2 Briarcliff Senior Girls Die In Wreck; UNC Trio Hurt

By BOB COVINGTON and BOB McCORMACK
Two Briarcliff College seniors who had planned to come to UNC next year were killed and three Carolina students seriously injured in a wreck late Sunday afternoon on N. C. 54, a half-mile west of Nelson. The dead were identified by the State Highway Patrol as Judy

Searl, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Searl of Fayetteville, N. Y., and Grace Moore, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. Munson of Lookout Mountain, Tenn. Injured were Charles Leforte, 19, Raleigh; Edward Whitehurst, 30, Clearwater, Fla.; and Edward Mark Brooke, 13, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

The accident occurred when a 1956 Pontiac driven by Brooke ran off the right shoulder of the road as he was taking the two girls to meet a 5:30 p.m. flight at the Raleigh-Durham Airport. They had been in Chapel Hill over the weekend for Winter Germans. The Brooke car skidded into the path of a 1952 Ford Convertible driven by Whitehurst, traveling west. LaForte was a passenger in the Whitehurst car. The Pontiac caught fire immediately after the crash, and a fire truck was summoned from the near-by airport to extinguish the flames.

Out-Of State Schools Seeking N. C. Talent

By PETE IVEY
Out-of-state school systems seeking teachers at the University of North Carolina School of Education outnumber North Carolina recruiters by more than two to one. Dr. Ben Fountain, director of teacher placement here, points out that February and March interview appointments for graduating seniors in the UNC School of Education are scheduled for 21 school system representatives from outside the state, while only nine North Carolina school systems have made appointments to talk with the seniors here. High school and elementary school talent from UNC at Chapel Hill is being sought by school in 11 states, the largest number of seekers being city and county schools in Virginia. Recruiters are coming from as far away as Hawaii to get UNC teachers. Principals and superintendents are represented from Illinois, California, New Jersey, Arizona, Ohio, Tennessee, Georgia, Delaware and Maryland. Dr. Fountain said the Arlington County schools in Virginia sent a "team delegation" of five to consult with students, telling them of the good teaching conditions and salary scales. The beginning salary for a school teacher in Arlington County is $4,500 a year. The top salary in North Carolina is $4,500. The "typical salary" offered here by out-of-state recruiters ranges from $4,200 to $4,500 at the start. The North Carolina salary scale begins at $2,900 a year and goes up to $4,500. The appointments by out-of-state interviewers since the first of January exceed any previous records here. Dr. Fountain said it is becoming increasingly apparent that recruiters from outside North Carolina "get the jump" on school systems inside the state—by getting to Chapel Hill earlier. Despite the inducements offered by school systems outside the state, the majority of students thus far have chosen to stay inside North Carolina. Their reasons vary; they marry and stay in North Carolina; they prefer to remain near home. Of the 153 graduating seniors in 1959 who went into teaching from the School of Education here, 101 stayed in the state, and 52 accepted jobs outside the state. An additional 76 who were graduated are not in teaching at present because they married, went into service, took jobs in business, or stayed for advanced studies in Graduate School.

2 UNC Coeds Get College Board Spots

Ginny Aldige and Susan McCotter have been named to Mademoiselle's 1960 College Board. They are among 819 students at 314 colleges who will be brought to New York for four weeks in June to write, edit and illustrate Mademoiselle's August college issue. Transportation to and from New York will be paid by the magazine. In addition each will receive a regular salary for their work. The guest editors will interview outstanding men and women in their chosen fields to help clarify their career aims; visit fashion showrooms, publishing houses and advertising agencies and take part in the parties Mademoiselle is planning for them. Miss Aldige is a senior from Durham, and Miss McCotter is a senior from New Bern.

Junior Gives Ideas For Better Paper

Jonathan Yardley, co-managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel, entered the editorship race today. The rising junior from Chatham, Va., said that he would seek the endorsement of both parties for his candidacy. "The Daily Tar Heel has a great responsibility to the students," Yardley said, "and must take greater strides toward fulfilling that responsibility."

JONATHAN YARDLEY enters race

"After two and a half years of close association with the paper I believe I am in the position to well understand that responsibility," he added. Yardley outlined the policies and changes he endorses, and emphasized that, because of the high day-to-day cost of the paper for the individual student, the greatest responsibility is to "give the student his money's worth."

