PAGE TWO

TUESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1960

Prespectives By Yardley

Jonathan Yardley

(This is the fifth in a series of nine articles which will attempt to present a reasonably objective view of the leading aspirants for the presidency in the forth coming election. The purpose of these articles is to inform, not to sway, If the author's remember that he is only mortal.

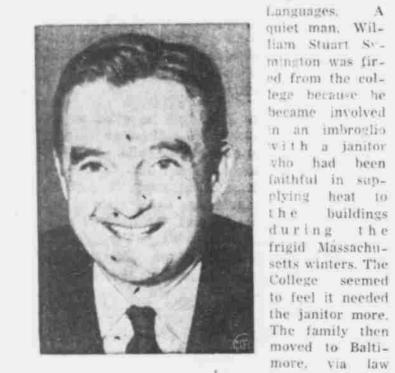

(Further expositions on these men may be found in Eric Sevareid's excellent collection Candidates 1960, published by Basic Books, from which the author has gleaned some of the facts contained in the series.)

Stuart Symington An Ounce Of Defense Is Worth . . .

next

JONATHAN YARDLEY

Symington Co., manufacturers of railroad equipment, and worked as a manual laborer. He took correspondence courses and mastered engineering and metallurgy. He radidly rose to the presidency of the clay products plant and then, thanks to a half million dollar loan from rich uncles, bought out the Colonial Radio Corporation; he managed opinions should sneak in, the reader is asked to to acquire for Colonial the Sears, Roebuck contract. which is credited by Edward P. Morgan as pulling the company through the depression.

> From Colonial. Symington moved to Rustless Iron & Steel, which he rescued from financial despondency; in 1938, he was lured to St. Louis to doctor the ailing Emprson Electric Manufacturing Company. In the course of this association he solved an intense labor difficulty with a Communistled union and proved himself a friend of labor in general

At the end of World War II Stymington was Stoart Symingcalled to Washington by President Harry Truman ton is a highly to head the Surplus Froperty Administration. The successful exjob was trying and difficult, since there was great businessman, a confusion in the capital and much surplus to be liberal, and Democrat H disposed of. He remained in the job for six months. these facets of and did not distinguish himself. Feeling in Washhis make-up do ington seemed to be that he had made the most not seem to libe out of an impossible job.

they are only ex-In 1946 Symington entered the really decisive terior indications phase of his career. He was made Assistant Secreof the life of a tary of War for Air. He immediately pressed full man who has strength for a separate Air Force, expressing time gone from one and again his belief that air power would be the surprise to the best and the only defense in the future. In 1947 the Department of the Air Force was created and Symington was Symington was made its head. Many people give born in the sum- him practically sole credit for the formation of mer of 1901 on the United States Air Force as we know it today whether this is true or not, his influence was which council membe s would be the campus of Amherst College, one of great and fruitful power, where his father As Secretary of the Air Force Symington betaught Romance came known for what his critics felt to be a "preventive war" desire. They felt he had itchy finaers quiet man, Wiland might push the panic hutton because he advaliam Stuart Svcated with such lack of qualification the need fire mington was fira strong American defense Syminaton later sold ed from the colthat he had and has no desire to wave protection lege because he war on any scale, but prefers to have a strong became involved defense which would eliminate the possibility of dom in determining "some form n an imbroglio war.

> Among the planks which Symington strove for in his Air Force capacity were: increased budget spending to allow the Air Force to increase what he felt was a drastically inadequate defense systeny full and complete cooperation between the branches of the service which would result in severe cuts in what was obviously a plethora of think not. The men and women

Reader's Repository

To the easier:

DON'T SIGN A BLANK CHECK On Tuesday the students of the University of North Carolina will have the opportunity to adopt or reject four constitutional amen.Iments concerning the Jud ciary Branch of Student Government, 1 would arge that the voters lock closely at these amendmen's b-fore making their decision.

