

Keeping Score

WITH C. J. UNDERWOOD

The trip to Greensboro last Saturday night, needless to say, was a gratifying experience.

The joy of avenging our Dixie Classic loss to Wake Forest was sweet enough, though many other things added up to make the trip a worthwhile, pleasant memory.

Even though I've enjoyed many a game in Raleigh's William Neal Reynolds Coliseum, I'd have to say the Greensboro Coliseum is the most beautiful structure of that type I've ever seen.

There's not a bad seat in the house and there are 9,048 of them ready to be taken for a basketball game. And the seats are arranged so that one doesn't get that close, packed in feeling as he does in Raleigh where a sardine could easily develop claustrophobia.

The clan of Wake Forest students behind the press table often got pretty hard to take, though it's natural that "our boys always get the bad breaks." This was the general consensus throughout the Deacon crowd as the game progressed and kept looking more and more like a Tar Heel victory was on the make.

Probably the outstanding note under the "pretty hard to take" category came when Lee Shaffer took the line for a free throw after his basket which sent the Heels into a three point lead with 29 seconds left.

It must have been desperation, but something told the Deacon cheerleader to begin a very disturbing chant of "Go, Deacons, Go" while the blond bomber toed the line. Naturally Mr. Shaffer knew the only place the Deacons were going was back to Winston-Salem in a few minutes so he calmly sank the charity toss to lock things up.

Had he missed and Wake Forest won from that point, this fine bit of sportsmanship would have made headline material from this corner.

As for the game itself, the Tar Heels were never better. The 45.5 accuracy mark from the floor was the best of the year, but the real story of the game was told at the free throw line.

Carolina, last week the no. 1 team in the nation in free throw percentage, hit on 22 of 26 while Wake could manage only 19 of 25. Both teams hit 20 field goals, but the Deacons shot eight more times. The three leaders of the Carolina offense all hit 50 per cent or better. Shaffer and Harvey Salt both hit half their shots while York Larese poured 'em in at a 53.9 clip.

Miscellaneous . . . Whoever built the huge scoreboard for the coliseum must have had Wake Forest in mind. The monstrous clock hovered menacingly over the floor, flashing the minutes in glittering gold over a black background, the same colors Wake Forest calls its own.

York Larese won the game's outstanding player award and was supposed to receive a plaque signifying the honor. When Yorkie was announced the winner, though, the public address announcer added, "Due to an NCAA ruling of a few days ago, Larese cannot receive any material award."

Makes you wonder just how narrow-minded this already very narrow-minded organization really is . . .

Billy Packer, who almost single-handedly beat the Tar Heels in the Classic finals, met his match in Larese. The great Carolina junior went after Packer all night like a hound after a rabbit—result: Packer hit on 2 out of 12 from the floor and finished with five points, going scoreless for the last 28 minutes.

He previously held a field goal mark of 54.3 and averaged over 16 points a game.

Matmen Post Second Win

Carolina's wrestling team made its home debut a good one Saturday night, downing hapless Wake Forest by a 31-5 count and narrowly missing a shutout. Pope Shuford, UNC's undefeated 157 pounder, and three of his mates scored pins as the locals improved their season's mark to 2-3.

Heavyweight Bill Shipp tried hard to complete the shutout, but after being ahead on points was pinned in the third period for the only Deacon victory.

Coach Sam Barnes commented that his boys "did a little better than I expected them too" and that the "win gives us encouragement for the tough one against State next week."

The Frosh squad rolled to its fourth consecutive triumph in the first engagement of the night, 26-8, as Jimmy Klutz, Willis Johnson and Jay Simpson scored pins.

Next match for both varsity and frosh teams is against N. C. State at Woollen Gym on Wednesday afternoon.

British Track Chiefs Warn English Athletes

LONDON (AP)—Britain's track and field chiefs Monday bluntly warned the nation's athletes that acceptance of some American university scholarships could lead to a ban on their competing in the United States.

"Get our advice before you accept a scholarship," advised the British Amateur Athletic Board BAAB.

The BAAB issued a statement explaining its refusal to let the 23-year-old sprinter Dave Segal accept a scholarship to Furman University.

Segal May Be Banned

The board ruled the scholarship was offered "solely on the grounds of athletic ability" and warned Segal he would be banned from competing in the United States.

Since this ruling, Chuck Rohe, coach at Furman, has cabled the BAAB and Segal that the athletic scholarship has been withdrawn and that a "general excellence scholarship" will be offered him.

The BAAB said it would reconsider the matter as soon "as an official communication from the dean of the faculty" is received.

Sparks Controversy

The ban on Segal accepting the Furman offer sparked a big controversy in British newspapers. Many sports writers argued that Segal should have been given the go-ahead.
