

CAROUSEL LEADS — Steve Kimbrough of Duke and Ethel Casey of Raleigh have been working seven days a week along with the rest of the cast of "Carousel" to get it ready for the audiences October 23, 24 and 25 in Memorial Hall. As Billy Bigelow and Julie Jordan, they sing the popular hit "If I Loved You." Tickets are now on sale at 214 Abernethy Hall and at Ledbetter-Pickard.

100 Performers, Technicians Required To Produce 'Carousel'

The talent and efforts of nearly 100 performers and technicians from the University and community are going into the production of "Carousel."

John W. Parker, professor in the department of Dramatic Art, is the co-ordinating director of "Carousel." It is his task to supervise the over-all production and to unify the efforts of the music, dance and technical directors.

Forty voices and six principals singing parts.

Strassler has rehearsed with the chorus about four hours a day and an hour a day each with Steve Kimbrough, Ethel Casey, Sally Pullen and Marilyn Zschau.

R. V. Falk has been the accompanist for the rehearsals. Foster Fitz-Simin, Dramatic Art professor, is choreographer. The actual choreography was begun only after the dancers were chosen.

Opening night, Bill Hannah, stage manager of this production, will be in charge of all 63 performers and 30 technicians.

Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical drama, "Carousel," will be presented at 8:30 on the evenings of Oct. 23, 24 and 25 in Memorial Hall.