While the first and third of these proposals would place an acded burden on the Altorney General's staff, I nevertheless favor the random selection of jurors and believe that the defense should have the right to summon win sses and obtain evidence. However, 1 can in no way endurse the . econd amendment, due to the und, ined and nebulbus designation of an "active" delense counsel. At the present time, the counsel for d tense enjoys the same inquisitorial privileges as council members; therefore, I feel that claritication is needed of the "active" counsel

Due to the necessary brevily o this let er. I would like to conce n myself with the fourth of these amendments. The pas age o which would empower the Legislature to set up distric s in m elected. I feel that this prop s 1 is ridiculous and quite incongrutus with the allusions made to "rights" and "Anglo-Saxon heri age" which color the whereases of this bill. It occurs to me had the structure of our democracy is built on separation of powers. The right of a legislature to have complete in eof geographical apportionmen." seems quite incongruent with our governmental structure. The wording of this amendment typifies the eloudy nature at its proposal.

Do we want our council menibers elected fram districts? I "Never Mind The Fine Print, Now, Over Here-"

6.75 11.17

is in Fills ForceR0 is

Editor's Corner

(Continued From Page 1)

This is a growing campus with a shrinking Honor System. It is shrinking because these who live under it are ignorant of that for which it proclaims to stand. Each of us must live under the system and be responsible to it; yet there are those who will deny our right to participate. And without participation, a system such as ours will crumble in a heap. Participation breeds knowledge, and knowledge breeds understanding. Without all of these, the secretive aura which surrounds judicial proceedings becomes in reality the exclusive property of a few.

The amendments before you today will create understanding. knowledge and participation. They will remove the Honor System from the few and return it to the rightful owners, the many, Attending this University is a privilege. Living under its laws is an obligation. Yet, if we can't participate in these decisions, we shouldn't be forced to live under them.

There are many who will tell you it is better to keep the Honor System under the control of those who now have it, the interested ones. What kind of interest is shown on the part of individuals when an entire fraternity pledge class is marched up to the Student Government offices to sign up for the Jury?

Don't listen to those who praise the system as it is and call for the status quo. The plain truth of the matter is that the status quo just isn't good enough.

Vote yes, vote yes, vote yes, vote yes. Vote yes on each measure and give the Honor System back to the students.

Letters

Mr. Nichols:

training in New STUART SYMINGTON York for the senior member, and 1000 soon became spasmooically prosperous while Dr. Symington followed the pursuit of county judge.

Stuart enlisted in the army in 1917 but never got overseas. He was mustered out at the age of 18 as a second lieutenant. In 1919 Symington entered Vale by virtue of a lean and promptly became a popular, successful student who managed, somehow, to afford to become a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

In 1921 Symington attended a Washington Charity Ball and met beautiful, young, rich Evelyn Wadsworth, daughter of Senator James Wadsworth. They fell in love and were married at Washington in 1924. Since their marriage the charming Mrs. Symington has been at one time a concert singer who received Hollywood offers, and at all times a helpful, untiring mate to an inexhaustible man.

Upon his graduation from Yale (he did not actually receive a diploma, since he had a methematics candidates for the 1960 nominations, came into close deficiency) Symington entered a plant of the T. H.

Happy New Year

- 1. The nation is at war.
- 2. The nation is losing the war badiy.
- The nation must exert a vestly greater effort

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publication Board of the University of North Carolina where it is published daily except Monday and examination periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter in the post office in Chapel C., under HIL N. the act of March 3, 1870. Subscription rates: >4.00 per semester. $7.00 per FERT.

Chapel Hal

borth Carst which liest onched its door The Daily Tar fleel is printed by the News Inc. Carrboro, N. C.

~ + or	DAVIS B. YOUNG
Assistant Editor	RON SHUMATE
Associate Editor	FRANK CROWTHER
Editorial Asst.	MILOU REDDEN
Managing Editors	LARRY SMITH JONATHAN YARDLEY
Basiness Manager	WALKER BLANTON

Sports Editor ELLIOTT COOPER

wasted mency; unrelepting efforts to keep ahead of the Soviets. In 1950 he resigned because of defense cuts which he felt were unduly severe. Some think that had these cuts not been made the entire Korean action might have been avoided

Although Truman and Symington disagreed on many points, the former respected the drive and organizational ability of his fellow Missourian and asked him in 1950 to remain in Washington as head of the National Securities Resources Board He proved an amazingly able financial advisor. When he came into conflict with Charles E. Wilson. head of the office of Defense Mobilization, he decided to get out, but was quickly made head of the scandal-ridden Reconstruction Finance Corporation. He went to work immediately and cleaned out the evil, while raising the good. He fired a friend of the President's, though, and retired in 1952

Almost as soon as he got home he was approached by friends to run for the Senate seat long held by Republican James Kem. Deciding to do so, he campaigned against almost insurmountable odds and won by a margin of over 150,000. In 1953 he went to the United States Senate, never before having served his people in an elective office. He was green, and he knew it.

