Duff Withdraws From Prexy Race

In a surprise move yesterday afternoon, Angus Duff announced his withdrawal from the race for student body president, and asked his backers to support David Grigg, the UP presidential candidate.

Duff stated that his decision not to continue in the running for Carolina's top student government post was reached "after thoughtful and serious consideration."

"The support which I had anticipated has not fully materialized," Duff stated. In addition to lack of support Duff listed the fact that "my campaign and the grounds upon which it was based have been widely misinterpreted," as reason for his withdrawal.

Duff expressed his appreciation "to those who have been kind enough to support my campaign" and encouraged them "to give their aid to the University Party and its candidate, David Grigg."

With Duff's resignation, the presidential race has been narrowed down to two candidates, Grigg (UP) and Phil Edwards, the Student Party candidate.

Currently president of the Graham Memorial Activities Board, Duff was seeking election as an independent. His campaign was based, in part, upon the procurement of a new student union and coliseum-field house.

Duff stated that he had no other political plans in mind at the present time. "I feel that I am better able to serve the student body by supporting my party," he concluded.

France To Stay On In Algeria Says De Gaulle

ALGIERS, March 3 (AP)—President Charles De Gaulle said today France must remain in Algeria but that the form of the French presence depends on Algerians themselves.

De Gaulle, speaking to his fighting forces in rebel-infested Eastern Algeria, warned them the 5-year-old Algerian rebellion cannot be settled for a long time. It will only be settled, he said, after a victory of French forces.

Wearing his uniform of Brigadier General, De Gaulle flew to the Constantine region. By jeep and helicopter he pressed on to command posts in two sectors thick with rebel forces. De Gaulle's movements were kept secret and he was guarded by heavy security forces. No foreign newsmen were permitted on the trip.

The French news agency carried the substance of De Gaulle's remarks to officers and noncommissioned officers assembled in command post tents.

Everyone must realize, De Gaulle said, that the Algerian problem will exist for a very long while. Military operations are going well, he added, but success has not yet arrived.

De Gaulle is expected to remain in Algeria three or four days. There is no indication whether he will visit Algiers, where last Jan. 24, right wing European settlers revolted against De Gaulle's self-determination policy for Algeria.

Grigg Voices Support For New Student Union

David Grigg, UP candidate for student body president, issued the following statement to the Daily Heel Thursday:

Without doubt the single most important project Student Government will have in the coming year is that of doing all that we can toward acquiring a new student union.

To many students this sounds like cold turkey, I know. To some candidates it may be the same. To me it is not. The prospect of our getting a new student union is no longer just a remote possibility. As a matter of fact I will be very disappointed if the General Assembly does not grant our request next year.

In the first place, both the president and the chancellor of the University have assured us that the request for a union will receive top priority—this was not the case last year.

Secondly, the chancellor has decided to include an undergraduate library as the third floor of the union structure. This should make our request a good bit more attractive to the General Assembly, and at the same time will provide for needed library facilities. Of course, in the backs of all our minds is the idea that one day the union would be expanded to take over all three floors of the building.

Thirdly, we have almost a year to build up interest in the union among the members of the General Assembly. This is where student government must exert its greatest influence. I would propose to set up an independent executive committee under a person with experience and insight in connection with this project.

This committee would be organized before leaving school this June and would be ready to begin a six months' campaign immediately upon return to school in the fall. During this time the committee would try to mobilize opinions of students and citizens across the state. We would also contact the legislators personally, give them our story, and ask their help.

Besides providing additional office and activity space, the union and the work in getting it will satisfy, in part, two most glaring needs. To be very brief, it will first of all provide social facilities that we all realize are wholly lacking in our dormitories. This problem has been staring us in the face ever since we've been here.

Also, I believe the work on this project could be a stimulus to increased interest and participation in student government on the part of the student body. Lack of communication with the student body has been one of our biggest stumbling blocks in the road to good student government. This project would be able to use, and indeed would need, the help of an unlimited number of students in the work I have in mind.

Campus Judiciary Close To Failure Says Charlie Gray

Dennis Rash, Jerry Stokes Receive UP Endorsement

Black asked that all those who have been endorsed by the party stop by the UP headquarters in the Yack office of Graham Memorial or call there, 21655.

Honor Council Interviews Set

Bi-Partisan Selections Board interviews for candidates desiring to run for Women's Honor Council will be held today from 1 to 5 p.m. and Monday from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Council Room on the second floor of Graham Memorial.

Women interested in running for an Honor Council position may sign up for an interview time in the Council Room.

