ACC Winner Faces Navy

RALEIGH — The Atlantic Coast Conference representative in the opening round of the NCAA Eastern regional basketball championship will play Navy next Tuesday at Madison Square Garden in New York.

The three-day tournament opening here today will determine the ACC champion and tournament representative at New York. Top-seeded North Carolina State, under CAA probation, is ineligible for the national meet and the runnerup will get the bid if State wins here.

Games in New York

Three games will be played in New York Tuesday night, with the winners joining St. Joseph's of Philadelphia in the Eastern finals at Charlotte March 13-14.

The Yankee Conference champion and an at-large team still to be selected will meet in the first game at New York. Connecticut can clinch the Yankee title by beating Rhode Island Wednesday night.

Navy Meets ACC Team

Navy and the ACC standard bearer will play the second game. Navy has a 16-5 record, losing to Duke 64-63 and edging Maryland 53-50.

The third game matches Southern Conference champion West Virginia and the Ivy League champion, Princeton and Dartmouth, tied for the Ivy lead, close their regular season Wednesday. Princeton is at Penn and Brown is at Dartmouth. If the rivals remain tied a playoff will be held Saturday night at Yale's gym. Princeton gained the tie by whipping Dartmouth 83-67 last Friday. The teams have 13-1 Ivy records.
