AEC Denies Bottling Information

WASHINGTON — The Atomic Energy Commission denied vigorously yesterday that it has bottled up any information on radioactive fallout.

AEC Chairman John A. McCone called also for a "government-wide review" of information policy on the sometimes deadly aftermath of nuclear explosions. He suggested a meeting of all agencies concerned be held late in May.

McCone appeared before the Senate-House Committee on Atomic Energy after several Democratic senators charged that the public has been denied facts to which it is entitled on radiation hazards.

Testimony by McCone and other AEC and Defense Department witnesses failed to convince one of the critics, Committee Chairman Clinton Anderson (D-N.M.), that data on radioactivity in the atmosphere has not been unnecessarily suppressed.

But some committee members, including Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), contended there is danger of public hysteria if the findings of scientists are made public before all their acts are in and the experts have agreed on their meaning.

Rep. Chet Holifield (R-Calif.), chairman of a subcommittee which soon will start hearings on the radiation problem, said scientists' findings should be weighed scientifically without regard for agreement merely for the sake of agreement.

A key point in the controversy is the disclosure by Anderson a few days ago that some conclusions about radioactivity were suppressed for a time after AEC and Pentagon scientists came up with differing estimates.

LOBBYING

Students interested in lobbying General Assembly members on behalf of UNC budget requests have a chance to go to Raleigh for that purpose today.

The Committee on State Affairs is planning such a trip to Raleigh at 4 p.m. today and will return by 7:30 p.m.

Norman B. Smith, chairman of the committee, said anyone wishing to go should meet in Roland Parker I in Graham Memorial at 4 p.m.

11 Candidates Will Speak At Campus Political Rally

Eleven candidates for the top positions in student government will appear in a campus wide political rally Friday, April 3, at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

Present for discussion and debate will be Student Party and University Party candidates for president, vice president, secretary and treasurer of the student body and candidates for editor of The Daily Tar Heel.

Sponsoring the rally is the Current Affairs Committee of the Graham Memorial Activities Board.

The rally will include statements of policy and platforms by each candidate and party chairmen. Afterward, the floor will be open for discussion and debate.

The candidates who will be present include: Charlie Gray, Norman B. Smith, Jim. Crowover, David Grigg, Ann Lucas, Sue Wood, Bob Bingham, Erwin Fuller, Davis Young and Ron Shumate and Harold O'Tuel.

Jerry Stokes, chairman of the sponsoring Current Affairs Committee, said Tuesday, "The committee feels that there is a definite need and considerable feeling for a political rally in which the opposing candidates and party chairmen can appear together and express their policies and platforms in such a way that their stands can be compared and contrasted."

Stokes said the rally is being

Dorm Officers Draw Attention From Edwards

Rudy Edwards, IDC president, Tuesday urged dorm residents to find candidates on April 7 for dorm officers who are interested and "willing to work for you."

Edwards cited some of the accomplishments of the past year as examples of what dorm officers can do.

These include compilation of quiz files, sponsoring bridge and ping pong tournaments, installing pencil sharpeners.

He further stressed that the dorm officers must take the initiative in building dorm spirit by encouraging participation of the residents in activities such as erecting Homecoming displays and 'Beat Dook' floats.

O'Tuel And Shumate Plan More Coverage

"The Daily Tar Heel must cover a greater measure of the campus," co-editor candidates Harold O'Tuel and Ron Shumate asserted yesterday.

"This can be accomplished only through a larger staff," O'Tuel and Shumate declared.

"At present The Daily Tar Heel possesses several fine reporters, but their participation is not on a daily basis," the co-editor candidates explained.

"What is necessary is to try to get a full time staff nucleus of eight or nine top-notch regular reporters, give them areas of coverage, and use the persons who come in regularly for spot assignments," O'Tuel pointed out.

Shumate added that special inducements would be made for students to work on the paper, and that personal contacts would be made with the School of Journalism in order to get the journalism students to make use of the facilities of The Daily Tar Heel.

"We will try to make use and extend the stringer system established by the present editor. By next year we hope to include fraternities, sororities, campus organizations, dormitories, and faculty groups," Shumate added.

Attorney General Dick Robinson, fraternal campaign co-ordinator of Shumate and O'Tuel stated yesterday, "Most important Ron and Harold will speak for the entire campus."