While it is permissible for anyone to run without being endorsed, it is advisable to obtain this endorsement, if possible, according to Sandy Trotman, chairman of Women's Honor Council.

Honor Council elections will be Tuesday, March 22, and there are three seats open. For further information contact Miss Trotman at 8-9096.

'Greek Week' Under Way

During "Greek Week" the 600 pledges from all 24 fraternities on the campus contribute their muscles and know-how to some work project. This afternoon from 2-5 p.m. they are assisting the Jaycees of Chapel Hill in cleaning up the grounds of the Chapel Hill recreation park for children.

Highlights of the week include a carnival with side shows on Wednesday at Intramural field and exchange dinners between the fraternities.

A convocation at Memorial Hall Thursday night with Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver addressing the fraternity men will conclude the four day event.

Awards including prizes for scholarship for the year will be made at that time.

Constitution Revision Group Now Preparing Final Draft

By DAVE JONES

The Student Constitution Revision Committee, which was appointed last fall by President Charlie Gray, is now preparing its final draft.

According to committee chairman, Joe Oppenheimer, the tasks of re-writing the three major sections and the preamble have been assigned, and the discussion of the first of these has been underway for the past two weeks.

Hank Patterson, who has served in several executive positions including acting student body president, has been assigned the Executive section.

Norman B. Smith, chairman of the Campus Affairs committee and author of many pieces of judicial legislation is doing the Judicial section. He is also drawing up the new preamble.

Dave Jones, a five-term member of the Student Legislature, is drafting the legislative section. His first draft was discussed at last week's session, and his second draft, based on changes suggested by the entire committee, will be discussed this afternoon.

Committee members, Claire Haner (Student Council), Rick Overstreet (Publications Board and legislature), Jones, and Patterson set up several broad objectives and policy decisions which are being followed in the current re-drafting.

These include a decision to drop the names of those student groups that are not operating, or which could operate as well with a simple mandate from the student legislature, and a decision to eliminate certain procedures which are not set in tradition and have been the subject of repeated changing.

The committee feels that the legislature can prescribe many procedures that are not "sacrosanct" enough to be placed in the constitution. They hope these courses of action will maintain the constitution as a guarantee of rights and freedoms, yet keep it from being subjected to revision twice a year.

Chairman Oppenheimer has extended an invitation to the representatives of all campus groups interested in the form of the new constitution to come to the Friday afternoon meetings, which are held at 3:30 in Graham Memorial.

The committee will present its final draft to Gray and the Legislature. If approved, it will be presented to the electorate.

If passed by the student body, the new document will supplant the old, much revised constitution and will be the student government law.

Astronomy Equipment Recognized

"Sky and Telescope," a publication for both amateur and professional astronomers, devoted considerable space in a current issue to stories and pictures on the new equipment at the Morehead Planetarium.

Although the magazine tells of new equipment at the Hayden Planetarium also, the references to the Morehead Planetarium are featured in the text of the article and by the use of several pictures.

The magazine, a Harvard College publication, calls the work here "major changes" and improvements and goes on to say that they were made possible by John M. Morehead, the original donor.

Planetarium Manager A. F. Jenzano and technicians here were also cited for their work in incorporating the new instruments on the Zeiss machine. Usually, new equipment is installed by technicians from the Carl Zeiss works at Oberkochen, West Germany. However, Jenzano went abroad and watched the manufacture of the equipment and returned home to supervise the installation work himself, the magazine explained.

Jenzano is the only American technician to ever dismantle and reassemble a Zeiss planetarium. He is also pictured in the article.

The new equipment, which features more realistic presentation of some of the brighter stars in the heavens, is now being demonstrated in the new program, "New Heavens" which runs through March 14.

Annual Search Has Begun For Ugliest Man On Campus

By BLAKE GREEN

What? This is leap year and you still haven't been proposed to?

You never can seem to be able to get a date?

Goeds only go for the "winners"?

Well, my friend, now you have your chance!

The annual Ugliest Man on Campus contest, sponsored by the Rho Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, again affords you, the male student, the opportunity to surge ahead, and, in the spring when a young girl's fancy turns to...

you can be the ugliest man on campus!

Any organization or group of people may enter a contestant in this contest, and with the assistance of make-up, trick photography or shadow effects (all completely legal), who knows what will happen?

Entries accompanied by a $2 fee and three 5x7 pictures of the candidate must be turned into Allan Spader in 109 Lewis (89036) or Don Marshburn in 112 Mangum (89110) by March 10.

