WHAT AM I BID?

Campus Chest Holds Auction On March 1

By DEE DANIELS
"What am I bid . . . for a date with this lovely young lady?" will be the cry of Ty Boyd, Durham radio and TV announcer, as he serves as auctioneer for the Campus Chest Drive auction Tuesday, March 1, at 7 p.m. in Gerrard Hall.

Entertainment by the Carolina Gentlemen a Chinese auction and items donated for sale by sororities, fraternities, dormitories and faculty members will abound in the atmosphere of the country-style sale, which will herald the opening of the annual week-long Campus Chest Drive on March 2.

All profits from the sale will go to the Campus Chest.

A special feature of the event will be a Chinese auction. The Oriental practice consists of passing a basket through the crowd for participants to throw loose change into as a bell rings. When the bell stops its clang, the person with his hand in the basket wins the bid.

The committee for the sale expects to have from 50 to 75 items on the block including dates with campus queens, an airplane lesson, goodies from the Goody Shop, the goal posts from the Duke-Carolina game, two bids to spring Germans, two movie passes, "slave labor" and gift from local merchants.

In accordance with the "buy now, pay later" trend, those winning bids will have only to sign for the article and show their ID card. They will be contacted later for collection. Only loose change for the Chinese auction will be needed.

Mariel O'Dell, publicity chairman for the event, suggests that students may want to bid in groups for some of the larger items.

Any individual or group wishing to donate an item may contact her at 80194.

European Tours Will Be Offered

Three European tours covering art to athletics will be offered this summer by the National Student Association, Education, Travel, Inc. to college students.

The art and music program is directed toward the student searching for a comprehensive European tour as well as the added ingredient of attending outstanding cultural events.

Visits to eight countries will be highlighted by the Salzburg Festival; the Wagner Festival in Bayreuth, Germany and the Festival of Drama in Avignon, France. Emphasis is also placed upon the art treasures of Europe. The all-inclusive tour price is $1,180.

The opening games of the summer Olympics will be attended by students going on a second NSA tour. This group will sail for Southampton July 1, and make their way through six countries to Rome, the site of the games.

Following a week in Rome, the tour will return to New York by jet airliner. The all-inclusive tour price is $1,480.

The Passion Play in the German town of Oberammergau, given once every 10 years, will be on the agenda of an NSA Southern European Tour covering Portugal and Spain as well as six northern nations. The 80-day tour will cost $1,400.

IDC Honorary Changes Name

The Interdormitory Council Honorary Society announced Saturday that it is changing its title to Sodales Jani or the Society of Janus.

Society President Jim Scott said that confusion with the Interdormitory Council with which the Society is not connected precipitated the change.

The organization which was first set up at Carolina four years ago honors men who have contributed to the betterment of dormitory life.

Men honored thus far at UNC include Chancellor House, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs Ray Jeffries, J. S. Bennett and James Wadsworth.

Last year's student government president Don Furtado and the present dormitory supervisor, Pat Adams, have also been recognized.

Janus, the Roman god of doorways and public gates, was chosen by the Society to represent the entrances to the dormitories.

Two Cuban Students On WUNC TV

Two of the Cuban students currently visiting the campus will be the featured guests on the first program of a new series on WUNC, entitled "Topic," tomorrow at 7:45 p.m.

Maria Elana Gonzales, a future social worker, and Julio Mendoza, vice president of the student body in the school of Philosophy and Letters at the University of Havana, will participate in the first program.

They will discuss such problems of current interest as the Castro rebellion and the Cuban reform movement, also they will comment on their visit here to UNC and their reactions to the campus.

This new series is produced and directed by Jack Mayo. It will be heard every Monday evening at 7:35 on WUNC, 91.5 on the FM dial. Each week "Topic" will present discussions dealing with important events of current interest.

Future programs of the series will feature subjects such as the defense program of the United States, the missile gap, the coming presidential election, politics in North Carolina and the general economic trend.

General Purpose Of Model U. N. Assembly Is Given

By KAY SLAUGHTER
To educate the participating students in the workings of the U. N., the difficulties and problems which arise and to give the opportunity to UNC students to observe a model of the General Assembly is the general purpose of the U. N. Model Assembly, according to Bob Silliman, chairman of the Assembly Committee.

"To be held Thursday, Feb. 25, through Saturday, Feb. 27, the U. N. Model Assembly will include 22 colleges and universities representing 25 nations. UNC, Duke and Appalachian State Teachers College will have two delegations each.

Following U. N. procedure, each delegate will be a member of one of the four committees. As each committee has been assigned an issue, the subject will be debated and a resolution drawn up to present to the General Assembly. For expediency's sake, only two delegates of the committee will speak on the issue in the Assembly. One will argue for the committee's resolution, and the other, against. The committee meetings and these plenary sessions will be held Fri-

TO SPEAK TUESDAY

William Clancy, noted journalist and authority on religious relations in America, will speak Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Morehead Planetarium Faculty Lounge on "Religious Tensions in a Pluralistic Society."

