IF NOTHING ELSE, Saturday's basketball game proved one thing for sure, the Tar Heels definitely have the ability to be a high scoring team. Last year's Carolina cage team hit the 90 mark on three different occasions. In the first game of the Dixie Classic the Tar Heels defeated Yale 92-65 and two nights later they upset Cincinnati 90-88. The other time occurred in the opening round of the ACC Tournament where Carolina put Clemson out with a 93-69 victory. With this season's group getting off to such a good start they may hit 90 more often, especially if they continue to score 61 points in the second half.

Last year's starters Dick Kepley and Doug Moe were not needed by Coach Frank McGuire in the 93-56 rout of South Carolina, but their presence may be sorely missed come Friday and Saturday night in Raleigh. At this time the Tar Heels and N. C. State will tangle with some real tough non-conference competition in the form of Kansas and Kansas State. Off last season's records Kansas State figures to be the rougher of the pair since it was undefeated in conference play and finished up the year with a 25-2 slate. For Kansas these figures read 8-6 and 11-14.

Four of Carolina's five starters against the Gamecocks established fat averages which will take a lot of work to keep up. Of course the most pleasing performance from the Tar Heel point of view came from Ray Stanley who was voted the outstanding player of the contest. The senior forward's job this year is a big one and he disappointed no one as he scored 22 points on 9 for 13 from the floor and 4 out of 4 at the foul line. Lee Shaffer, York Larese, and Harvey Salz also had hot hands and have to keep up this pace during the next three weeks.

ONE OF THE MANY parties held each year after the football season is completed came off last Saturday night at the Chapel Hill Country Club. The banquet, put on by the University, was highlighted by guest speaker Moose Krause, the Athletic Director at Notre Dame. In addition to the talk given by the former Irish football star, several individual awards were presented to members of the team.

The William F. Prouty memorial award which goes to the player who exhibits outstanding leadership both on and off the field was presented to Wade Smith. The E. Carrington Smith award, determined by a vote of the players, for the most valuable member of the team went to quarterback Jack Cummings. Three other awards, presented by the Educational Foundation to the best players on the squad in the sophomore, junior, and senior classes, were given to Ray Faris, Rip Hawkins, and Cummings. With the number of players in the running for this special type of recognition it marks an extra tribute to the recipient.

THE NATIONAL Football League closes out its regular season next week to the great sadness of those who for the past eleven Sunday afternoons have found entertainment supreme on their television screens. The New York Giants, already proclaimed winner of the Eastern Conference, built themselves up a lot of extra prestige a couple of days ago by belting Cleveland 48-7. If the Baltimore Colts win Saturday afternoon in their game with the Los Angeles Rams the championship will match the same two teams that battled last year.

It would seem that not only is pro football replacing college football in drawing fans to see the games, but it is also taking over that dying idea known as "spirit." Although older than the college students who make up a good part of a normal Saturday afternoon crowd, pro fans really get excited about the actions down on the field. The display put on by the Giant fans towards the end of last Sunday's game when they ripped down one of the goal posts before the game was over is typical of the professional behavior pattern.

Cline Wins Blocking Trophy

RALEIGH—Rugged Doug Cline, Clemson fullback, is the 1959 winner of the Jacobs Blocking Trophy in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The selection was made by the Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Association by a vote of 73 of its members.

Cline, a star for the Tigers for three seasons, is an all-conference back. He is 6-2 and weighs 210, using his size to good advantage in clearing the way for ball carriers.

Fourth Straight
For the fourth straight year the writers voted the blocking honor to a fullback. Harold McElhaney of Duke won it in 1956 and 1957 and last season it went to John Saunders of South Carolina. Saunders was injured in the opening game this season and saw only limited service.

On the basis of two points for a first-place vote and one for second, Cline got 42 points and edged out guard Mike McGee of Duke, who had 39. McGee earlier was voted player-of-the-year in the conference and was selected by the Football Writers of America as the best interior lineman in the nation.

Ed Pitts, South Carolina's rugged tackle, was third in the voting. He had 33 points. In all, 21 players were mentioned in the voting.

