Sacred Choral Music Concert Here Tuesday

A concert of sacred choral music, under the direction of Dr. Wilton Mason, will be presented by the University Chorus in Hill Hall Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The program of sacred music, the chorus will sing Faure's Requiem Mass, "Vexilla regis" and "O sacrum convivium" by G. B. Pergolesi and "Ave Maria" by Randall Thomson.

Soloists for the Requiem Mass will be Rebecca Carnes, soprano, and Joel Carter, bass-baritone. The organ accompaniment will be provided by Glenn Watkins. The Mass was written in 1887 to the memory of Faure's father.

"Vexilla regis" is processional hymn which was written in the sixteenth century by Venantius Fortunatus and which has been often set to music by various composers. "O sacrum convivium" was originally an antiphon used in church liturgy. Pergolesi wrote both works in four parts for soprano, alto, tenor and bass without accompaniment.

"Ave Maria" is another four-part chorus without accompaniment, written by Randall Thomson, a member of the music department faculty and composer in residence at Harvard University.

Grim Guessing Game Replaces Rabid Rifles

By PHIL CORNER

HENDERSON, N. C., April 25 (AP)—A grim guessing game between officers and unidentified gunmen has replaced uncontrolled rifle sniping in this city's two mill areas. At stake in the game are human lives.

Violence flared to new proportions Monday when a second shift of non-striking workers left the Harriet-Henderson Cotton Mills at 11 p.m.

Strikers and strike-sympathizers, inflamed when last week's apparent settlement went awry, besieged the firm's two mills Monday and forced workers to remain inside through the night.

By Tuesday morning a huge highway patrol force, which had been pulled away after the announced "settlement," returned and enabled the workers to leave the plant shortly after dawn.

The reinforced patrol group, and the use of brilliant parachute flares and floodlights brought about a gradual decline of nighttime shooting during the rest of the week.

New strategy probably will be needed next Tuesday, when president John D. Cooper Jr. plans to place his mills at full three-shift operation.

Both Gov. Hodges and Henderson

Mayor Carroll V. Singleton have asked Cooper to defer the third shift. In reply to Hodges, Cooper said that would be "an absolute surrender to force and violence."

The week, which began in a welter of confusion, ended with a sort of pattern. The early morning opening of the daytime shift produced no violence, small crowds of strikers and little tension.

Larger crowds showed up for the shift changes at 3 p.m. The mood was somewhat more angry, but, with the increased police help, violence was absent.

However, at 11 p.m., when the second shift workers returned home, the tension was explosive and some rifle fire was heard each night except Friday. Friday's shooting began and ended before the workers left.

The shooting at the South Henderson plant, scene of most of the violence, came from a back street. The flares cast a twilight glow over the area, and enabled Henderson police and highway patrolmen—armed with riot guns and tear gas—to patrol the backyards.

They were unable to locate the shooters, but their presence forced a curtailment.

After both sides said they had resolved their differences April 17, it was discovered that the striking Textile Workers Union of America would be entitled fewer jobs than expected.

The agreement broke down and the violence flared to new proportions.

The mills will resume their 11th week of operations in the face of the five-month-old strike Monday. They plan to begin a third shift Tuesday.

Mayor Singleton has announced a news conference in the Henderson city council office Sunday night at 7 p.m.

Party Party Planned

By DAVE JONES

The first meeting of the Student Party under the leadership of its 1959-60 officers will be held Monday night at 7:30 in Roland Parker I and II.

The chief topic under discussion for the new year will be a possible change to Tuesday for the party's regular meeting time.

Proponents of the Tuesday change have argued that more freshmen will be able to attend Student Party meetings in the fall if the day is moved from Monday. Those opposed to the change feel that Student Party members who are in other activities such as the Di, the Phi and the University Club will not be able to participate fully.

Outgoing Student Party leaders will give their final reports on the past year's activities and the Advisory Board will report on its recent decisions and the party committee appointments.

SP Floor Leader Jim Crowover will give his legislative report concerning the activities of Student Party legislators in the past week's session.

Key Personnel, Music Featured In "Oh Hellas"

Key personnel are essential in making any play a success, and the Sound and Fury production of "Oh Hellas," coming Friday and Saturday nights in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m., is no exception.

One must begin with a good script, and if it is a musical as "Oh Hellas" is, one needs good music and lyrics. And the first Key person appears in the person of Lew Hardee who co-authored the script with Carl Bridgers, who wrote the music, and who wrote some of the lyrics.

And during rehearsals, the cast is aware of Hardey's presence in assisting Joel Fleischman in the direction of the play, with special emphasis on the music.

Hardee a senior Radio, Television, and Motion Pictures major, has participated in the UNC glee club, participated in the Petite Dramatique production of "Judith."

seats are Dan Brown (SP), Phil Edwards, (ind.), Roy Goodman (SP), Ronnie Millican (UP) and Vince Mulleri (UP).

The re-election is being held on a direction from the Student Council. The council called for the re-election after hearing a case last week involving an infraction of the Election Law.

One of the candidates for Legislature, Goodman, was brought before the council for tending the poll in Alexander Dorm from 2 to 4 p.m. April 7. The Election Law forbids a candidate to do this.

In its decision, the council said it did not question the good faith or integrity of Goodman, who was unaware of the rule. He violated the letter of the law, the council said, but not the intent of the law.

Much of the responsibility for the rule infraction was placed with the Elections Board and an Interdormitory Council representative who asked Goodman to tend the poll.

Little Sheba, "Mr. Roberts," "Harvey," and "The Man Who Came To Dinner."

In "Oh Hellas," Millili has staged two lively dance sequences, which are destined to add life to an already lively play.

But somebody is necessary to get the dancers and the actors on stage, to see that the people know their lines, to make sure the costumes are around, and that the stage is set up as it ought to be, and that person in "Oh Hellas" is stage manager Chuck Cushman.

Cushman is a senior history major from Winchester, Mass. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and a former student legislator.

Yet, the overall responsibility for getting everything necessary for the play to open in order falls upon Al Salley, who is the play's producer.

Salley is also a member of Phi Delta Theta. He participated in the Asheville Community Theater, and currently is majoring in business administration with an eye to pursuing a law degree after graduation.

Tickets are now on sale at Y Court and Graham Memorial. The price of admission is a half-dollar.
