

Debate Squad Names Officers; McMillan To Succeed Simpson; Battle Maryland Debaters Next

Taylor McMillan will head the UNC Debate Squad next year, succeeding Clay Simpson.

He and other new squad officers were elected at a meeting Tuesday, and two forensic keys were awarded for "outstanding achievement in debating" during this past scholastic year.

Other new officers of the squad are Joe Roberts, vice president; Jeff Weisenfeld, secretary and representative to the Forensic Council; and Clay Simpson, treasurer.

The forensic keys were presented to McMillan and David Evans.

Only one meet is left on the debate schedule this year. In May the squad will try to outtalk the University of Maryland debaters in the ACC tournament.

The 11 members of the UNC Debate Squad have participated in 11 tournaments this year.

Four varsity debaters received "outstanding debater" awards at the Marshall-Wythe Tournament at William and Mary College in Virginia. They were John Brooks, David Evans, Tom Long and Clay Simpson. At this meet the team won seven and lost five debates.

The squad was undefeated at both the Emory University Invitational and the New York University tournaments. At the New York contest the UNC group placed second among 40 teams.

The eight other meets attended by the group this year were these: Wake Forest Novice Tournament, Wake Forest Dixie Classic Tournament, South Carolina Invitational, Maryland University-Capitol Hill Tournament, Vanderbilt University-Southern Universities Conference, Boston Invitational Tournament, Brooklyn Invitational Debate Tournament and the Virginia Discussion Conference.

Retiring Debate Squad officers are Clay Simpson, president; Tom Long, vice president, and Taylor McMillan, secretary.

Members of the squad include: Steve Burch, Charles Carrol, Jeff Lawrence, Joe Roberts, John Snyder, Brooks, Evans, Long, Simpson, McMillan and Weisenfeld.

Coeds To Vote Tuesday On Question Of Activity Fee

Coeds will vote Tuesday to give or deny the power of collecting social and activity fees to the Women's Residence Council.

In the same referendum, coeds will be making a decision as to the power of the WRC to determine the amount of the fees after a series of discussions with women dormitory residents.

The vote will be "yes" or "no." The referendum was called for by Student Legislature as an aftermath of a Student Council decision earlier this year. The council, after hearing a case concerning the levying of the fees, ruled that the WRC collection was unconstitutional.

To give coeds the opportunity to express their opinion on the fees, Student Legislature last week passed a bill authorizing the referendum.

The referendum is being handled by the Women's Residence Council under the supervision of the Elections Board. The time the polls will be open in all coed dormitories will be announced later.

Kay Boertz, WRC chairman, said Wednesday the council will determine the opinions of coeds through the vote Tuesday, through the various dorm administrations, dorm representatives at large to the council and through discussion groups.

The referendum to be voted on Tuesday states: "The Women's Residence Council has the power to collect social and activity fees and to determine the amount of the said fees after a series of discussions with women dormitory residents."

Student Legislature To Consider Eleven Bills At Meeting Tonight

When the Student Legislature convenes tonight for its second meeting this session, there will be 11 bills for their consideration.

The solons will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Phi Hall, 4th floor, New East.

Jim Crowner's (SP) bill to require each legislator to attend at least two meetings at each housing unit in his district will be considered.

At these meetings the solon would be required to (1) inform his constituents of what he is doing in Legislature, (2) inform them of what others are doing in Legislature and (3) give them an opportunity to ask questions and offer suggestions.

Crowner said yesterday, "My main purpose in introducing this bill is to help make it clear to all legislators that one of their chief responsibilities is to the people."

He feels the ultimate result that passage of the bill would bring about is the building up of better communications between the Legislature and the students.

Due to the misplacement of the by-laws of the University Club.

Dave Jones (SP) introduced a bill last session to approve new by-laws which would go into effect with the swearing in of the University Club's 1959-60 officers.

Jones also introduced a bill last session to transfer $125 from the Daily Tar Heel profits to the DTH photography budget.

On behalf of the Traffic Advisory Commission, Bob Thompson (SP) presented a bill, which will be discussed tonight, to establish a Motor Vehicles Advisory Board.

Another bill for the Traffic Advisory Commission was presented last time by Bob Nobles (SP), to establish a Traffic and Safety Committee.

Thompson is the author of bill, on behalf of Erwin Fuller, for approval of the constitution of the Professional Interfraternity Council.

Jim Scott's (SP) bill to appropriate $275 to Alpha Phi Omega for expenses incurred during the staging of Parent's Day will be on the agenda.

Presented last session by Ed Cox, (SP) for the Traffic Advisory Commission, was a bill to establish a Student Traffic Court investigation staff.

Swag Grimsley and Tom Cordle (both SP) authored a bill, to be considered tonight, to approve the revised constitution and by-laws of the Student Council of the Consolidated University.

A bill to appropriate $167.50 to the Student Government executive office for the purchase of a typewriter, introduced by Crowner on behalf of the secretary of the student body, will also be on the agenda.

Jones' bill to amend the Legislature by-law to allow representatives to move from their districts and still retain their seats will be another bill before the solons tonight.

Talks To Settle Strike Fail; Hodges' Patience Exhausted

RALEIGH, April 22 (AP) — Negotiations in Gov. Hodges' office to settle the Henderson Cotton Mills strike ended in failure Wednesday afternoon with the Governor issuing a statement strongly criticizing both union and management.

