JONES

and their future," he concluded. Jones said to accomplish the first objective of the paper, he would work toward a broader reportorial staff and seek out news from areas of the campus that now seem remote to everyone who doesn't actually live there.

"Local outlets like the dormitory and fraternity newspapers or 'poop sheets' should be regularly checked over for news items and leads," he said.

"Student money, either in the form of fees or indirectly through advertising, pays for The Daily Tar Heels, and at the same time the students support Graham Memorial activities, Student Entertainment Committee programs, IDC, IFG, German Club and University Club dances and events," he explained to illustrate his second point.

"As for provoking thought, this is the job of the editorial writers and to some extent, feature writers. Members of all the 'generations' should be persuaded to write for the editorial page. There are many excellent student writers on this campus, and I will exert every effort to get them to contribute to the paper," he concluded.

One day I sat sad and musing, a voice came to me out of the gloom and said,

"CHEER UP."

Things could be worse,

So I cheered up and sure enough,

Things GOT WORSE.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

UNC EDUCATION OFFICERS — New officers have been named by UNC students forming the Frank Porter Graham chapter of the Student National Education Association. The newly-installed leaders for 1959-60 (L-R) seated: Margaret Ray of Fayetteville, president; and Charles Hellard, Salisbury, vice president. Standing are Eleanor Cain of Mullins, S. C., treasurer; and Phillis Blake of Hillsboro, secretary. Dr. Donald G. Tarbet or Mrs. Stacy K. Ebert of the UNC School of Education staff act as sponsors for the group.

Alpha Epsilon Delta Initiates 8 Tuesday

Eight Carolina students were initiated into the national pre-medical and pre-dental honorary society, Alpha Epsilon Delta, Tuesday night in ceremonies held in the clinical auditorium of the UNC Medical School.

AED candidates for membership are judged by their scholastic accomplishments, extra-curricular activities, social ability, character and interest in their chosen fields.

This semester's initiates are Edgar Jerome Hoeccut, Jasper Bert Perdue Jr., Angus MacLeon Duff, Floyd Telmaged Bryan, Artus Monroe Moser Jr., Joe Paul Hurt, William Brenisen Long and Chester Winfield Taylor.

Hoeccut, a sophomore from Chapel Hill, is a member of Phi Eta Sigma and the Order of the Grail and was awarded the Freshman Honor Award. Perdue is a junior from Louisville, who is working for a B. S. degree in medicine.

Duff, a sophomore from Greenville, is a Morehead Scholar, vice president of APO, vice chairman of the University Party, a member of the Men's Honor Council, the Varsity baseball and soccer teams and a student in the superior sophomore program.

A sophomore from Ahsokie, Bryan is also a Morehead Scholar, active in the UP, and working for an A. B. in English literature. Moser, a candidate for an A.B. degree in English, is a junior from Swannanoa.

Hurt, a junior English literature major from Raleigh, is a member of Chi Psi social fraternity. He will work a year as student research assistant in the Pathology Department of the UNC Medical School before entering medical school.

Unanimously by Young Democrats

'B' Budget Is Endorsed

The B budget of the University of North Carolina was unanimously endorsed by the Executive Committee of the North Carolina Young Democratic Clubs Sunday.

The committee, meeting at the Washington Duke Hotel in Durham, endorsed the B budget after hearing Dewey Sheffield's talk on it.

Sheffield, a member of the committee, said, "to better the educational status of the University... we must increase and provide for adequate salaries for our instructors, especially due to the fact that they could receive much more money in private industry and they are under a financial burden with the present inadequate salaries."

He also emphasized the need for an outstanding library and a new student union. "The present student union is grossly inadequate and... future enrollment will be substantial, if larger the present enrollment," he said.

Sheffield also spoke for a new coliseum for basketball games and other events drawing large crowds.

Young Names Managers

"This endorsement was granted," they said, "because of Young's pledge to keep the newspaper and its staff free from grubby political maneuvering."

The two managers added that this promise did not mean that Young would run a "gutless" editorial page. The promise meant, they said, that Young would be an editor, not a combination lobbyist and leading light for one of the campus' political parties.

"In order to do a proper job as editor, it is necessary to concentrate on immediate problems that affect the newspaper. There is not enough time in the day to huddle in all the smoke-filled rooms, attempting, among other things, to handpick a successor."

Tiffany and Shields also stated their belief that the present editor, Curtis Gans, would print an editorial page endorsement for the major candidates of his choice.

"Nobody," they said, "will dispute the editor's 'right' to do this. We are simply saying that when next year's election rolls around, Young will act differently. He will make no endorsements on his editorial page, and he will not attempt to handpick a successor."

Faculty Fraternity Report Soon Due

The Faculty Committee on Fraternities is expected to report their findings on deferred rush, housing, discriminatory clauses and scholarship next Monday.

Newman Club Convention Is Here

Some 200 students from 27 colleges and universities in North Carolina and Virginia will come here April 3-5 for the fifth annual convention of the Piedmont Province of the National Newman Club Federation.

The Newman Club movement, which began in 1893 at the University of Pennsylvania, includes 670 participating clubs for Catholic students at secular institutions of higher learning.

Tate M. Robertson, president of the UNC Newman Club, has announced details for the convention which will open Friday, April 3, with registration and social program in Graham Memorial.

Keynote speaker will be the province chaplain, the Rev. Thomas J. Walsh of Norfolk, Va., who will speak at the first plenary session Saturday morning, April 4.

The Very Rev. Michael P. Walsh, S. J., president of Boston College, will give a public lecture on "The Catholic Church and Evolution" at 2 p.m. April 4 in Carrol Hall. Father Walsh is a noted Jesuit biologist.

Two other convention speakers will be the Most Rev. Paul J. Hallinan, D. D., Bishop of Charleston, S. C.; and the Rt. Rev. Msgr.

Officer Slate Of U. S. Navy Is Explained

Representatives from the Office of Naval Officer Procurement in Raleigh will be on campus today and Thursday to explain the Navy's commissioned officer programs to interested personnel. Interviews will be conducted in the Y Building.

Openings are available for assignment in aviation, general line and in specialty categories. Most of the programs are open only to the college seniors who expect to graduate; however, undergraduates who have completed 60 semester hours of accredited college work may apply for appointment as a Naval aviation cadet.

To avoid delay in being ordered to active duty after graduation, applications may be processed several months prior to attaining the required academic qualifications. Final acceptance will depend upon the successful completion of these qualifications.

Any candidate who meets the required standards may take the qualification test and make application with the visiting Navy Procurement Team if he desires. Those who take the qualification tests or who make application and subsequently change their mind are not obligated in any way.
