Stray Greek Organization Preserves Bonds Of Sorority Life

In a sorority which doesn't have a chapter here? Then perhaps you would like to affiliate with the Stray Greeks, an organization composed of sorority girls whose chapters are not represented at UNC. The group was founded here in 1944. It has gained more and more recognition on campus since then, and its membership totals right around 30. During the year they handle the Panhellenic Post office during sorority rush week, and each member serves as a Panhel adviser in her own dormitory.

Y-Court Is A Haven To All & Center Of Social Activity

Where's the center of social activity at Carolina? Ask any upper-classman, and he'll tell you that the most popular spot on campus for casual conversation, friendly get-togethers, and chats with coeds is a square of asphalt beside South Building known as Y-Court. The bench-lined square is located in front of the YMCA, where late sleeping students who miss breakfast may grab a cup of coffee and a doughnut during the 10-minute break between classes.

It has been estimated by expert observers that a high percentage of romances here got their start on a bench in Y-Court or perhaps on the steps of South Building. Y-Court has other uses, in addition to serving the cause of l'amour. Almost any weekday morning, a dedicated scholar may be seen pouring over a formidable looking textbook, oblivious to the light hearted trivialities of the world around him, an expression of intent concentration on his face. Ah! A straight "A" student, you say to yourself. Not so. The poor lad probably gave his all for the fraternity cause the night before, and now must do something about that mid-term exam next period.

The administrative moguls in South Building also have a good use for Y-Court. The brass has made Y-Court its favorite retreat from the cares and worries involved in running a University.

For them, Y-Court is a haven. Here they can relax in unsophisticated comfort, rubbing elbows with the man from the lower quad and the lowly freshman from Hicksville, USA.

Y-Court is a common denominator. It serves as a common meeting ground for all those who call Carolina their home. Football heroes, student leaders, deans, campus personalities and just plain old Joe College guys gather; all are one in Y-Court.

They've told you about the Carolina tradition. This is it.

UNC Has 24 Social Fraternities And 7 Sororities On The Campus

One of the foremost questions in the minds of new Carolina students is whether or not to pledge a sorority or fraternity.

The Greek letter organizations constitute an important segment of student life at UNC. There are 24 social fraternities and 7 social sororities with chapters on campus, with an average of 50 members in each group.

It used to be that a student wanted to be in a fraternity or sorority more than anything else while at college. At one time it was almost necessary to be in one to enjoy college life to the fullest extent.

However, that situation no longer exists. Social fraternities and sororities here play an important part, but they are not necessary to a well rounded college life.

UNC CHAPTERS

The seven national sororities which have chapters at UNC are Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Kappa Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Pi Beta Phi.

For the men are 24 chapters of national fraternities: Alpha Tau Omega, Beta Theta Pi, Chi Phi, Chi Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Delta Psi (St. Anthony Hall), Delta Upsilon, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa Phi, Pi Kappa Alpha, Pi Lambda Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Tau Epsilon Phi, Theta Chi, Zeta Beta Tau and Zeta Psi.

Students interested in joining a fraternity will be given a fraternity interest card during registration on which he will list those fraternities in which he is interested.

DECISION

The decision to join a fraternity or sorority is an important one. There is much to gain from fraternity life in the way of lasting friendships. A fraternity or sorority is more than a party group. The sisters and brothers will be living companions during their stay at Carolina.

Rush will begin soon after your arrival at UNC. It is regulated by the Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils. The IFC is made up of the president of each fraternity and a representative of each house. The IFC president for 1959-60 is Ashe Exum, a senior.

PANEL AND IFC

Each of the seven sororities belongs to the Panhellenic Council, which is composed of the sorority presidents, rush chairmen, one representative-at-large from each sorority and one representative from the Stray Greek organization.

These two councils are the governing bodies for Greek letter houses. Not only do they make rules but also enforce them. Some of the rules include social activities, coed visiting, fraternity drinking and other conduct.

If a student pledges a fraternity or sorority, he or she is eligible to be initiated at the end of the first semester if a "C" average has been maintained by the pledge.

Students who are unable to decide and need more time to make up their minds can wait and go through informal rush, which is held throughout the school year, beginning shortly after formal rush is over.

DENTAL HYGIENE

The class was told to write the rules for proper care of the teeth. One boy came up with, "Don't stand behind a horse."—Chicago Tribune