While in the Senate Symington, like many other contact with the ebullient Joe McCarthy. He sat on the McCarthy Committee and was highly indignant about the manner in which the investigations were conducted-he sympathized with the purpose but not with the concept of one man investigating teams. He was most disturbed by the Senator's attacks upon the Armed Services, but was bewildered by his methods and legalistically incapable of battling Within the Senate he is known as a forceful liberal Democrat with a mania for defense. He has been largely unsuccessful in gaining the defense improvements he feels are so necessary, but he has made a great mark upon the nation's conscience with his incredible knowledge of military matters. It has appeared, in a number of instances, that he knews more about defense problems and intelligence than anyone in the Department of Defense. which has been at times, needless to say, most embarrassing for the Administration and its underlings.

Although Symington was never considered a presidential candidate in 1956, polls taken by leading magazines and surveys have shown him to be one of the three leaders for the nomination this summer, Adlai E. Stevenson and John F. Kennedy being the other two. At present he is making an obvious move to get the nomination and has been going forward with considerable success. He is popular in the South, with labor, with business, and within the elite of his own party.

The two most striking aspects of Symington's personality are his organizational ability and his O preoccupation with defense. His business past shows U only too clearly that he is more than capable of O expedient organization and action, and his record in the Senate and in Truman's administration makes it clear that he is concerned with and aware of the problems of national defense. It is highly possible that he is more fully aware of the military problems facing the nation than any of the other candidates. Symington is a handsome, tactful man who has managed to transport himself between strata of so-MARY ALICE ROWLETTF ciety with ease and grace. He has an attractive wife and two married sens with equally attractive fami- un lies. In many ways be is the perfect candidate, from 5 SUSAN LEWIS the professional politician's point of view, because Z he has no black marks on his record which cannot d easily be overcome. If he is nominated by the party, W however, it will be as the result of a deadlock, probably between Stevenson and Kennedy, and this VIRGENIA ALDIGE would weaken his chances of achieving victory.

who form our judiciary dete mine the punishment for Honor Coce and Campus Code violations. I should hope that the University would be afforded the services of the most capable students on these councils. Whether the most qualified persons be dormitory, fraternity, or sorority residents, 1 firmly believe they should be allowed to hold a council seat. I have been told that there would be "able" people in each district. I don't want an "able" person considering my suspension or probation, I want the most mature, the most to slide over all life's conflicts. This exagcanable, and the most qualified. It takes little imaginaton to realize that some dormitories have more, talented residents than others - just as some fraternities and sororities do

In addition to the political emphasis that the council elections might assume, it would certainly be unfortunate to sacrifice our troversial, but it doesn't seem so harmless councils on the altar of mediocrity by the setting up of unknown judiciary districts. It is critical that these amendments be consciousness. An example of what I mean considered carefully, in order that is something almost all of us have experia radical legislature not be given a "blank check" for the basic alteration of our judiciary

> George Grayson Men's Honor Council

Editor:

doing.

Re your January 9 editorial "Sterling Hayden is our brother, strongs doing it. The most ridiculous ex-We reach out to him - in his ample of this is the farce of television wrestlloneliness and our guilt. We re_ch out to hold his hand in the middie of the American night." Realiy Mr. Young, holding ness of reality is confined to such exercises hands with a grown man in the of low comic idiocy as the latter. The same putable young editor should be cide the public can't tolerate honest com-Guilitly yours, petition on the quiz program, but must in-dark is hardly something a re- thing is at work when the powers that be de-

Second Prize In Essay Contest

James W. Roberts

WHAT IS WRONG WITH AMERICA

America is the well-meant namby-pamby-ism, seen everywhere in public life, that tries gerated fear of offending any identifiab'e group or institution, of being in any way