Clancy will address the United Church forum in Raleigh Monday night. The public may attend both talks.

Disunity Is Feared Again As Anti-Communist Parties Begin Quarreling In India

By HENRY S. BRADSHAW
NEW DELHI, India, Feb. 20 — The three political parties that united to defeat the Communists in Kerala State are quarreling among themselves.

So far, they have been unable to agree on formation of a new government for the South Indian state.

Disunity Is Feared
As a result, many anti-Communists say they fear a return of the disunity that allowed the Communists to win control of Kerala and rule it for 28 months. Talks are being resumed by the Congress Party, the Praja (Peoples) Socialist Party and the Moslem League in Trivandrum, the state capital in Southern India.

The three parties fought the election Feb. 1 together and won 94 out of 126 seats in Kerala's legislative assembly. The Congress party alone won 63 seats.

Reds Increased Vote
Fear of a Communist comeback arises from the fact that while winning only 29 seats, the Reds actually increased their total vote from 2,300,000 in the 1957 election to 3,530,000. The Communist popular vote exceeded the 2,740,000 given the Congress party.

India's 14 states are governed by the parliamentary system. The party of coalition with an assembly majority forms the government. The Kerala parties have been unable to agree on a coalition.

Talks by national leaders of the parties, including Prime Minister Nehru, ended in New Delhi yesterday in deadlock. An attempt to hammer out an agreement was transferred back to the state capital.

The difficulty is the Congress party's refusal to accept the Moslem League in the Cabinet.

The League was responsible for the partition of India and the creation of Pakistan in 1947, leaving bitterness in India's ruling Congress Party.

Congress leaders say acceptance of a religious-based party in Kerala — the only part of India where the League remains strong — will create the danger of communal and religious divisions in other areas.

These points were argued last September when the Congress national command felt the need for unity against the Communists was all important.

Congress opposition to accepting the league now that the election is won has been sharply criticized.

"It is rather late in the day for the Congress to draw attention to the communal nature of the Moslem League," The Times of India said.

"To raise fundamental objections at this stage is to indulge in the most deplorable kind of political opportunism. Leaders of the Moslem League have every reason to feel they and their party have been exploited most cynically by the Congress."

Visit Set On Campus By Trustees

Women students of the University have made plans for the visit of the women members of the Board of Trustees on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 22 and 23, at which time they hope to acquaint the trustees with the life of the University coed and to help them to understand some of the problems with which coeds on this campus are faced.

Featured will be a panel discussion on "Problems Facing the University Coed" Monday at 8 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of the Morehead Building.

Members of the panel will include Diana Harmon, Rosa Dickinson, Sophie Martin, Leafy Pollock and Graham Walker.

Following the panel presentation, there will be small group discussions on various areas of student life, led by Sandy Trotman, Bunkie Jester, Sophie Martin, Rosa Dickinson, Nancy Aubrey, Scott Blackell and Marcy Klingel. All women students are invited to take part in this program.

Another event planned for women students is a Dutch luncheon in the south dining room of Lenoir Hall Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 12:30 p.m., at which time the trustees will be introduced. In charge of arrangements for the luncheon is Kay Boortz, who will also act as master of ceremonies for the event. A skit, directed by Sally Pullen, depicting the life of the coed, will provide the entertainment.

All women students may attend both the luncheon on Tuesday, and the panel discussion in the Morehead Building Monday.

Cal. Official Gives Reasons For Reprieve

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 20 — A California official stepped into the Carl Chessman case in his superior's absence, he said today, because an ex-federal official warned him of possible Latin American reaction if Chessman were executed.

Chief Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard R. Rogan gave that explanation for a series of moves he made which played a part in the 11th-hour reprieve of the convict-author Thursday night.

Rogan would not name the man he said called him from Washington. He called him a former high-ranking State Department employee and a longtime personal friend now in private business there.

"He explained the possibilities of incidents during President Eisenhower's trip," Rogan said, "and went over the troubles during (Vice President) Nixon's visit."

Gov. Edmund G. Brown's 60-day stay of execution for the convicted rapist-killer has kicked up a furor in this and many other countries. The California legislature will be asked, Brown said, to consider abolishing the death penalty.

The call from the unidentified friend, Rogan said, led him to:

1. Telephone George V. Allen, director of the U. S. Information Agency—who was suggested by Rogan's caller.
2. Telephone Governor Brown late Wednesday and advise him of both conversations.

It was the next night, after getting a telegram from the State Department, that Brown granted the reprieve. Chessman, an inmate of the death house for more than 11 years, was to have died in the gas chamber Friday.