These pictures will be put on display in Y-Court, the Scuttlebutt, and Lenoir Hall March 13-19. Any student or faculty member may vote as often as he wishes for the contestant of his choice by one cent per vote. There will be at least one poll count per day with posted results.

And the prize? A bronze plaque with an Ugly Man head and an engraved plate. And, of course, the prestige... what more could you ask?

INFIRMARY

FREE FLICK

Last week's Free Flicks presented two of the major foreign film achievements in the drama and horror-suspense fields. This week Hollywood answers back.

Today Free Flick, "A Walk in the Sun," starring Dana Andrews, Richard Conte and John Ireland, is one of the most sincere film attempts to show war as it really is. Through realism and competent acting, "Sun" is one of the most vivid World War II dramas.

Grimsley Enters

Swag Grimsley, in announcing his candidacy for president of the Carolina Athletic Association said Thursday, "I feel that my interest as an athlete and a spectator and my experience as chairman of the Student Athletic Council gives me the qualifications necessary to do a better job as President of the CAA next year."

At the present he is serving as chairman of Student Athletic Council, a student organization which advises the student representatives to the higher Athletic Council on the general views of the student body.

Some of the other activities he had participated in are baseball, Student Legislature, Ways and Means Committee, Student Party, Budget Committee, Consolidated University Student Council, president of Cobb, dormitory, and chairman of a Committee on Faculty Salaries.

Grimsley is seeking the endorsement of the Student Party Monday night.

Mary McCormick Heads Symposium Committee

The handbook for this year's Symposium - the main source of information about the program and speakers - is under the direction of Mary McCormick and her committee of eight students.

A senior majoring in English Literature, Miss McCormick is from Greenville, Miss. Her sorority affiliation is with Kappa Kappa Gamma. Miss McCormick became interested in Symposium work last year while aiding Mardi Bardwell, current Symposium secretary. She took on official duties this year when appointed head of the Handbook Committee last September.

The purpose of the handbook, which Miss McCormick and her committee are manufacturing now, is to explain Symposium and its theme in the most colorful, but direct manner. The book, to be issued the week of the Symposium activities, will also contain a complete program of the lectures and seminars, biographies and other pertinent information on the speakers.

A reading list, as a follow-up to the program as a whole, will be included.

An advanced brochure was recently put out by the committee. Half of the brochures were sent to other schools that will be taking part in the Symposium while the remainder is being distributed on campus to give the students an advanced schedule of events and create interest in the program.

The Handbook Committee is also working on the possibility of making available printed copies of the speeches after the Symposium activities are completed.

Aiding Miss McCormick in her duties are Joseph Roberts, Mimi Smith, Marvin Taylor, Henry Mayer and Eric Deaton.

CHARLIE GRAY

By EDSSEL ODOM

Student Body President Charlie Gray delivered his State of the Campus message to the Student Legislature last night.

Gray pointed out that the present judicial system of the Student Government has become "so complicated, so legalized... that it is close to failure—a failure that would be a harsh blow to the great student maturity that has developed through the years."

The Legislature tonight acted on a motion made last week to withdraw the motion for consideration of the controversial bill to geographically apportion the campus judiciary. The chair ruled that the withdrawal motion was in order, but an appeal was made from the floor. The legislators decided the question tonight by over-riding the chair's decision.

The motion for reconsideration was passed. Rep. Dotson said that inconsistencies in court rulings as cited by Gray in his speech were not due to recent changes in the judicial system, but that they had been all around us all the time, though not too widely known.

Rep. Nobles moved for reconsideration of the amendment made to the bill last week which upped the number of members on the Men's Council from Men's Judicial District IV to five. The amendment was reconsidered and defeated, returning the number to the original four.

Rep. Crownover moved to amend the bill further to provide that the members on any council elected each year in the fall and spring elections, with no fewer than two-fifths of the members on any council elected in one of the two elections and the remaining three-fifths or fewer members of the councils to be elected in the other of the two elections.

The amendment was passed and another amendment enacting the latter was passed also. The bill in its entirety as amended was passed.

The very important bill to establish standard procedures in all courts under the authority of the Student Government of UNC was referred back to committee to come out as first order of business at the next meeting.

Twin bills to provide for a men's bi-partisan selections board and a women's board were referred back to committee.

Senior Class President Wade Smith was present and spoke to the body, asking for passage of the bill which would appropriate $1,200 to the Class of 1960. The bill was passed.

Rep. Greer moved to create special orders to consider repealing the old bi-partisan selections board in order to facilitate the passage of the twin bills mentioned above when they come up again next week. The motion was defeated.