'controversial', has come to dominate the media of mass communications on which we must now depend so heavily for our image of ourselves and our information about the world. We used to laugh at Hollywood for this sort of terror of saving something con-and funny now that television has become such an important factor in the national enced: the way they turn the camera at a football game away from the field when there is an injury or a scuffle between the players, Somebody, you see, has decided that the public must be spared such distressing sights. The good-guys must not merely win, but must look like a bunch of Jack Arming. Prav do not think, however, that this process of substituting fantasy for the sharp-

It seems to me that what is wrong with its own supposed self-image wins the prize.

The debasement of some of the public amusements would be unimportant, were it not that the principle on which they are debased unfortunately extends into all areas of public life, with the result that, at a time when the traditional values of our society need serious and open examination, it is almost impossible to get this in the mass communications media. It is corrupting to public life and private morals when it is held that the unfiltered truth is too distasteful to be generally broadcast, that reality must be made palatable, together with the companion notion that there are no real, irreducible differences between ourselves as members of a plural society. There are, in fact, such diffrences. And reality is quite often unpleasant. And anyone who pretends otherwise and tries to spoon-feed us with a lot of intellectual pablum that slurs over real differences and blunts reality is depriving us of a part of our birthright, the right as moral free agents to base the crucial decisions of our lives on full, fair, and honest evidence.

What one can do is to refuse to passively tolerate it. One should not spare ridicule, and at every opportunity must insist that the only acceptable standard in the public area is unmitigated truth. If enough of us follow this rule we will have a very real effect on the public processes, for we should remember that those responsible for the present state of affairs are at root frightened people, not aggressively determined ones. I am aware that it is highly unoriginal to say that the solution to what ails us is to purify our own Publicus stead be presented with a fairy tale in which selves, but I can see no other answer-

In your letter which appeared in Saturday's edition of the DTH, you stated that a ". . . judicial body should be composed of the most qualified students" Do you seriously contend that the election of the most qualified inaividuals is best accomplished by forcing candidates for judicial positions to campaign on a near? campus-wide basis? How many candidates for these important positions are given an opportunity to discuss their qualifications with the voting public?

I would say that there are a very few who are able to contact more than a negligible number of potential voters. How many voters on this campus are sufficiently familiar with the candidates for Honor Council and Student Council to cast intelligent ballots?

Should the proposed amendments pass, candidates for judicial positions will have considerably smaller areas in which to campaign; however, in all probability, a judicial district would be comprised of about a thousand students who would elect several of their own number to each of the appropriate judicial councils. A district of this size will assure qualified candidates and also will give these candidates an opportunity to contact a much larger percentage of the voters.

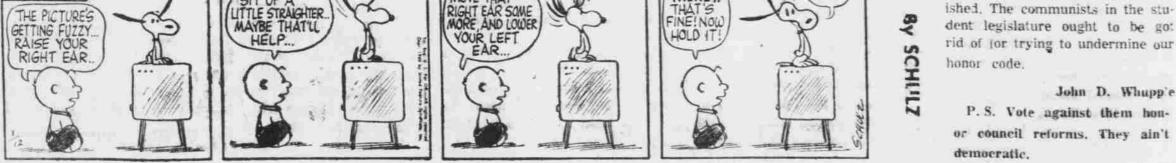

The Student Legislature presently has the power to enact legislation to provide for judicial districts; however, should this amendment pass, the principle of a geographically apportioned campus judiciary will be inserted and therefore preserved in the Student Constitution.

I also urge the student body to consider the proposed amendment carefully, and upon doing so I feel confident that it will vote "yes" in today's referendum. Hank Patterson

Editor:

I just want to say I wish them smart tellers in the student legislature would quit trying to make the honor council give more rights to people who get brought up before it. Everybody knows that anyone who's called up by the honor council is guilty anyway this new bill will just fix things to they kin git out of being pun-

Feature Editor Coed Editor JOSIE MORRIS Social Chairman BILL BRINKHOUS Photo Eduors PETER NESS BARRY ZASLAV Advertising Manager

John D. Whupp'e P. S. Vote against them honor council reforms. They ain't democratic.