End Of Strike Brings Fast Relief From Tension, Headaches, Boredom

By RON SHUMATE and DEE DANIELS

Strike-ending talks in Henderson Friday were like a giant-size aspirin—quick acting and headache-relieving.

Henderson, in the mid-afternoon, closely resembled any other sleepy little Southern community.

Business on main street was going on at a leisurely pace. Women wearing sleeveless blouses and gaily colored cotton skirts were calmly doing their afternoon shopping, oblivious to the bright sun's hot rays beating down on their backs.

Fords and Cadillacs, old and new, crawled along the streets, apparently in no rush to get anywhere in particular.

As children, in denim playclothes, darted across lawns, lost in the fantasy land of child's play, there was no hint to passers-by of the tension permeating the air and the homes of the townspeople, who had become unwillingly entangled in the long bitter fight between union and management.

When three o'clock rolled around, at least a portion of the town's citizenry had a chance to release some of their tension. But unfortunately, it had to be released at their fellow human beings.

This was the scene on the picket line at the two strike-torn cotton mills. The strikers' every emotion was poured out across the hot street at the strike-breakers as they rolled out of the mill. Their car windows were rolled up; they moved quickly in order to escape the shouts and taunts of the embittered strikers.

But some of them didn't completely escape. Some were struck by bricks thrown from the crowds of strikers lining the street for nearly a half mile.

Study Commission Discusses Church, Nuclear Warfare

A public meeting of the "Sunday Commission on the Church and Nuclear Warfare" will be held Monday in Carroll Hall at 9:15 p.m.

Chairman of the group is Dr. David Monroe, professor of political science. The commission consists of 10 citizens from Chapel Hill, including Dr. Monroe.

Present plans call for sending several representatives to Washington to testify before Congressional committees on atomic energy.

The commission is currently concerning itself with two questions: "Should the Church declare itself as absolutely opposed to the use of nuclear weapons? Can we, as Christians, find any better way out of the present stalemate than has been suggested by our political leaders?"

In conjunction with requests from the commission, 150 students have responded to questions about the position that America should take in Berlin and the U. S. stand on nuclear warfare. Of the replies, 147 call for a firm stand in Berlin, while three are in favor of withdrawal.

The main purpose of the group is to sample the opinions of a cross section of the population, particularly young Americans. The commission was started in the local Presbyterian Church, and is now attempting to bring in other Chapel Hill church groups.

Dr. Monroe called for a large turnout Monday night pointing to the necessity of getting the opinions of a large portion of the University citizenry on the problems to be discussed. He particularly urged students to attend.

Gray Appoints Crownover As Presidential Assistant

Jim Crownover was appointed as presidential assistant Saturday by Student Body President Charlie Gray.

The Student Party legislator succeeds John Brooks, who served Dan Furtado during his term as president. Crownover is now in his third session in the Student Legislature. He is serving his second term as

"I have had the privilege of working closely with Jim this past year, and I have no doubt that he will be of invaluable service to me in all my endeavors," said President Gray in making the announcement.

Gray went on to say that Crownover had proved his ability in the Legislature and as head of various executive committees. "I feel, with Jim's advice, I will be able to offer a program this year that will be representative of the entire campus," Gray said.

"I am deeply honored," Crownover said in accepting the appointment. He referred to party line and said they would have to be crossed many times this year to have a truly representative and successful student government.

"Obviously, the president and I cannot do it alone. We will need the help of every interested student on this campus. I urge you, and the president urges you to apply for a position in student government between now and Wednesday," said Crownover.

In addition to being legislative floor leader for the SP, Crownover has been president of and is now manager of Aycock Dorm. He was chairman of the Drinking Rules Committee and the Campus Stores Committee.

Since he began taking part in student government activities at Carolina, Crownover has served on the SP Advisory Board, the Judicial Review Committee, the Committee on State Affairs, the Orientation Committee and the Ways and Means Committee. He is a recent initiate of the Order of the Old Well and the Order of the Grail.