He went on to add that under the O'Tuel-Shumate administration, if elected, they will present the news graphical division must be at least 8 by 11 and have a non-glossy finish.

The art show will be formally opened to the public at 8 p.m. April 5 and will remain open each afternoon through April 8 from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center, off Rosemary St.

The lecture and discussion programs dealing with art and the works on display will be April 6 and 7.

"Seeing Ourselves Through Arts" will be the first program on the show on April 5.

The second program will be April 6 at 7:30 p.m. Joe Cox, a judge of the show, and Foster Fitz-Simons of the Department

Get To Work--'n Finish Up

By EDWARD NEAL RINER
Put the final touches on that painting.

Give that statue the last going over. And get ready for the Student Art Show.

The art show will be sponsored by the Campus Life Committee of the Presbyterian Student Center April 5-8.

Aimed at furthering an understanding of the nature and function of art, the show will be in conjunction with a program of lectures and discussions.

Student artists may enter four types of work for exhibition: oil, black and white, photography and sculpture. Only students of the University will be allowed to enter and have been urged to begin on their works.

Judges for the art show will be Gregory Ivy, chairman of the Art Department at Woman's College in Greensboro and Joe Cox, N. C. State School of Design.

All entries must be submitted to the Presbyterian Church office, second floor of the Y, between March 31 and April 3. A screening committee will select art work for exhibit.

Prints entered in the photograph division must be at least 8 by 11 and have a non-glossy finish.

The next night, a Greenwich Village buffet will be served to those attending the program. The buffet will begin at 6 p.m. and will be followed by announcements of show winners and a talk, "Must Art Communicate," by Gregory Ivy.

Winners in the form divisions will be announced at the second of these programs.

Additional information may be obtained from Diana Harmon and Mark Wilson, co-chairmen of the show, or Mrs. Eleanor Brawley, assistant to the minister to students of the church.

Program Called Democracy Symbol

The Grail Mural Sports Jamboree is a symbol of democracy here on the UNC campus, stated Dean Fred Weaver at the steak dinner Monday night.

This was the second annual Grail Mural Sports Jamboree. Dean Weaver was the guest speaker at the dinner. Dean Weaver made his speech to the winners of the Jamboree and also presented their trophies to them.

He stated that the trophies symbolized fair play rather than athletic achievement. He also added that through his experiences and wide travels he had found that democracy is promoted best through athletics.

Paul Woodard, chairman of the Grail Mural committee, presided over the dinner and welcomed the group as the cream of Intramural Athletes.

Lab Coming For Triangle From AEC

RALEIGH — An announcement from the Atomic Energy Commission that it will help support a laboratory in the Research Triangle was greeted by Gov. Hodges Tuesday as "Wonderful news of immediate significance and thrilling future potential."

"This laboratory will explore in an area that is just in its infancy—the use of isotopes in industry," Hodges said. "Not only will it serve industry, but also will help to attract industry to North Carolina and the Southeast."

Announcement that the AEC will sponsor the Isotopes Research Laboratory was made at a luncheon attended by the Governor and other notable. Dr. Paul C. Aebersold, director of AEC's office of isotopes development, made the announcement. He said a contract between AEC and the newly-formed Research Triangle Institute calls for AEC support of the isotopes lab totaling $160,000 the first year, including $76,000 for equipment.

President George R. Herbert of the Research Institute also announced the appointment of Dr. Ralph Ely Jr. of Pittsburgh as director of the new isotopes lab, effective May 1. Dr. Ely, now vice president and technical director of Nuclear Science and Engineering Corp., will have an initial staff that includes four senior scientists and several technicians.

The new lab ultimately will occupy a building located in the Research Triangle Park. Meanwhile, rented space is being sought.

The Lab is to be one of several throughout the United States sponsored by the AEC and will serve the Southeastern region.

ILLEGAL CARS

Students who brought unregistered cars back to school for the trip home for holidays must get permission to keep them on campus.

Permission may be obtained from the dean of student affairs office at 206 South Building, according to Bob Covington, chairman of the Traffic Advisory Commission.

Iraq Leaves Baghdad Pact; Editors Told 'Forget Nasser'

Young Campaign Staff Joined By Jan Cobbs

Davis Young, Daily Tar Heel editorial candidate, announced Tuesday that Jan Cobbs, president of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, has joined his campaign staff.