Syracuse Claims Top Spot In Final AP Poll Of Year

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
Syracuse University — unbeaten, untied and virtually unchallenged — is the 1959 college football champion, winner by a sweeping majority in the Associated Press' final poll.

The Orangemen from upstate New York, who completed their perfect season with a 36-8 rout of UCLA in Los Angeles last Saturday, drew 134 of the 201 first place votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters.

Mississippi, which took runner-up honors, received the next highest total—47—and no other team, including 1958's champion Louisiana State, got more than six.

Tigers Third
L.S.U. finished third in the final standings, followed by Texas, Georgia, Wisconsin, Texas Christian, Washington, Arkansas and Alabama, in that order.

Syracuse will receive the Associated Press trophy emblematic of the national championship — the first Eastern team to win the honor since Army in 1945.

Superbly coached by Ben Schwartzwalder, a former West Virginia center, the Orangemen swept through a 10-game schedule impressively, scoring at least three times on every foe and dominating final college statistics.

National Leaders
They led the nation in total offense, rushing offense, total defense, defense against rushing and in scoring. They piled up 391 points and yielded 59.

They demonstrated such poise and power, even to three-team depth that some of the selectors gave Syracuse the first two places on the ballot and let other teams follow after that.

Three of the voters gave the No. 1 designation to Syracuse's reserve team with the regulars rated No. 2.

Face Texas In Bowl
The Orangemen were the only major team to complete the season without defeat or tie. They will play Texas in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

They demonstrated their championship qualities in the final game of the season. With the regular schedule over for most of the other teams, they took their No. 1 rating against upset — bent UCLA before a national television audience.

This was a perfect spot for the jitters. But Syracuse — its second team showing as much speed and finesse as the first—rolled over the Uclans easily and held the co-title holder of the Pacific Coast's Big Five Conference to minus 13 yards on the ground.

Yes Tootsie, There Is A Santa Clause

Dear Child:
Your letter gives us pause, asking, "Is there a Santa Claus," and further asking "if there be, why don't he bring a boy for me?"

(Dear child, your grammar, though inspired, like life, leaves much to be desired.)

Well, as to Santa, let's not beat around the bush. The Saint, my sweet, gives to each buddy nothing more than what she scratches hardest for. Now, since the old boy makes his living beating the drum for Christmas giving, we think he'd notice your intent if you gave something to a gent.

Not that, dear! No, be more refined, give books, say, from the undersigned, and by next Christmas, though it's shocking, a BOY may be tucked in your stocking.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

Dick Petzold discusses time charges for a customer's telephone installation with an administrative assistant.

How to avoid a "dead end" career:
read Dick Petzold's story

While a senior at the University of Maryland, accounting major Richard G. Petzold made some definite decisions about his future. "I wanted to work for an established company," he says, "but I didn't want to get lost in a 'dead end' job."

Dick joined the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in Washington, D. C., right after graduating in June, 1956. Following three months of orientation, he became a supervisor in Revenue Accounting, where he continued training in a productive capacity, with 15 people reporting to him. Here, he suggested a number of methods improvements which were adopted.

Far from a "dead end" career, Dick's took him into many operating areas:

- to General Accounting, where he handled market research projects, including a Customer Opinion Survey for four Bell System companies . . .
- to Disbursements Accounting, for IBM-equipment training and, later on, the supervision of Payroll Deduction procedures . . .
- to Personnel Relations, where he coordinated a special, four-company "absentee" study and presented findings to an important, top-level conference . . .
- to Disbursements Accounting again, where he is now Supervisor, Labor and Material, with an administrative assistant and 10 clerks under his guidance.

"The telephone company brings out the best in you," says Dick. "I've developed new skills, acquired self-reliance, and learned how to supervise and work with people. What's the opposite of a 'dead end' career? Well, I've got it!"

Dick Petzold earned a B.S. degree in Accounting while in college. He's one of many young men with varied college backgrounds who are finding rewarding careers with the Bell Telephone Companies.