Among the points he made were: 1. A working ratio between campus and world news should be established on the first and third pages. He suggested three to one. 2. He recommended adding United Press International wire-photo service. "This would add to the student's enjoyment of the paper by enabling us to run photos that are up to the minute and interesting," Yardley said. 3. The sports page should be completely redone, he said, with more emphasis on the following: feature coverage of individual Carolina athletes, particularly those in major and minor sports who are least likely to receive notice in the commercial press; more coverage of minor sports and intramurals. He also suggested using such wire services as major league standings, top 10 hitters, leading football and basketball scores and top 20 ranking.

"Pogo" and Herblock unless student opinion desires otherwise, and get the crossword puzzle in every day. Also run program schedules daily for Channels 4, 5 and 11. 7. "It is the responsibility of the Daily Tar Heel to inform the students," Yardley said. "I intend to do so."

Besides being managing editor of the Daily Tar Heel for the past month and a half, Yardley has been a regular editorial page columnist (or most of his two and a half year stay at Carolina. Yardley wrote the script and lyrics of "Sound and Fury" his freshman year, served on the Academic Affairs Committee last spring, as publicity chairman for the 1960 Carolina Symposium and as president of the German Club. He is a member of St. Anthony Hall social fraternity. The candidate said that further elaborations on his views and plans would appear in later issues of the Daily Tar Heel.

UNC Scholars To Participate In TV Contest

A team of undergraduate scholars will represent Carolina on the "GE College Bowl" quiz show, March 27, 5:30-6 p.m. Dean J. Carlyle Pitterson of the College of Arts and Sciences is in charge of the screening committee which will select the four students for the competition.

At present nine students have successfully passed preliminary interviews and will participate in a trial run under simulated program conditions. Final selections will be made in about two weeks. UNC's opponent will not be known until the week of the telecast because the winner of each week's quiz is invited back for the next week. Bryn Mawr College is the current champion.

Patterson And Young Decline Nominations

By ADELAIDE CROMARTIE
A host of prospective candidates for the Student Party ticket this spring rose up last night in the party nominations for campus Big Four offices. Some rose and stayed there, others declined to run. Phil Edwards will carry SP endorsement with him in his try for the presidency of the Student Body. He was nominated by party members along with Davis B. Young, Hank Patterson and David Grigg.

PHIL EDWARDS for president

In clarifying his position as a Student Party endorsed candidate, Edwards said, "Tonight I responded to the call of the Student Party to express my views on pertinent campus issues. They chose to endorse me. I am grateful for their endorsement and will work as their candidate keeping always in view my original purpose that I announced with my candidacy of last Friday. 'I think definitely there is a tremendous need for dormitory facilities, not only physical,' Edwards told the group. He spoke of the "pitiful lack of social life for dormitory men."

The SP nominee favors revision of the student constitution, a development of "we feeling" in the dorms, and no second-class citizenship. Young, who asked that his name be withdrawn from the race, said that he could not run a newspaper efficiently and campaign too. "The plain and most honest statement I can make is that I simply don't want to run. I wanted to let you know this so that you might be free to nominate anybody of your choice. Even if placed in the position of being a drafted candidate, I will not accept the nomination. I will not run and that is final."

BILL NORTON for vice president

Young's name had been placed in nomination by Dewey Sheffield. Sheffield refused to withdraw his nomination of Young, but changed his mind after the SP called a five minute recess. Young had earlier nominated Patterson who likewise declined. "I feel that I cannot run for President of Student Government this spring," Patterson said. Jim Crownover endorsed David Grigg who was not present at the meeting. He said Grigg would accept an SP endorsement if it were offered. Crownover will manage Grigg's campaign.

Edwards defeated Grigg by a vote of 20-9. Bill Norton and Bob Nobles were nominated for Vice President of the Student Body. Norton told the group, "I intend to seek endorsement of the University Party tomorrow night. I will run my own campaign. I will favor neither of the political parties. I feel that Phil Edwards is incompetent and unqualified to be President of the Student Body. 'I do not and will not make political promises which I cannot stand behind and carry out. I will not become the tool of any individual or group of politicians, but I will earnestly endeavor to represent the opinions of the Student Body at large,' Norton added.

CAMPUS BRIEFS UNESCO Lists Many Ways Study Abroad

To most college students, a chance to study abroad seems almost as impossible as a trip to the moon. Yet, UNESCO's international handbook on educational exchange, "Study Abroad," lists 9,000 individual opportunities for foreign study. There were 180,000 foreign students studying throughout the world in 1957-58. Six countries accounted for more than three-fifths of these foreign students: United States (43,193), France (17,276), Federal Republic of Germany (13,916), United Kingdom (11,276), USSR (11,266) and Argentina (9,267).

