

Big 4 Meet Has Many Stars

By BING SOMERS

The initial Big Four Invitational Indoor Track Meet held here Saturday and won by Duke (62½ to 60 over Carolina) produced some of the finest times seen anywhere on the boards this year.

Highlighting the day-night attraction at the Tin Can was the splendid 1.51 half mile turned in by the Tar Heels' Dave Scurlock which missed the indoor world's record by a scant

.7 of a second and is this year's swiftest half in the country. It was the finest indoor 880 ever run by the lean All-American from Greensboro and following right behind him throughout the entire race was Duke's Tom Bazemore who came in in 1:51.7. Another "top personal performance" was recorded by Carolina's ace distance runner, Wayne Bishop, who lapped the 21-lap two-mile in 9:11.9.

So you think Carolina's loss to Maryland was terrible, a poor exhibition of basketball? You're right. But its not the end of the world by a long shot. The Tar Heels are still in the driver's seat despite the Terrapin upset.

At present Carolina sits at the top of the heap with an 11-1 conference record. In second place is State, who has already completed its ACC season, with a 12-2 mark. Far behind is Duke with a 7-6 slate.

A win over Virginia Wednesday night would clinch at least a tie for the regular season championship for the Heels. But in order to win the crown undisputedly, the Tar Heels must beat both Virginia and Duke (next Saturday).

Should Carolina split its remaining two games, a tie would be reached and a drawing for top seeding in the tournament would be in order. The prospects of this, however, are unlikely. Has the bubble burst? Were the Tar Heels really not as good as everyone thought? Have McGuire's boys finally cracked? In answer to all these, we think not. We feel that the young Carolinians have gotten the bad game "out of their system."

The Maryland game resembled the Michigan State game, Carolina's only other loss, in many ways. In both games the Heels fell behind and never quite caught up. In both games the Heels started a rally which was squelched at a turning point.

In the Michigan State game it was a call that gave the Spartans the ball on the out-of-bounds, a highly contested call. In the Maryland game it was another contested call, when Harvey Salz was ejected from the game.

Salz had gone up for a shot, which was blocked. The ball went out of bounds and it would have been Carolina on the out-of-bounds. But Salz felt that he had been fouled and conveyed these feelings to Referee Joe Mills. Mills felt the protestation was too violent and sent Salz to the bench.

Maryland made the technical foul shot, got the ball on the out-of-bounds, and made another basket. From there they spurred to a giant lead which the Tar Heels couldn't overtake. When Salz was thrown out the Tar Heels were within seven points.

Carolina is no longer number one team in the nation. Kentucky is, after its win over previously unbeaten Auburn. But the conference is the important thing now, not the national ranking.

Some feel their are rumblings of discontent from the league's lower echelon, that the doormats are turning into world-beaters. Well, it would be nice for news, but we're maintaining it just isn't so. Everyone is screaming about Duke. True, the Devils have put on a fine showing lately, but they still are not of the championship caliber it will take to win the ACC tourney.

Virginia, picked as a conference darkhorse before the season began, has finally gotten up off the floor and started to move. The Cavaliers whipped Maryland last week then bested Wake in two overtimes Saturday night.

Has Maryland come around? Maybe. On paper, Maryland is one of the league's better teams. Saturday night they showed it. But unless they can keep up such performances game after game, as they have not been doing, the Terps still rate as a so-so squad.

Let's face it, you just don't shoot 53% from the floor in every game, and that's what the Terps did Saturday night. Nor do you bring a team with a 7-12 record up and whip the number one team in the nation very often.

In conclusion, we look to Carolina to bounce back strong and take both the regular season and tournament in the ACC.

Walsh Gets 21

Tar Babies Blast High Point, 88-73

HIGH POINT — The Tar Babies pulled away in the second half here last night to defeat the High Point College JV's 88-73 for the second time this year.

The victory gave the Carolina frosh their ninth win of the season against five defeats.

For the Tar Babies it marked their second decision over the High Point JV. In their second game of the season the Carolina frosh also scored 88 points to win by a overpowering 32 points.

Guard Don Walsh led the winners with 21 points while Wolfie Unger got the same number to pace High Point.

Clemson Tops Wake

CLEMSON, S. C. — Clemson vaulted into fifth place in the Atlantic Coast Conference last night with a 58-51 basketball victory over Wake Forest.

Only seven fouls were called on Clemson and six on Wake Forest.

Clemson went into a semi-freeze with about four minutes left in the game and a 2-point lead. Earle Maxwell scored 2 more for the Tigers 4-up, but Wake Forest's George Ritchie matched it.

Dutch Shamble of Clemson cashed in once at the free throw line and then dunked a 2-pointer. Teammate George Krajack, who enjoyed his best night of the year with 25 points, sank a 35-footer as the buzzer sounded to give Clemson its final margin.

It was ACC victory No. 5 for Clemson in its last season game prior to the loop tournament next month. Clemson never had more than four ACC wins in any previous season.

DUKE SWIMMERS WIN

CLEMSON, S. C. — Duke tankmen defeated the Clemson Tigers 48-37 in a swimming meet here Monday.

Duke captured seven of ten places, with the Tigers winning only the diving, 60-yard, and 400-yard relay events.

Kentucky Wins

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky overcame stall-minded Alabama 39-32 Monday night in a slow-motion Southeastern Conference basketball game.

After Alabama showed slow, deliberate play in the first half, netting a 23-23 halftime tie, Kentucky copied the tactics in the second period.

The game was sprinkled with periods of up to five minutes with little or no action.

Kentucky, No. 3 nationally broke the game open by starting the second half with a 9-point scoring spurt before Alabama could net its first field goal.
