

The Daily Tar Heel

North Carolina Symphony Will Play Here Friday Night

By JACKIE MC CARTHY

It's Symphony time once again in Chapel Hill. Each year, just about the time spring arrives, bringing with it cherry blossoms and the smell of just-mown grass, the North Carolina Symphony comes to Chapel Hill.

On Friday, the Symphony, under the direction of Benjamin Swain, will present a concert at 8:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall. Soloist will be violinist Elaine Skorodin of Chicago, Ill.

Since first appearing with the Chicago Symphony at a Young People's concert, Miss Skorodin has been soloist with many orchestras including the Chicago Symphony, the Grant Park Symphony, the National Symphony of Washington, D. C., and the St. Louis Symphony.

Winner of the national auditions of the Friday Morning Music Club of Washington, D. C., and the Allied Arts Violin Award of the Society of American Musicians, Miss Skorodin's other honors include the Farwell Award of the Musicians Club of Women and a contest for string players sponsored by the Chicago Musical Arts Club.

She has recently presented recitals in Town Hall, New York; Orchestra Hall, Chicago, and Washington. Miss Skorodin is a member of the faculty at Chicago Musical College.

For the Chapel Hill concert Miss Skorodin will play the Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, in D major by Paganini-Wilhelmj.

Other selections to be played by the Symphony here Friday include Handel's Overture to the Royal Fireworks, in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the death of the composer; Brahms' Symphony No. III, Opus 90; Rimsky-Korsakov's Overture, The Russian Easter; and Jan Philip Solihnan's Fantasy for Orchestra.

Dr. Solihnan is a former professor of music here. A noted musician and composer, he is the first recipient of the Benjamin Award of $1,000 for "restful" music. The commission was established by Edward B. Benjamin of New Orleans and Greensboro.

Students may attend the Chapel Hill concert by purchasing a student membership in the North Carolina Symphony Society. Memberships are $1 and may be secured in Bingham X or at the door. Student wives will also be admitted for $1.

Although the home offices of the Symphony are located in Chapel Hill—in Bingham X, just beside Lenoir Hall—the Orchestra actually spends very little time here.

When January's cold winds whistle through the North Carolina pines, the Little Symphony, composed of 25 musicians, begins its nine-week tour. The Orchestra this season played 64 concerts for children and adults in 31 North Carolina communities, bringing symphonic music to towns whose concert facilities are inadequate for the Full Symphony.

SO YOU THINK YOU'VE GOT TROUBLES — This poor feller, "Dirt Farmer" Bill Davis, was picked by his friends (?) as the "Ugliest Man on the Campus." Pore Bill was 260 votes uglier than his nearest competitor, Jeff Churchill of Lambda Chi Alpha. Farmer Bill is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Better luck next time, boys.

'Parade' Editor Speaks At Inn

Hugh Morton, director of the short course, stated that Gorkin will lecture to the photographers on "Feature Pictures."

Morton stated that the outstanding "headline" speaker for the course is Alfred Eisenstead, staff photographer for "Life" Magazine who will speak on "Use of the 35 millimeter Camera." Eisenstead is one of the half a dozen great photographers in his field in the world.

The man who won the top prize as "Television's Photographer of the Year" also will be on the program—Tom Priestly of Columbia Broadcasting System.

Morton also announced that the world's "foremost photographer of women" is a faculty member for the course. He is Mills Steele of Greenville, S. C. and will talk on phases of women's fashions.

Ann Terry was appointed to re- place Student Body Secretary Sue Wood in Dorm Women's I.

Strikers Siege Mill Gates; Hodges Calls Meeting Today

By NOEL YANCEY

HENDERSON, N. C., April 21 — (AP)— Enraged, frustrated strikers, convinced that management had betrayed their new contract by refusing them immediate return to work, continued an angry, yelling siege today of gates at the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills.

About 100 highway patrolmen, summoned during the night, escorted some 300 non-strikers from the two plants. They had spent the night there, while police, armed with riot guns, machine guns and tear gas, patrolled outside and a cluster of strikers challenged the workers to come out.

The officers escorted workers on the day shift to the plants amid threats and jeers from the strikers. Three cars were stoned and officers broke up a fight between one of the drivers and a striker.

Gov. Hodges will meet with union and management leaders at 11 a.m. Wednesday in a new effort to ease the tension.

Spring Frolic Friday Night

The IDC-sponsored Spring Frolic dance Friday night will be held in the parking lot area at Smith Dormitory. The place for the dance was changed from the Hanes Hall parking lot because of a concert in Memorial Hall the same night.

A combo will play music for the dance from 7:30 to 10:15 p.m. Friday. Afterward, a lawn party will be held under Davie Poplar. The special feature of the lawn party is the local broadcasting of Jimmy Capps' "Our Best To You" radio music program.

At least 100 song requests from Carolina students were sent to Capps over the weekend.