Saying "my patience and that of the public is about exhausted," Gov. Hodges revealed he had wired John D. Cooper, president of the strike-bound Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills, asking him to hold off operation of second and third shifts "until matters are cleared up satisfactorily."

Hodges said in his statement that the mill has "intentionally or otherwise misled all of us, including myself" by failing to report that only 222 jobs were available in the mills for returning strikers.

In Henderson, State Highway patrolmen kept order Wednesday as the embattled evening shift went to work at the mills.

Groups of about 200 strikers gathered at each of the two plants and shouted defiance at the workers as they drove into plant gates. Most of them rode in cars with broken windshields and dented bodies, results of earlier violence in the 23-week-old strike.

One car arrived late at the north plant after he patrolmen had left. The two men riding in the auto said a mob of strikers tried to pull open the locked doors and as the car pulled away from them, smashed the windshield and a side window with a barrage of bricks.

The two workers identified themselves as Franklin D. Autry and Billy Earl Wilkins, 21, both of Stem in Granville County.

At the south plant, a striker grabbed a newsman's arm and pointed to a worker entering the doors about 100 yards away.

"See that," he exclaimed. "He's got a shotgun." However, highway patrol Lt. R. H. Chadwick said the long, slender object the worker carried was not a gun, but a baseball bat.

The Governor met in Raleigh with mill president John D. Cooper and Boyd Payton, Carolinas Director of the Textile Workers Union of America.

Payton has contended that under terms of the settlement, the strikers were to get most of the jobs on the second shift, which started Monday night, and the third shift when it is begun. Instead, said Payton, only about 30 strikers were hired for the second shift, the rest non-strikers.

The mills, struck since Nov. 17, have been operating on one shift since Feb. 16, and most of the dynamitings, brick-hurling and other violence has occurred since then.

The first shift went to their jobs without hindrance Wednesday while patrolmen and yelling strikers stood by. But Tuesday night the second shift had to leave under police guard while rifle shots whacked into their cars and puddles of burning gasoline lighted up the night.

"That's just a sample," a woman shouted. "There'll be more tomorrow night."

No injuries have been reported during the current violence.

New Staff Members Announced By Young

Daily Tar Heel Editor Davis B. Young announced several staff changes Wednesday.

Harold O'Tuel will no longer be serving as co-associate editor due to increased work with the Publications Board. Young said, "O'Tuel will however, be of great value to us as chairman of that group. He has by no means withdrawn his affiliations with the paper."

In place of Riner, a new co-managing editor has been added. He is Chuck Ross of Kingsport, Tenn. Ross will be working with Ron Shumate in this capacity. Frank Crowther will be a single associate editor.

'Oh, Hellas!' Don't Miss It

By BOB GIBSON

Rex Harrison has recommended the Sound and Fury production, "Oh, Hellas!", as well worth seeing. Two presentations of the show will be held May 1 and 2 in Memorial Hall.

Harrison made favorable comments about the show when he dropped by for the Tuesday night rehearsal during one of his rather infrequent visits to Chapel Hill.

His prediction that he repeated during the rehearsal was that the show would be a success.

Because of previous commitments, Harrison will not be able to be here for the presentation of "Oh, Hellas!" May 1 and 2. But he said, "Anyone who fails to see the show will be missing some terrific entertainment."

Tickets for the production go on sale Monday at Y Court and in Graham Memorial for 50 cents.

The production, under the direction of Joel Fleischman, is based on Aristophanes' "Lysistrata." Harrison said he was amused with the lines and lyrics of the UNC adaptation of the Greek comedy.

Harrison left Wednesday morning for his home in Cheshire, N. C., where he often has some difficulty when people confuse him with the start of "My Fair Lady." There is "absolutely" no relation, he said.

IDC Honorary Society Taps 13 New Members Wednesday

A ceremony for the initiation of 13 new members into the IDC Honorary Society highlighted the Interdormitory Council meeting Wednesday night in Phi Hall.

Before the names of the new members were announced, an inaugural address was delivered to the IDC by newly elected President Otto Funderburk. The other major item of business was the election of five member to the IDC Court.

Doug Bayliff, president of the Honorary Society, presided over the ceremony.

In his inaugural address to the new members of the IDC, Funderburk mentioned six projects that the council would be mainly concerned with next year.

The projects included such items as the Dormitory Council courts and IDC Court, for which Funderburk called for continued emphasis. He also called for the expansion of the Coed Visiting Agreement and the social program for dormitories in general.

Funderburk said the IDC should work for additional improvements of the intramural program and of the physical facilities of the dorms.

A revision of the point system for the Outstanding Dorm Contest will be carried out, he said. And Funderburk also referred to a desired continuation of sending out roommate preference sheets to new students.

The council selected five members for the IDC Court at the Wednesday meeting. These new members are Larry Stacey, Lee Kiltredge, Rowell Burleson, Tom Mehl and Jim Kinney.

Phil Edwards, who has served as social chairman of the IDC this year, asked the IDC members to urge students to attend the Spring Frolic dance and lawn party Friday night.

The dance will be held from 7:30 to 10:15 p.m. in the Smith Dormitory parking lot. At 10:30 p.m., Jimmy Capp will broadcast his "Our Best To You" radio program from under Dave Poplar.