In accepting a position on Young's staff, Miss Cobbs issued the following statement: "It is interesting to note that Harold O'Tuel and Ron Shumate have a letter appearing in today's issue of The Daily Tar Heel signed by 28 members of the paper's staff."

"In examining this letter, it is clear that not all of the elements of the paper, and not all of the staff have signed."

"O'Tuel and Shumate have said that one of the main problems is that a larger staff is needed. They have a letter with 28 names turns up in the paper. Somehow it appears that they have many signatures on that letter from people who rarely work with the paper."

"Note should also be taken of the play that O'Tuel and Shumate have received in the paper. When Young was given the endorsement of the University Party, a two column headline was attached to the story."

"When on Monday night O'Tuel and Shumate were endorsed by the Student Party, Tuesday's paper had a five column headline. Isn't Young's UP endorsement equally significant. Obviously Young is being placed at a great disadvantage by such tactics."

"It should also be noted that Young is the only candidate who has appeared before all three endorsing groups, the SP, UP and Bi-Partisan Selections Board.

"He has received two of those the UP and that of the Bi-Partisan Selections Board. He has also served this year as an SP class president."

"His campaign has impressed many people so far. His promises to keep out of partisan politics seem to me only logical. I am happy to join his campaign staff."

Young added, "There are only a handful of women students on campus who command the respect that Jan Cobbs does."

"We are most happy to have her with us on this campaign. Shumate and O'Tuel are most formidable opponents. We will fight a hard clean campaign up to and including election day, as I am sure they will."

Orientation Deadline Extended To April 2

The deadline for turning in applications for orientation counselors has been extended to Thursday, April 2, at 7 p.m.

On that date and time a test will be given to applicants on factual information about the campus and questions new students might have. The testing will be done in 268 Venable.

Orientation Chairman David Parker has urged students who have application blanks to return these as soon as possible. The application forms may be obtained and returned to the Library Reserve Room, YMCA office, Graham Memorial Information Desk and Orientation office in the basement of Graham Memorial.

Parker said he wanted as many students as possible to apply for orientation counselors because he considered the counselor the most important phase of orientation.

After the tests are held April 2, interviews with counselor candidates will be held April 13 through 21. The students selected as counselors will attend three training sessions during the last week in April and first week in May.

The counselors will return to UNC for orientation Sept. 11. Study manuals for the April 2 test are available in the Library, YMCA office and GM Information Desk.

Easter Schedule For Planetarium

In keeping with Morehead Planetarium policy, "Easter, the Awakening" will be given during the Easter holidays, beginning Friday and ending Monday.

On each of the evenings the tenth annual tribute will be given at 8:30 o'clock. There will be matinees on Good Friday at 11 a.m., 1, 3 and 4 p.m., and on Saturday at 11 a.m., 3 and 4 p.m. On Easter Sunday the program will be offered at 2, 3 and 4 p.m. On Easter Monday it will be presented at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m.

SPRING SWING

A street dance here Friday, April 3, and special bargains at local stores are part of the third annual Spring Swing planned for April 3 and 4.

Sponsoring the Spring Swing is the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Association.

The Doug Clark Combo will furnish music the night of April 3 on the main East Franklin Street block.

Merchants participating in the Spring Swing will have special buys during the two days in April.

G. M. SLATE

Activities scheduled in Graham Memorial today include: Carolina Women's Council, 7-9 p.m.; Grail: State Affairs Committee, 4-4:30 p.m.; Roland Parker I; Senior Alumni Committee, 3:30-4:30 p.m.; Roland Parker II; Ways and Means Committee, 1:30-3 p.m.; Woodhouse Conference Room, and Bridge, 7-9 p.m.; Rendezvous Room.

Withdrawal Expected Since July

By STAN CARTER

BAGHDAD, IRAQ — Iraq withdrew yesterday from the Baghdad Pact, which both Nikita Khrushchev and Gamal Abdel Nasser denounced.

At the same time Premier Abdel Karim Kassem told Iraqi editors to "forget Nasser" and call off their attacks on the President of the United Arab Republic.

"Do not waste time replying to criticism from abroad which doesn't bother us at all," Kassem said.