In case of rain the Spring Frolic dance will be moved to the Tin Can.

and jeered as the day shift left, but there were no incidents. At the South Henderson plant, there seemed to be fewer coming to work on the second shift than did last night.

Police Chief C. C. Harris said his men would try to get the second shift workers out after the end of their work at 11 p.m., assisted by the state troopers.

About 250 strikers were on hand as shifts changed at the south plant.

"You yellow bellies," shouted one, "we'll get you tonight." Another screamed, "Yellow, yellow bunch of scabs. You're scared to walk in," as the non-strikers' cars went in the gates. Many of the vehicles had broken windshields.

"Where's your blanket?" yelled a striker. "Better get your bed roll," advised another. "You're gonna need it."

Payton said the union had understood in the presence of the Governor that "The top figure of jobs not available to our people was 436."

"Today," he continued, "we find out from the company that they had already hired new people for the second shift and in some cases even the third shift and they now consider these people as having replaced the strikers. Therefore the (negotiating) committee has asked for an accounting of jobs open..."

Cooper, however, said he didn't know where Payton had heard the figure of 436. "He didn't get it from me."

The mills president added that no agreement is in effect now with the union, declaring that its members have "repudiated it by their actions. They don't seem to have any sense of responsibility for their own commitments."

He said that the new violence would not discourage him from continuing a second shift. "If I shut one down," he said, "I will shut them all down, and I won't open them up anymore."

Last night a dynamite blast ripped up a section of earth inside the plant gates. A few rifle shots broke windows or ricocheted off plant walls.

'Oh, Hellas!' It Plays Here

Rehearsals every night mark increasing activity in anticipation of the May 1 and 2 presentations of this year's Sound and Fury production, "Oh, Hellas!"

The show, written by Lew Harlee and Carl Bridgers, is Carolina's version of Aristophanes' comedy, "Lysistrata." Starring in the UNC production are Jane Newsum as Lysistrata, Jane Durham as Myrrhina, Nancy Aubrey as Calonika, Al Miller as Lykon, Bill Monnell as Demetrius and Wally Graham as Kinesius.

A group of other actors, singers and dancers will be included in the "Oh, Hellas!" presentations in Memorial Hall.

Directing the cast in rehearsals for the past several weeks has been Joel Fleishman. The musical direction is being handled by Lew Harlee. The choreographer is Tony Millili. Al Salley is in overall charge of the production.

Music from the show will be presented over "Our Best To You," radio program of Station WPTF, Friday, beginning at 10:30 p.m.

Student interested in working with the Sound and Fury production may assist with completion of sets and costumes in Caldwell "Z."

Six-Day Symposium Planned; 'The Image of Man' Is Topic

The Symposium Program Committee announced Monday plans for a six day Carolina Symposium, March 27 to April 1, 1960, according to committee Chairman Ed Levy.

Six major hour addresses will be presented on each of the Symposium nights. Prospective speakers will be contacted soon in an effort to draw the best authorities available from the areas with which the Symposium will be concerned, Levy said.

The over-all subject will be "The Image of Man: The Individual in an Accelerated Culture." A day of the program will be devoted to each of the following divisions:

- (1) "Concepts of Man: an examination of the theories of the nature of man"
- (2) "Socio-Economic Factors in Our Society: forces causing an increasing impersonalization of human affairs."
- (3) "Technological and Scientific Society."
- (4) "The State: an exploration of the individuals relation to the state and its laws."
- (5) "The Modern Arts."
- (6) "Education and the Individual."

Copies of the addresses will be studied by a board of three authorities in each of the program areas. These boards will lead discussion and ask questions after each address. In the afternoons seminars will be scheduled, featuring the main speakers and other participants from local and outside sources.

There will also be luncheon and dinner hour discussions.

"We have every expectation that the 1960 Symposium will be the greatest yet," said Levy, "because our program is being organized well in advance, and we are able to draw first-hand from experience gained in past Symposiums."

Faith, Science Complimentary, Says William Gaston Speaker

Faith and science are complimentary, rather than contradictory, said Dr. Albert W. Overhauser, scientist with the Ford Motor Company, Monday night in Carroll Hall.

Dr. Overhauser was featured here as the second lecturer on the William Gaston series. The topic of his address was "The Christian Faith and the Scientist."

Defining "faith" as the intellectual assent to the testimony of another, Dr. Overhauser said faith is rational because it involves an evaluation of the reliability of the source.

"The faith of the scientist gives perspective to the work and life of the scientist who is engaged in systematic recording of God's 'voice' in the first of His revelations — the created universe."

Dr. Overhauser took his Ph.D. at the University of California in 1951 and worked as research associate at the University of Illinois from 1951 to 1953. For the next five years he was at Cornell as assistant professor and associate professor.

He joined the Ford Motor Company as supervisor of solid state physics at the Scientific Laboratory in 1958.

The Gaston Lecture series is a memorial to late jurist William Gaston of New Bern. The lectures are sponsored by the UNC Newman Club.
