tar Heels have only 8 games left before the ACC Tournament. 4 of them, however, are at home.

Scurlock Runs In Millrose Games Today

All-American Dave Scurlock, North Carolina's 6'4 senior speedster, will meet a long-time rival once again in Saturday's Millrose Games in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Scurlock, fresh from a fine victory in the Knights of Columbus Games in Boston, will be up against Arnie Sowell, former Pittsburgh star who owns the world indoor record time of 1:50.3 in the 200-yard run. Another entry in Saturday's event is Tom Murphy, who edged out Big Dave for the New York A. G. title last season.

Ransom Convinced
Tar Heel Coach Dale Ransom is convinced that the Greensboro native is headed for his biggest season in this his final year. "Dave is a hard worker and a great competitor," Ransom begins. "He has a lot of confidence in himself. He has developed a strong aversion to losing and I think this will be his best season on the boards—both in quality of performance and in competition." Scurlock won three major indoor races last year. In addition to the Millrose title, he took firsts in the BAA at Boston and the Chicago Daily News meet. This season Dave nailed down second position in the Sugar Bowl 440, losing out to Olympic star Glenn Davis, before winning at Boston.

5 More Meets

After Saturday's race, Dave is scheduled to participate in the BAA in Boston on Feb. 7, the Philadelphia Inquirer Meet on Feb. 13, the New York AC meet on Feb. 14, the New York K of C. Meet on March 7, and the Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Games here on March 14.

Moe Paces With 22; Heels Face SC Tonight

CHARLOTTE — Carolina's nationally second-ranked Tar Heels had everything their own way here last night as they clobbered Clemson College 60-46 before 7,275 fans in Memorial Coliseum.

The Heels showed the effects of the long lay-off for exams in their play, but still managed to come through with more than enough for the Tigers.

Doug Moe, having his best night of the year, paced the Tar Heel attack with 22 points. Harvey Salz was the only other man in double figures, getting 10.

George Krajack and Bill Warren each had 13 for Clemson, while Doug Hoffman dumped in 12.

After the score was knotted early at 5-5, the Carolinians grabbed a lead they never relinquished the Coming back onto the floor after intermission, Carolina quickly ran the score up and pulled out of danger early in the second half. Clemson was in striking distance for the rest of the game, but could never muster a rally sufficient to close the gap.

The win boosted Carolina's overall season record to a dazzling 11-1, and kept their conference mark unbeaten at 6-0. It marked the Tar Heels' 5th straight win since losing their only game of the season to Michigan State in the Dixie Classic.

Clemson's defeat sunk them to 3-6 in the league and dropped their overall mark to 5-12.

Tonight at 7:30 the Tar Heels meet South Carolina, a team that gave State College a fight last night in the opener of a double header before bowing 63-53.

Carolina has already defeated both South Carolina and Clemson this season. Last time out the Heels whipped the Gamecocks by 70-57 in Columbia.

Frosh Win

Carolina's Tar Babies edged the Georgetown Frosh 75-73 on a jump shot by guard Don Walsh in the last six seconds. The win advanced the Carolina Frosh to the finals of the Georgetown Invitational Tourney; they face Bullis Prep tonight.

The Tar Babies trailed by 30-22 in the first half, but rallied to lead 38-33 at intermission. The game was close all the way.

The Scoring: Walsh 20, Po-feat 18, Hudock 16, Hubbard 9, McComb 8, Phillips 4.

rest of the night on Larese's steal and lay-up. Two more steals and easy shots followed giving Carolina a six-point spread.

Larese's jump gave the Heels their longest lead of the half at 25-16, but then the Tigers began to whittle away at the enemy margin, cutting it to 4 at 28-24. A late rally led by Lee Shaffer, Ray Stanley, and Danny Lotz pulled the Tar Heels away to a halftime spread of 10 points at 35-25.

University Volleyball

Once again the members of the UNC faculty have emerged out of their smoke-filled rooms and have taken their sneakers and headed for Woollen Gym. Why? The University Volleyball League is once again in action.

The teams have been set up in the same order as they were during the fall, with the exception of having new captains for the teams and the players have been selected for different teams than they were on during the fall.

The teams still number 6 with 8 players to a team. The new captains are: Pete Mullis, Carl Blyth, Bo Shepard, Mike Ronman, Marvin Allen and Henry House.

Some of the special rules state that play will begin as soon as four players are present, and when a game is in progress and new players arrive, they should be ejected into the game after one complete rotation of the team.

State Outlast Gamecocks 63-53

By KEN ALYTA

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Sixth-ranked North Carolina State led virtually all the way Friday night in scoring a 63-53 victory over South Carolina in the opening game of an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball doubleheader.

John Richter, 6-8 Wolfpack center, scored 21 points to lead the assault against South Carolina. State was on top by 13 points at the half with a late flurry after South Carolina had tied the score at 18-all with 5:30 to go.

State retained a 13-point lead at 52-39 midway of the last half before South Carolina tallied 8 consecutive points to trail by 5 with five minutes left.

Then, rebound ace George Stepanovich and little Lou Pucillo combined for 11 points, 6 by the latter, to put State safely ahead for its seventh conference victory in eight games. Pucillo had 16 points and Stepanovich 12 for the State team that was down to 10 men. Sophomore Niewierowski left school Thursday for what they called personal reasons.