The Baghdad Pact until last July linked Iraq to Britain, Pakistan, Iran and Turkey—and indirectly to the United States. It was signed in 1955 as a defense against the spread of Communism to the middle east.

Iraq's withdrawal had been expected since Kassem's forces overthrew the monarchy eight months ago.

Soviet Russia long has bitterly attacked the alliance as a threat to peace in the Middle East. Nasser attacked it from the first as an intrusion by non-Arabs in the Middle East and a wedge in Arab unity.

Recently Kassem has found himself in a cross-fire between Nasser and the communists.

Iraqi officials charged that Nasser's U. A. R. was behind the army revolt in northern Iraq two weeks ago. Moscow contended Nasser sought to force Iraq into the U.A.R. Kassem charged the Kassem was coddling foreign communist agents seeking to undermine Arab solidarity.

Kassem told the editors today he would not answer Nasser's attacks on him.

The editors have been playing up denunciations of the U.A.R. President since the Mosul revolt. Some papers have called Nasser a dwarf Hitler in the pay of imperialists.

The editors of Baghdad newspapers are predominantly leftist since crowds sacked allegedly pro-Nasser papers two weeks ago.

Kassem said the Iraqi Press should not lower itself to the standard of the Egyptian Press, as he described it. He showed a stack of clippings from Cairo and Beirut papers attacking him, and said:

"Attacks have no effect on us. I personally don't bother about it. What they say does not harm us. It does not prevent us from following the course we set after the revolution. "Please educate the people, and do not waste time replying to criticism from abroad. Don't say anything about Nasser. Forget him."

Officers, Penalties Before IDC

Tonight's Interdormitory Council meeting will center on election of officers and a vote on the proposed changes in IDC court penalties.

Nominees for the various IDC offices are as follows: Otto Funderburk, president; Jim Scott, vice president; Dave Alexander, secretary; Phil Edwards and Mike Childs, treasurer; Jerry Morgan, chairman of the court, and Jerry Chichester, clerk of the court. The floor will be open for additional nominations.

The court penalties to be voted on include: limitation of fines at not less than $2 nor more than $10, removal from all dormitories for at least one semester, removal from all dormitories indefinitely, and suspension from school.

In all cases tried and convicted by the court a letter will be sent the offender's parents saying that he has been tried and is being disciplined in some way, according to Rudy Edwards, IDC president.

The council will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in Phi Hall on the fourth floor of New East.

SP Favors 'Feasible' Deferred Rush Plan

By JOSIE MORRIS

The Student Party formally adopted their 1959 spring platform at a meeting last night in Graham Memorial.

The platform, consisting of eleven planks, reaffirms a strong and earnest support for full and complete co-operation by student government with the IFC and fraternities in working out a feasible and constructive plan for alleviating the problems involved in a system of deferred formal rush.

The other ten planks are:

1. To support UNSNA as an open forum for student opinion and training for student government leaders.

2. To study and recommend governmental structural changes leading to more consistent and efficient Student Government.

3. Procurement of two ten-minute parking spaces in each academic building parking lot for the use of students holding consultations with instructors.

4. Continued and ceaseless action for the procurement of a new student union, adequate to the needs of a growing university.

5. Action modernizing the Co-ed Social Rules by clearly removing the stigma of a morals offense from

Phi Mu Alpha Elects

Richard Fetzer was elected president of Phi Mu Alpha sinfonía fraternity last week. Other officers of the honorary fraternity include: John Gardiner, vice president; Jay Lambert, corresponding secretary; Robert Wilkinson, treasurer, and James Cooke, alumni secretary.

Talks Today On Football 'Date' Tickets

Two UNC students will meet with athletic director Chuck Erickson today to discuss the dates of football games in the fall for which reduced "date" tickets will be sold.

Student body President Don Furtado and Carolina Athletic Association President Wayne Bishop will meet with Erickson today at 2:30 p.m. to discuss such problems as the difficulty presented when some teams refuse to sign contracts for games at which reduced price tickets will be sold.

Other problems which will come up include the hesitation of the athletic office to sell date tickets for sell-out games because of the loss of $2.25 per seat and the mild protests from alumni and other who want to attend the game but are denied seats in the best sections which are sold as date tickets.