Y Executive Committee Chooses Cabinet Soon

The Executive Committee of the YMCA will be holding interviews throughout this week to select Cabinet members for the 1959-60 school year. The Cabinet consists of chairmen of different areas of Y work.

There are three positions on the finance committee to be filled for next year. These are the chairmen of the Faculty-Chapel Hill, the Alumni, and the Student-Parent fund drives.

According to Allen Daniels, treasurer of the YMCA, the Y hopes to raise over $14,000 next year through these three drives. This amount will be used to finance program, office and secretarial expenses.

Daniels further emphasized that the chairmen of the three drives will have large committees to work with them in organizing and supervising the fund raising campaign.

Daniels offered to talk with anyone who is interested in a position on the Finance Committee and who wishes to find out, before he is interviewed, more about the committee's responsibilities. Daniels may be contacted at the Kappa Sigma house.

The chairmanship of the Public Affairs Committee is also to be filled for next year. This committee sponsors speakers, forums and other programs on public affairs. In the past, this committee has arranged visits to the campus by such men as Edward P. Morgan and William McGovern.

Any students who are interested in being interviewed for these or any other Cabinet positions of the YMCA may arrange an interview by signing the schedule posted in the lobby of Y Building.

Senate Apparently Favors Herter As Dulles Successor

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP)—Speedy Senate confirmation of Christian A. Herter as Secretary of State seemed assured today on the basis of Congressional samplings.

Democrats as well as Republicans praised the appointment. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, said it will be welcomed by those who have worked with Herter and who "have confidence in his ability, his dedication and his perseverance."

"Since he has been working closely with Secretary Dulles, his appointment assures continuity of policy," Johnson said. "He will have the backing of a united America."

The Assistant Democratic Leader, Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, called it an excellent choice and said "I hope we will confirm this appointment quickly and settle the matter once and for all."

Without waiting for President Eisenhower's formal nomination, Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) called a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for Tuesday to consider Herter's appointment.

Fulbright said Herter plans to appear before the Committee to answer any questions.

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said "I will vote for his confirmation with pleasure and confidence."

Carolina Playmaker Is Directing Old UNC Play In Copenhagen

Kai Jurgensen, on leave from the Carolina Playmakers this year, is director of a play which just opened in Copenhagen which promises to be a highlight of the Danish 1959 theater season.

Jurgensen who is in Denmark on a Fulbright Fellowship made a suggestion that a long-forgotten play by a famous Norwegian author be taken out of moth balls and produced.

His suggestion was accepted; the play opened April 10.

How did Jurgensen happen to know of the forgotten play?

Because the author of the play—Agnar Mykle—was a student at the University of North Carolina seven years ago. Mykle was a Fulbright Scholar at UNC.

His play "Morning in Yellow Orange" was produced at the Carolina Playmakers Theater, with Nancy Henderson directing.

When Jurgensen got to Copenhagen last year and studied at the Royal Theater and taught at the University of Copenhagen, he found that "Mike" Mykle, as he was called in Chapel Hill, was Scandinavia's most famous current author. He has written three novels and several volumes of short stories.

The former Carolina Playmaker, says Jurgensen in a letter to Chapel Hill friends, is "so much of a celebrity and a national hero that he cannot step out of his door in Norway without being pursued by autograph hunters."

One of his recent books, "The Song of the Red Ruby," created a squabble. There were those who thought it obscene. A court suit was brought against the book. Mykle won the suit, and the resulting publicity boosted the sale of his book. "It was Ulysses-type pornography," writes Jurgensen.

In a casual conversation with a Copenhagen literary agent, Jurgensen urged the agent to read the play Mykle had written in Chapel Hill seven years ago.

The idea caught on; the play is being produced—with some of the finest actors and actresses in Denmark. Director Arne Weel of Alle Scenen Theater in Copenhagen is producing the play. Jurgensen declares that if the play is as big a success as he expects it to be, he will take it also to Helsinki, London, Oslo, and Stockholm this summer.