Cobb Slates Meet

An organizational meeting will be held in the Cobb Dorm Social Room at 9 p.m. Wednesday to discuss possibilities for a series of trips to New York City, sponsored by the IDC and YMCA, for Dorm residents. Residents of Cobb, Joyner, Winston and Lewis who have indicated an interest in the trip should be present for this meeting. Men from other dormitories interested in subsequent trips should also be present.

Physicist To Speak

A University physicist, Dr. Lawrence M. Slikin, will be visiting lecturer at Smith College at Northampton, Mass., today. Dr. Slikin, an associate professor of physics at Chapel Hill, is expected to meet with the newly-formed Smith College student section of the American Institute of Physics in addition to giving lectures, holding informal meetings and assisting faculty members with curriculum and research problems.

ATTENTION, SENIORS
Today is the last day for seniors to order graduation invitations. The Order of the Grail is taking orders today, 9 a.m.-1 p.m., in the Y. All sales must be in cash.

Dr. Ryan Appointed Chairman Of Mental Health Federation

Dr. W. Carson Ryan, Kenan Professor of Education, Emeritus, at the University of North Carolina, has been appointed as a project chairman of the World Federation on Mental Health. He recently attended the group's executive meeting in London, England.

Dr. Ryan was given the task of ascertaining what is being done and what should be done around the world in introducing mental hygiene concepts and practices into programs of professional schools of all types: law, medical, social work, ministry, public health, education, etc.

Dr. Ryan was selected to head one of the five international projects to be carried out by the organization in observance of 1960 as "Mental Health Year": "Mental Health Teaching & Professional Education."

Dr. Ryan served as head of the UNS Department of Education from 1940 to 1948, retiring at that time to devote more time to research and teaching. He has also served in the United States Bureau of Education; directed the education of the U. S. Indian Service, Department of the Interior; authored a number of books; conducted educational surveys in schools throughout the world and participated in several international meetings.

The project seeks to improve and extend the teaching of mental health principles in the professional education of doctors, nurses, medical students, social workers, health educators, teachers and other professional people. The UNC educator was one of three Americans attending the meeting, including Dr. Margaret Mead, internationally known author and anthropologist. Representatives of 25 other nations, including Norway, Australia, Egypt, Peru, Sudan, Canada and others, also attended the five-day executive conference.

Duff Gives His Views On Athletic Program

Angus Duff, independent candidate for student body president, stated his views Monday on the university athletic program for freshmen. Carolina Athletic Association president this year, Duff wrote all incoming freshmen who were outstanding athletes, encouraging them to participate in the athletic program, especially in the minor sports. He served as official host for the athletic association at dinners given for prospective high school athletes. Through Duff's efforts, the likelihood of lacrosse and fencing becoming varsity sports has been substantially increased. Duff figured prominently in the formulation and beginnings of the new Student Carolina Athletic Council, which will give more students a voice in the athletic program. He has published monthly athletic association reports and letters encouraging the student body in general to participate more fully in the minor sports program. Half-price date tickets at home games, bigger blocks of tickets at away games and tournaments and active support of caravan weekends have also been incorporated in his work. The University administration and the athletic department are giving thoughtful consideration to the possibility of a combination coliseum-field house. An effort is being made to interest some donor in contributing two million dollars. After an initial gift of this sort the administration feels that the General Assembly might be requested for the balance, with some prospect of success, Duff said. The athletic council, composed of 11 people but having only three students representing the student body, is a main advocate of the new building. It will seat 14,500 and have rooms for the ROTC units will be included. It will be used exclusively for athletic and student events. The total cost will be about five million. Duff's main desire now is the procurement of funds for this all-purpose coliseum, which is presently seen as a real possibility. Duff's main desire now is the procurement of funds for this all-purpose coliseum, which is presently seen as a real possibility. This is a major step in his Five-Point Platform. Duff stated that his work toward this goal could be simplified and made more effective, as president of the student body.

Duff Gives His Views On Athletic Program

Nobles at first declined to seek the nomination for Vice President. However, after the second five minute recess of the evening, he came back and informed the Party that he would run, saying, "Perhaps I'm committing political suicide by offering my services to you in this election."

Duff Gives His Views On Athletic Program

The meeting was adjourned shortly after 10 p.m. Still to be nominated are candidates for Secretary and Treasurer of the Student Body.
